Beware Of Those Bridges

Frost-covered bridges, which are slick enough that they've already caused several serious accidents this year, can be an unexpected road hazard, the Nebraska Department of Roads says. Even though streets and highways are not icy bridges may be at this time of year because of the combination of warm days and cooler nights. The department says the condition is most likely in the early morning hours between 4 and 7.

Exon's School Aid Contention Rapped

... By Solons, School Officials

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State senators and school officials Thursday took issue with Gov. J. James Exon's contention that state aid to education does not produce property tax relief.

Those who equate the two programs practice a "cruel deception," the governor told a conference of school administrators and board members.

Responding to Exon's remarks at a legislative committee hearing which followed the governor's departure, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said the state aid program port such a proposal if local spending continued to increase at current rates.

Against Local Control

"If the governor wishes to establish an artificial limit, then he doesn't believe in local control of education," Omaha Westside Superintendent Vaughn Phelps told the committee.

Phelps said many schools are "desperate" for financing, and "the fact is that children in this state are being injured in many school districts" by a lack of quality education.

The actual level of "state aid" to schools is about $20 million a year, Phelps said. The rest of the $35 million was appropriated by the state to replace revenue lost when the Legislature repealed the intangible property tax, the property tax on household goods and head taxes, he noted.

Omaha School Board member Charles Peters said a limit of local taxes "doesn't make any sense."

So Hung Up

Joseph Hart, a member of the same board, wondered why state government is "so hung up on a 2 1/2% sales and 13% income tax rate."

Children "have to be educated," he said.

"Why not get the job done and forget about these percentages? Why shouldn't it be 4% and 14% or 15% if we need the money?"

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said Hart's comments "confused" him. "I thought the people of Omaha supported a man who ran for governor to keep expenses down," Barnett said.

Reduced Levies

School administrators from Scottsbluff, Seward and Papillion all told the committee that the state aid program had, in fact, allowed their school districts to reduce their property tax mill levies.

Phelps said the levy at Westside would be eight mills higher without state aid.

State Sen. Orval Keyes of Papillion said he will sponsor legislation next year to fully fund the state aid formula through "an aid to property tax program" financed with a 2% increase in the sales tax and about a 10% hike in the personal income tax rate.

NIXON PROTESTS PAY VOTE

Tough Stand Angers Unit

... Back Wages At Issue

Washington (UPI) — Reflecting anger over the Pay Board's tough proposed guidelines on wage increases, the House Banking Committee voted Thursday to require retroactive payment of wage boosts denied during the current freeze. President Nixon promptly protested.

"I believe that it would seriously jeopardize the ability of the Pay Board and Price Commission to reach the goals we all expect of the post-freeze program," Nixon said in a statement.

The White House stressed the President was not prejudging whether deferred pay increases should be paid but was arguing that it was a decision for the board — not Congress.

Some Power Left

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, responded to Nixon's criticism by observing that the panel did leave authority in the hands of the White House to prohibit retroactive increases that Nixon deemed "grossly disproportionate" to general levels of wage increases.

Nixon and Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, predicted the committee's directive would be defeated by Congress as a "piecemeal" approach to the complicated problem of establishing noninflationary guidelines for the economy.

The Pay Board meanwhile met for an hour and recessed for separate caucuses on the wage proposals by union, business and public members. Besides a ban on retroactive pay raises provided in pre-freeze contracts, the proposals would continue the freeze for two months until mid-January and limit future raises to about 5% annually.

Not By Labor Members

The proposals were submitted by the five public and five industry representatives on the Pay Board. AFL-CIO President George Meany said he hoped for a decision "in a day or so."

A labor source said it was "a very discouraging opening offer." Labor's position, he said, "remains exactly the same — the sanctity of existing contracts. After that we'll talk about the future."

Nixon said some of the House committee's actions "are damaging and clearly inconsistent with the effort to achieve reasonable price stability."

In a series of close votes defying the administration and reversing a cooperative stance on Wednesday, the committee headed by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., also agreed to require post-freeze economic controls to include interest rates, a move the White House vigorously opposes.

Consumers Could Sue

Other amendments drastically altering Nixon's request for extended economic authority would exempt poverty-level wage earners from wage controls and would permit consumers to sue for triple damages in case of guideline-breaking price increases.

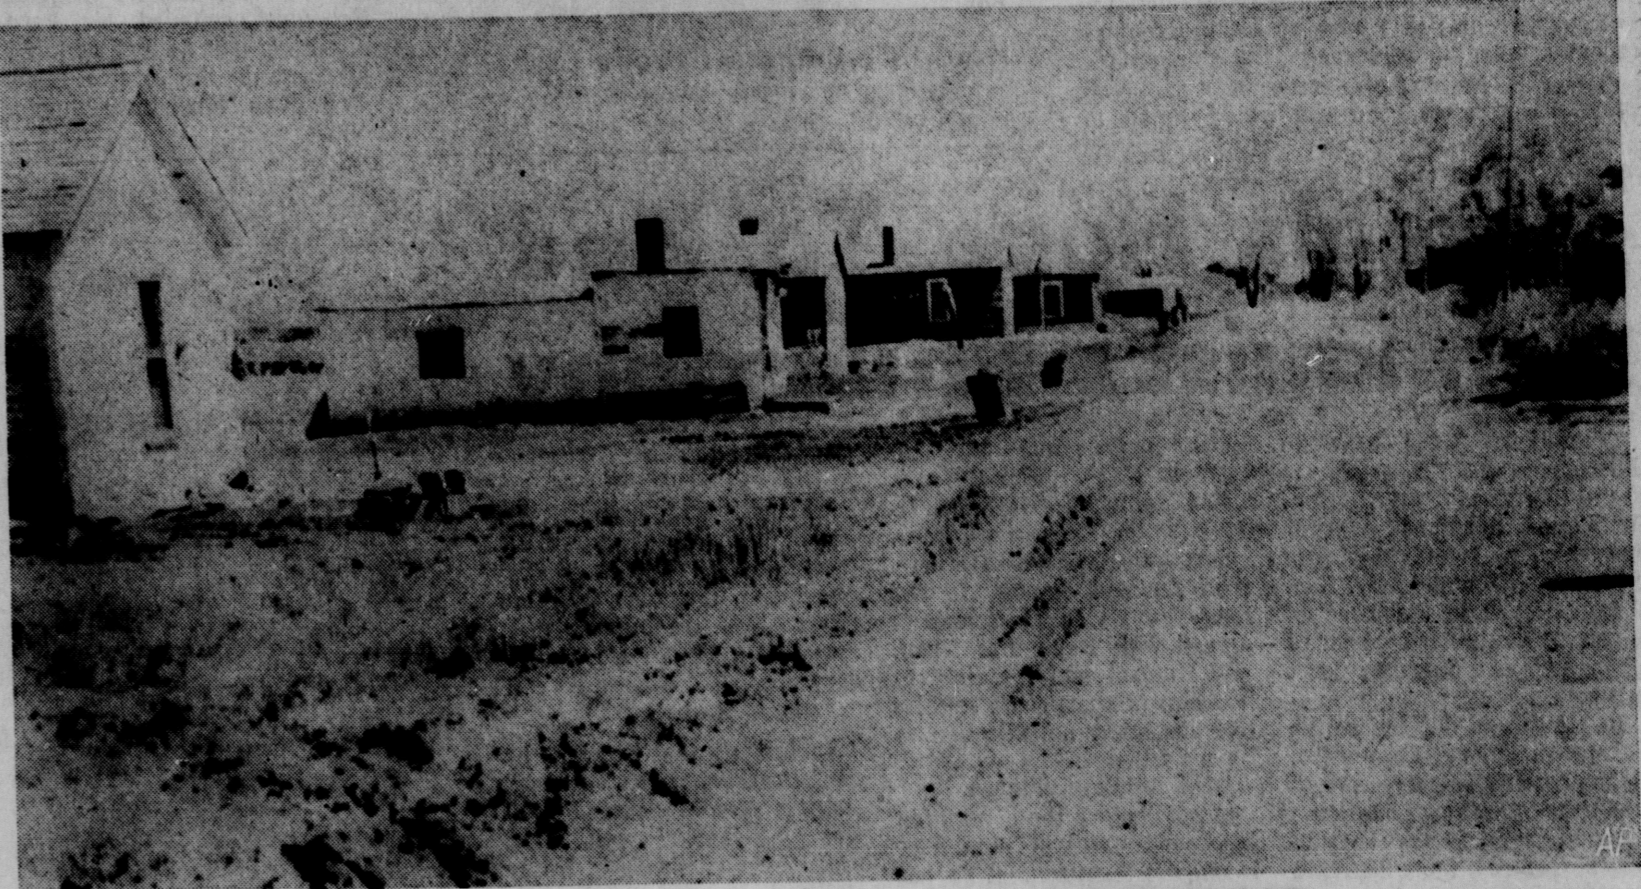

During an emotional committee session, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., waved around an edition of the Washington Post reporting proposals before the Pay Board. The proposals, submitted by public and industry members of the panel, upset labor members.

Annunzio charged that Congress must step in because the Pay Board was not acting in the public interest.

The government reported that wholesale prices, including the closely watched industrial commodities index, remained essentially unchanged in October, the second full month of the freeze.

Wholesale prices declined 0.1% from September, when a 0.3% drop ended a nine-month string of price increases. On a seasonally adjusted basis, however, wholesale prices edged upward by 0.1% in October.

Products whose prices were frozen generally fell last month, but raw agricultural commodities — which are exempt because of seasonal fluctuations tied to supply — rose by 0.7%.

INDIAN SUES WINNER TOWN OFFICIALS

This dirt road is one of the main streets in the "Indian Town" section of Winner, a small town in south central South Dakota. John Fire, who resides in the neighborhood, has filed suit against town officials. He alleges discrimination because the town government provides better services and maintenance in white districts than in the Indian section. Winner officials, including Mayor Paul Blomstrom, say the charges are ridiculous.

Complaints About Police Offered

... ABUSE AND INFRINGEMENT OF RIGHTS CLAIMED

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Numerous examples of alleged abuse and infringement on an individual's rights by Lincoln police as well as the alleged police brutality in the case of Cleveland Randolph were aired Thursday before the Human Rights Commission.

Lincoln attorney Bruce Hamilton, who said his office is representing Randolph, asked the commission to consider if a white man released from a hospital whose father was a "prominent, country club member" would have received the same treatment as Randolph allegedly did on Oct. 24.

Randolph told the commission that upon his release from Lincoln General Hospital on Oct. 24, a police officer was there to pick him up and "I was under the impression it was to talk about the motorcycle accident" for which he was hospitalized.

Asked About Accident

He said the officer asked him questions about the motorcycle accident on the way to the station but he was not informed why he was taken to the station until Sgt. William Jernigan showed him the warrants on the bike violations at the station.

Randolph said he was told he would have to be "locked up" and he told the police that he didn't think he should be locked up since he has just been released from the hospital and later was allowed to make two phone calls but completed only one.

He said before he was "thrown in the hole" he was grabbed by one officer, choked by another and the jailer started beating him in the stomach.

Couldn't Breathe

On questioning by the commission members as to whether he was actually choked or merely grabbed around the neck to be restrained, Randolph said:

"I couldn't breathe or talk—he was choking me."

Also on questioning by the commission, Randolph said he didn't receive medical attention when in the jail but had asked the jailer to call a doctor but it wasn't done.

He said he had been to see the physician after his release from jail and that he would be willing to execute a release to allow the commission to talk to the physician.

Find Out

Hamilton urged the commission to find out what the practices are in arrest, bail and release and if the practices are the same for everyone.

He said as he understood the practice, the jailer has a list of all prisoners and how much money each had on his person when he was jailed.

The attorneys, according to Hamilton, frequently collect their fees and fines at the same time and oftentimes an attorney is allowed to get others out who, according to the list have money.

Automatic

He said there are police review boards in many cities and suspension with pay is an automatic thing in Washington, D.C. and Chicago.

Hamilton said the problem in police-community relations is the "double standard of rich versus poor."

Lincoln Attorney Hugh Alexander urged the commission to take a "strong look" at the Lincoln Police Department and be aware if the same procedures are followed regardless of whom a person is.

He cited examples of inconsistency between shifts and how the standard rule that someone can't be released for six hours after being picked up for drunken driving may be altered to 15 minutes if an influential attorney comes down to get someone out.

'It's About Time'

City Councilman Harry "Pete" Peterson said "It's about time the city leaders try to promote better understanding between police and the community."

"People are too complacent," he said. "They always wait until something happens."

Hamilton presented a couple, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ortiz, as an example of another recent in-

"has never had an opportunity to provide results" because of a lack of funding.

$35 Million Now

State aid to public schools is now funded at a level of $35 million a year.

The governor vetoed a 1971 legislative bill which would have increased state assistance to $85 million a year.

Full funding of the current state aid formula would require about $90 million a year.

Warner, chairman of a state aid study committee which conducted a hearing at the conference, was chief sponsor of the school aid program adopted in 1967.

No Evidence

Warner said it would be "almost impossible" to arrive at an arbitrary mill levy increase limit which could be adaptable to all school districts in Nebraska, even though such a proposal might be "politically popular."

Exon had told the conference that he might be forced to sup-

Fair Board Ponders Operation Of West Coast Shows

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Nebraska State Board of Agriculture executive board heard conflicting statements expressing concern over the ownership of the carnival that operated at the 1971 State Fair and whether the carnival was in existence at all.

The concern developed when fair board members found an advertisement in the Nov. 6 issue of Amusement Business Magazine, an entertainment industry trade journal published in Cincinnati, Ohio, offering to sell the entire West Coast Shows Inc. carnival and Craft Shows equipment.

The ad states that "The First National Finance Corporation is the sole and complete owner of all show titles, current existing contracts and all of the equipment. It lists 'Glosser & Associates Inc. as the exclusive sales agent for this voluntary sale."

Approximately 63 major rides, 34 kiddie rides, 16 generators, one transformer trailer, over 50 trucks & tractors, over 100 trailers, 3 offices, and considerable miscellaneous equipment are offered on a first come basis, in the advertisement.

Ray Taramasco, vice president of the First National Finance Corp. was present in Lincoln during the state fair as an accountant with the carnival according to Henry Brandt, state fair manager.

Taramasco, contacted at his office in San Diego, Calif., told The Star that "The First National Finance Corp. is and has been the sole owner of the West Coast Shows carnival for a number of years, that the carnival does indeed exist and is capable of operating at a state fair."

Asked whether the First National Finance Corp. was a holding company or a lending concern Taramasco said, "I suppose the name could be a cause of confusion. It stems from the history of the company however the company no longer lends money and hasn't for at least 10 years and probably much longer than that."

Taramasco described the equipment offered in the advertisement as "some older equipment that is surplus to our current needs."

"I hope all this publicity creates an interest in the equipment from prospective buyers," he added.

The fair board set Nov. 16 as the date for a meeting with Bobby Cohn who is expected to negotiate for the carnival and asked Ron Rosenberg, a Lincoln attorney for the company to produce a letter from company officials authorizing Cohn or "Whoever comes from them to talk to us."

The board reviewed a proposed set of bylaws suggested by its attorney Hal Hasselbach which would change the board to a nonprofit corporation and generally streamline and update the regulations the board operates under which were last reviewed in 1966.

Board members discussed a proposed request that the State Legislature pass some legislation that would clear up legal confusion over the authority of the board to operate the state fair. This effort seemed to be a result of an injunction against the board which had attempted to prevent the distribution of anti-war pamphlets by a person who did not have a paid booth at the 1971 fair.

Board members instructed Brandt to ask the Nebraska Racing Commission to establish July 7 through Aug. 12 as the racing season for Lincoln which would give the board 23 days of racing, three more than this year.

Board members discussed the racing season practice of distributing free tickets to many people which is beginning to be an expensive problem for the fair board.

The tax of 15 cents has to be paid on each of these tickets each time they are used, the cost this year of this extra tax is an estimated $14,338 and had all the free tickets been paid the board would have had more than $87,000 in additional income.

The fair board will meet Friday with representatives of dairy and beef breed associations to discuss livestock shows at the fair and plan for a possible national show during the 1972 fair.

Washington (AP) — The House voted Thursday night to clamp harsh restrictions on the government and the federal courts in an effort to prevent forced busing of school children to overcome segregation.

Acting in what Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called "haste, excitement and hysteria," the House adopted a series of potentially far-reaching amendments that could sharply slow the pace of desegregation.

One amendment would prevent expenditure of any federal funds for busing. Another would prohibit the federal government from requiring a state to spend state or local funds for busing.

Still another would delay a court-ordered busing plan until all possible appeals have been exhausted, which could mean two or three years.

Subject to Later Votes

All the amendments were added to a massive, $21.7 billion higher education bill and could be subject to later votes before final action on the bill.

Warnings that the House was acting irresponsibly and in violation of the Constitution were brushed aside at the late-night session as members rushed enthusiastically to get on record against busing.

Southerners clapped and cheered as Northerners with a long history of opposing antubing amendments when only the South was affected by them trooped down the aisle to vote for the amendments.

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., offered the amendment to prevent the federal government from requiring the expenditure of state and local funds for busing, which was adopted 281 to 126.

She said it was designed to prevent what she described as backdoor support for busing by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

'Height Of Hypocrisy'

"The Nixon administration says no federal funds for busing yet federal officials are saying spend your local funds and we'll reimburse you," said Mrs. Green. "I call that the height of hypocrisy."

The rush to support the amendment brought a biting

comment from Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., a Negro.

"Where were you when the buses were carrying black and Mexican-American children past your white schools to dilapidated schools?" she asked.

She accused her colleagues of showing concern about busing only because white students now are affected.

New York Times
News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service
Washington — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee separated foreign aid into two bills Thursday, one providing economic and humanitarian assistance, the other military assistance, and cut the total aid from the $2.9 billion defeated by the Senate last week to $2.3 billion — about $1.2 billion less than the administration had requested.

Nixon, Gandhi Fail To Agree

Washington — President Nixon, greeting Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India at the White House, expressed sympathy for the natural tragedies that have struck her country recently. "But the worst tragedy is a man-made tragedy," she replied referring to East Pakistani refugees, and she asked Nixon to put pressure on Pakistan to give East Pakistan autonomy. The President, in turn, asked Mrs. Gandhi to pull her forces back from the Pakistani border. Neither agreed to the other's request.

Storm Victims Fear Death

Jambu, India — A tour of the area devastated by a cyclone and tidal wave last weekend showed that the death toll could rise to 20,000 or 30,000 and that many survivors fear they could perish from drinking water poisoned by so many dead animals and people.

House Committee Revolts

Washington — The House Banking Committee voted to require the retroactive payment of all wage increases halted by the wage-price freeze unless the President finds specific increases "grossly disproportionate." (More on Page 1.)

Wholesale Prices Stable

Broader Trade Powers OK'd

Washington — In two actions to give the government new ways of applying economic pressure on foreign governments, the Senate Finance Committee approved measures giving the President almost unlimited power to impose import quotas if he thought them necessary and the authority to impose a maximum tariff surcharge of 15%.

Population Growth Slows

Washington — Three reports released in Washington indicated that the rate of the nation's population growth was turning rapidly downward. And, the reports said, there is evidence of a long-range reduction in birth rates.

Some Interest Rates Shaved

New York — Major banks in New York and California reduced their charges for personal loans and home mortgages, and the prime rate — the charge on loans to banks' favored business customers — dropped a quarter-point to 5 1/4%. The reductions, the White House said, reflected "positive market conditions."

Columbia Falls Into Line

New York — The federal government told Columbia University that it has failed to produce an acceptable plan for hiring minorities and women and so could lose its eligibility for federal contracts. The university immediately promised to conform to the federal guidelines.

Liberals Hope To Find Rehnquist's Philosophy

Washington (UPI) — Senate liberals sought Thursday to free Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist from his lawyer-client relationship with President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John Mitchell in the hope of pinning down his legal philosophy as a Supreme Court nominee.

In his second day before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Rehnquist repeatedly dodged probing questions on the grounds they might become issues before the Supreme Court or because he took part in forming administration positions as chief legal counsel in the Justice Department.

Rehnquist said he could not foresee "what I feel is my duty to my clients," whom he named as Nixon and Mitchell.

Finally, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said he would write Nixon and Mitchell "before sundown," asking them to waive Rehnquist's privileged lawyer-client relationship. "We haven't been able to get Bill Rehn-quist's philosophy," he complained.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, objected at first, then relented saying "I am ready to vote." Rehnquist agreed with Bayh that Nixon and Mitchell had the right to free him to speak, and said he had absolutely no objection to Bayh's attempt.

Not Anti-surveillance

Shortly before the committee adjourned until Monday, Rehnquist testified that he did not think government surveillance of individuals in crowds violated their constitutional rights, unless such surveillance had a "chilling effect" on their right to assemble.

He also said he had advised Mitchell he had the power to tap telephones in domestic subversion cases, and that he thought it was a good thing to provide free legal services for the poor.

Before it returned to questioning Rehnquist, the committee heard its first testimony on Lewis F. Powell Jr., 64, the Richmond, Va., lawyer who won the American Bar Association's highest recommendation for the Supreme Court by unanimous vote. Powell is a former ABA president.

Powell Praised

Backed at the hearing by ABA President Leon Jaworski and six predecessors, Powell was introduced with high praise by Virginia Sens. Harry F. Byrd Jr. and William B. Spong Jr.

The committee deferred questioning Powell, however, to get back to the cool, cautious Rehnquist, 47, a former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer.

He refused to budge even when Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., confronted him with an article Rehnquist had written in the 1959 Harvard Law Review rebuking the Senate for not inquiring more fully into the judicial philosophy of Supreme Court nominees.

EYES WIDE OPEN . . . Pamela hasn't spoken.

Little Pamela In Coma Since July; Last Words: 'Mommy, I'm Thirsty'

Pottstown, Pa. (AP) — "Mommy, I'm thirsty," were the last words 7-year-old Pamela Chaplin uttered before she fell into a coma last July.

Doctors said at the time she probably would not live through the night. She did, and now the physicians can't say whether she'll ever recover from what is believed to be encephalitis.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chaplin, say they are seeking the aid of a neurologist to see if an operation could cause an improvement.

Eyes Follow Mom, Dad

Her long blonde hair pulled into two big ponytails, the child lies unmoving in bed. Her blue eyes, open wide, follow her father and mother around the room. She doesn't look unconscious.

"We don't know what she sees," says her father, Richard Chaplin. "It's hard to believe she isn't here."

Before she became ill, Pamela, a diabetic, loved to run, swim and ride her bike.

The family doctor thought it was the beginning of a diabetic coma, but more insulin didn't help.

After she was admitted, unconscious, to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children in Philadelphia, doctors there took radical measures: replacing her blood.

It was the first reported blood exchange ever done on a diabetic, and one of the few done on a child.

They Prayed

The Chaplins were told Pamela probably wouldn't live through the night. They prayed and rubbed her body. "It was ice cold," her mother recalls.

Pamela survived, and spent a month in the hospital, while doctors did scores of tests to find out the cause of the coma.

Encephalitis is the current diagnosis — inflammation of the brain, of unknown origin but possibly caused by a virus. Doctors say that even if the child recovers, there is a possibility of brain damage. "It's like a living death for us," says Mrs. Chaplin.

Hope For A Miracle

"I think God still performs miracles once in a while, and I'm praying He will give us one. Hope is all I have to hold onto," said Mrs. Chaplin.

The Chaplins' neighbors have joined the effort. They come in during the day to help tube-feed Pamela, a two-person effort.

In the evenings, Colleen Smale, a 7-year-old classmate of Pamela, comes over from next door to help with one of the four daily feedings. All last year the two were in first grade together and sat together on the school bus.

Colleen still saves Pamela a seat.

Supreme Court Asked To Halt Hydrogen Test

Washington (AP) — An environmental group asked Chief Justice Warren E. Burger Thursday to halt Saturday's underground nuclear explosion off the Alaskan coast, pending a hearing by the full Supreme Court.

A spokesman for the court said a decision probably would come Friday.

The White House turned aside mounting protests against the explosion, which would be the largest one yet conducted in the Western world.

It is scheduled for Saturday at 4 p.m. CST on Amchitka Island to test the five-megaton hydrogen bomb warhead for the Spartan antiballistic missile.

Asked about White House reaction to continuing protests against the blast, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the decision to go ahead was made after a careful study of environmental risks involved. It was decided to proceed with the test, he said, because of overriding interests of national defense and security.

N. Viets Accused

of The New York Times

Paris — North Vietnam was accused Thursday of vastly cutting down on the number of letters it has allowed American war prisoners to send home.

William J. Porter, the chief American delegate, who has introduced a new element of toughness into the peace talks since he took over in September, demanded an explanation to the families.

"You are making a tremendous mistake," he said to the North Vietnamese officials, "if you think that silence on this subject will assist you in any way. I tell you that it will harm you in every way if you maintain this unbelievable standard of conduct."

More State, Federal Education Funds Urged

Washington (AP) — A $2-million study released Thursday urges more school consolidations and much heavier federal and state spending to equalize public education and taxation.

The five-volume report by the National Educational Finance Project recommends that property taxes pay for only 10 to 15%, rather than the present 52%, of the nation's annual $40 billion school bill.

The study, funded by the U.S. Office of Education and four years in the making, comes in the wake of a recent California court decision holding unconstitutional the heavy reliance on property taxation for public education.

In lieu of local taxes, the report recommends that the present 7% federal spending be boosted to 22 to 30%, with state governments making up the difference.

State Support Varies
Although states as a whole foot 41% of the cost of schools, the study noted that contributions from individual states vary widely.

New Hampshire, for example, pays out only 10% from its state treasury, receives 4% from the federal government and obtains 86% from local taxes.

The report said school districts wealthy with property can levy modest taxes to finance their operations, while poor districts must tax their residents to the hilt and still come up short.

"The time has come for Americans to say: The number of dollars spent on education should be based on the educational needs of the children rather than the wealth of the school district," the report said.

It recommends also consolidation of 80% of the 18,000 school districts that "do not have sufficient enrollments to provide even minimally adequate programs and services without excessive costs."

Although the study recommends more federal spending, it does not recommend more federal standards and controls.

The project director, Prof. Roe L. Johns of the University of Florida, said the researchers feel that schools would "get a better return for their money" and greater efficiency if decision-making is left at the local level.

The study examines a number of model school financing systems, with differing amounts of local, state and federal funds. It concludes that flat grants provide "the least financial equalization for a given amount of state aid of any state-local models because it does not take into account the variations in wealth of the district."

Exon Blasts State Aid Deception

... LINKS WITH PROPERTY TAX RELIEF ATTACKED

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon, branding as a "cruel deception" attempts to tie state aid to local governments to property tax relief, Thursday said the two must be separated.

And in a speech to school leaders from across the state, the governor also declared that he will support a limit on local tax collections unless "drastic local property tax increases" are curtailed.

Exon's comments came at the opening of the annual fall conference of the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the Nebraska Association of School Administrators, the Nebraska State Association of Secondary School Principals and Educational Service Unit representatives.

Face The Issue

The governor also told the educators and school board members that if schools "expect to receive substantial increases in either local or state

"I would like to end this cruel deception once and for all," he said.

"Aid to education," Exon declared, "has sufficient merit of its own to stand the test of public scrutiny."

Shouldn't Be Hidden

"Aid to education, like property tax relief, should not be hidden in a smoke screen, or have traveling companions to justify their cause."

Pointing to statistics, the governor said since 1965 property taxes collected for local purposes have increased 59%

while collections "for education alone have increased over 70% from $133.4 million in 1965 to $237.3 million in 1970."

At the same time, he said, "state aid to local governments has also increased at a phenomenal rate."

"Obviously," he told the some 600 participants in the conference, "state aid has gone to supplement local taxes, not to replace them."

It's High Time

"And it is high time we tell the public this is what we have been doing."

Exon said he does not oppose "providing property tax relief in the future and increasing the sales and income tax in order to do so."

Best Means

"We feel that our proposal for personal property tax relief called the 'circuit breaker,' whereby the taxpayer, rather than the political subdivisions receive the tax refund, is the best means of insuring personal property tax relief," he said.

"If the 'circuit breaker' approach proves as workable as we think it will, we will very seriously consider its possible future use for real estate property tax relief."

The governor said he is "willing to consider future increases in state aid to education to meet the legitimate needs of education — but not under the guise of property tax relief."

For Enrichment

"State aid to education should be provided and used for the enrichment of education at the local level," he said, "and to equalize educational opportunity among all children."

He said that although he has been opposed to statutory mill levy ceiling increases for local governments, proposals in other states to limit maximum increases to 5% without a popular vote "have been somewhat successful."

"I am afraid that unless these drastic local property tax increases... are not curtailed in the near future," he said, "I will be forced to support a limit on the amount local subdivisions may increase their tax collections without a vote of the people."

Not A License

But he said such limits should not amount to a "license to raise taxes" by that amount each year, warning such a practice would double taxes in 14 years.

Exon also suggested that with limited school enrollment increases, any increased costs must be justified for educational improvement.

And he warned that unless "educators themselves take the leadership in devising methods for the measurement of quality education and the relation of quality to expenditure, more and more schools will go to 'contract education,' and the education process will be removed from the realm of school administrators."

"This I do not favor," he said, "but it is a threat we face."

CAR POOL IDEA FAILS

Leaning on her car window, Mrs. Joyce Schwichtenberg of Bloomington, Minn., is a little unhappy. Mrs. Schwichtenberg, a homemaker and career woman, tried to launch a big car pool with newspaper ads and handbills in suburban Minneapolis. It didn't work. She's still driving 12 miles to work, by herself, and she wishes she had the $300-plus she invested in her idea.

The Ortiz couple related of having gone to a Halloween party Sunday night and arriving home about 9:30 p.m. and after getting into an argument, Mrs. Ortiz called the police.

Ortiz told that after he was handcuffed and put in the car, the police "maced" him and that he is now seeing a physician because of injury to his eye.

Twenty-year-old Susan Petty, who described herself as a "white, middle class" person told of being picked up at her place of employment "under the guise of questioning" and then booked on a grand larceny charge.

Eventually Dropped

She said the charge was later amended to embezzlement and eventually dropped after her parents secured an attorney to represent her.

She said when the charges were dropped she had to sign a release that she would not sue the police department.

"If this can happen to a white middle-class kid, who has friends in the police department, what can they do to a person who is a member of a minority group," she asked.

Pushed Their Way In

Another man told of an incident when police came to his door and "pushed" their way into the house after he "cracked" the door and then searched his house and handcuffed him and took him to headquarters where he was charged with being intoxicated.

He said he didn't understand how officers could push their way into his house and pick him up for being drunk when he was drinking in his own home.

In reference to the session with the mayor Tuesday in an attempt to get the officers allegedly involved in the Randolph incident suspended, Mohammed Charles King told the commission "The mayor gave us the shaft."

He said he wasn't there for the entire session but that he had talked to the mayor and left.

'Usually Guilty'

"The black man is usually guilty and then has to prove his innocence," he said, adding, "but the police are innocent and then we have to prove them guilty."

Louis Cooper, human rights coordinator for the Lincoln Action Program (LAP), said he didn't think the mayor of Lincoln is "qualified to be involved after the episode in his office."

"He doesn't have it together to be in on it. I don't think the mayor's got it," he said.

Schools Can Learn From Corporations

... New York Educator Says

Star Staff Writer

The president of a unique graduate school in New York said here Thursday that schools can learn how to tackle societal changes by copying the characteristics of corporations that have "succeeded in meeting new demands which threatened to destroy them."

John Neimeyer said the school he heads has done extensive research on such corporations, and has found that all those which have successfully survived critical challenges had three characteristics in common.

Neimeyer is president of Bank Street College of Education in New York City. He described the college as "solely a graduate school devoted to trying to bring about positive change in education," and particularly in relation to education of children from birth to adolescence.

Three Characteristics

In an interview prior to his speech to state school leaders, Neimeyer said Bank Street research has discovered three characteristics common to the corporations studied:

— "a governing board which takes on the responsibility for seeing that the product of that organization is achieved."

— "a governing board 'which demands of management a plan in terms of specific objectives and specific accountability.'"

— "continual on-the-job training" for employees.

"By and large," he said, school boards are more concerned about buildings than "the environments in which children learn." And he said boards generally "sit back and expect the superintendent to be a miracle worker."

Fuzzy Objectives

He also suggested that school governing boards and schools usually have only "fuzzy objectives and no accountability."

And he said training is generally limited to whatever formal education teachers and administrators get outside their own school atmosphere.

"School systems are really facing the need for developing new ways of working with young people," said Neimeyer, "not just Mickey Mouse tricks."

"Something has to happen to the substance of education," he said.

"I believe school boards and administrators can use the management procedures which are essential for any complex social organization to bring about change in the way they operate," he said.

'Here To Stay'

Earlier in the day, University of Nebraska Teachers College Dean Robert Egbert told the school leaders that he believes educational accountability "is here to stay."

Egbert's comments came at a luncheon for more than 550 representatives of the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the Nebraska Association of School Administrators, Educational Service Units and the Nebraska State Association of Secondary School Principals.

"Without question," said Egbert, "the notion of educational accountability — the evaluation of our school programs in terms of differences made in the lives of children — is long overdue."

Threat To Usefulness

But he said the usefulness of accountability will be threatened unless attention is given to the "complexity of educational output and the inter-relatedness of accountabilities within education."

Egbert said he believed there are several dangers associated with trends to base school accountability standards on "student gains on standardized tests and specifically on standardized tests of reading and mathematics."

He also said he believes the responsibility "of the classroom teacher is of paramount importance."

But he said "any system of accountability which talks only of the responsibility... of the classroom teacher for educational outcomes is a narrow, confining point of view and can only lead to disastrous results... which pit teachers against administrators and, in a sense, against the larger community."

Can Help Us

"My own judgment," he said, "is that if we as educators exercise initiative, we can use educational accountability to help us construct better programs at every level from pre-school through graduate school and, in fact, through adult and continuing education."

"By demonstrating the success of our programs... as a means of assisting our children to become more productive, constructive citizens in the total society," he said, "we can convince those who pay the bill for education that we are being appropriately responsible for the charge entrusted in us."

After joint meetings Thursday, the school administrators and board members split Friday for separate sessions and business meetings.

School Tax System Faces Test In Court

Nebraska's system of property tax support for local school financing will be challenged in the courts, Papillion School Superintendent Paul Basler said Thursday.

Basler told a legislative study committee on state aid programs that such a lawsuit is now being prepared by citizens in his school district.

The suit would be based on a California Supreme Court decision which found the heavy reliance on property taxes for support of that state's school system to be inequitable.

If Nebraska's state aid program were fully funded, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said, "it would not be necessary to go to court to correct the tax inequities in school support."

Proper relief should be provided by the executive and legislative branches of state government, Warner said.

Seoul (UPI) — Twelve men are missing and feared dead in the explosion and sinking of a 70-ton fishing boat about 205 miles south of Seoul, police said.

Jet Crashes

Naha, Okinawa (UPI) — A U.S. Marine jet crashed into the sea but its pilot bailed out and was rescued, U.S. military authorities reported.

Nader Aide To Tour Nebraska Campuses

Omaha (UPI) — An associate of consumer advocate Ralph Nader will make a swing through Nebraska next week to form a statewide Nader group in the state.

The four-day tour will be made by Joe Highland, who co-authored with Nader a book entitled "Action for a Change." The tour starts Monday in Omaha.

Highland will appear Monday at the university of Nebraska at Omaha and at Creighton University. The Tuesday schedule is for a meeting at Dana College, Blair, followed by a stop at Midland College, Fremont, and Wayne State College.

The Wednesday schedule is for stops at Platte College, Columbus; Concordia College, Seward; to which York College students are invited, and Doane College, Crete, to which Peru State and Fairbury Junior College students are invited.

The Thursday schedule has stops at Hastings College, Kearney State College and the University of Nebraska Lincoln campus at 7:30 p.m.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By MARQUIS CHILDS

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is out of town on business. Today's column is by news analyst Marquis Childs.)

WASHINGTON — A killer stalking the land defies all the barriers of law and order. It is cancer, and those who have felt the killer strike with the stealth of an assassin in the night know the sense of helplessness, pitting hope against despair, of the ordeal of watching and waiting.

There is hope or, at any rate, progress. In the remarkable articles written in Newsweek of his own confrontation with what at first appeared to be a fatal leukemia, Stewart Alsop described the advances that have been made in "taming the beast." Eight forms of cancer are now, if not curable, subject to treatment giving at least considerable remission. The most notable progress has been in leukemia that is becoming increasingly prevalent.

But the beast is far from tamed. The attack of the scientific community has been hampered by limited funds and by bureaucratic complexities. Now a proposal is before Congress to create a National Cancer Attack Program with greatly expanded funds both for research and for the application of research. It has passed the Senate by a vote of 79 to 1.

The appropriation for the current fiscal year would be $400 million, for 1973 $500 million, and $600 million for the year ending June 30, 1973. One of the prime movers in persuading President Nixon to go for this expanded attack was his good friend, Elmer Bobst. It approaches what Bobst, Mrs. Mary Lasker, the formidable crusader for improved medical care and research, Lorraine Rockefeller, and many others have long hoped for. That is, in effect, a Manhattan Project that would do for cancer what the wartime project achieved in five years in splitting the atom, opening the way for the atomic bomb.

The measure passed by the Senate provides not only for greatly increased scientific and technical manpower but for construction of new facilities. In short, the whole framework would be expanded as rapidly as possible.

Unfortunately, the proposed program, which originated with a distinguished commission, has stirred the kind of political, bureaucratic tempest that so often clouds the issues. On one side, so far as an observer on the sidelines can judge, are those who believe that research directed by the National Cancer Institute in the National Institutes of Health is proceeding independently with all possible speed. Among this number are many deans of medical schools with research grants from the institute.

On the other side are distinguished cancer specialists, the American Cancer Society, and other individuals and groups long advocating a bold new approach. One argument is that the emphasis on research into causes is so dominant that the cure is lost sight of. No one really knows the cause of diabetes but insulin is a cure reducing this killer close to zero.

One charge is that the White House wants to concentrate control of the program for political ends. The bill makes the President responsible for the budget, with the director of the National Cancer Institute, which would still be within the framework of NIH, responsible to the chief executive and to a national cancer advisory council.

The charge of politics sets the blood boiling of the advocates of the new program. No president could play politics with cancer. Eliminating the layers of bureaucracy through which research must filter is bound to speed the whole process.

As one who has just observed a long vigil, with the killer finally triumphant, there is only one thing to say: Stop the bureaucratic quarreling and get on with it, get on with it, get on with it.

Deals Are Shaping On Two Top Offices

WASHINGTON — Intimates say Treasury Secretary John Connally would accept the GOP vice presidential nomination next year if President Nixon will pledge to support him for president in 1976. . . . White House aides are also sizing up six-foot-seven, ruggedly handsome Rogers C. B. Morton, the able interior secretary, as vice presidential timber. . . .

State Secretary Bill Rogers, talking to GOP leaders behind closed White House doors, gave a preview of President Nixon's 1972 campaign theme: "The world is a more peaceful place than it was two and a half years ago. The United States is a more peaceful place than it was two and a half years ago."

Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney's brave attempt to set an example of sacrifice has quietly fizzled. He urged his fellow cabinet officers in 1969 to turn back part of their salaries as an example to the nation. Instead, they accepted a salary increase from $35,000 to $60,000. For several months, Romney returned one-fourth of his salary to the Treasury. But he has quietly abandoned the gesture and is now collecting his full salary. . . . Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., is now serving on the House Internal Security Committee, formerly the House Un-American Activities Committee, which helped circulate those smears about "Red Pepper" back in the 1950s. He discovered in the committee files a campaign document, citing his alleged soft-on-communism record, that George Smathers had used against him in the 1950 Senate race.

The Senate's Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott have agreed to recess the Senate no later than December.

Vice President Agnew brought back to the White House the word of Greek dictator George Papadopoulos that he will restore "representative democratic government" to Greece. The vice president was carefully coached before his visit to Greece to push hard for democratic reforms. He spent more than six hours with Papadopoulos, who normally follows such a tight schedule that he confines most visits to a few minutes and keeps an alarm clock beside his desk to remind him when the time is up. Agnew emerged from his sessions with the Greek dictator elated over his success. Back at the White House, Agnew gave President Nixon a 90-minute report on his trip. The highlight was Agnew's stated belief that free elections will be revived in Greece.

A new problem has developed for the controversial $16 million radio station that the Voice of America is building in Greece. There have been loud liberal protests over basing a VOA station in Greek dictatorship.

When the tower was being loaded in Britain, part of it was dropped, and the brittle steel fractured. VOA's contractors were afraid to put up the tall antenna for fear the steel might receive a sharp blow during construction and topple on somebody's head.

But new steel would mean a year's delay and $1 million extra in cost. The contractors decided to heat the steel as they put it up to make it less brittle. But a squabble has now erupted between the contractors and VOA over who should pay for the special heating.

'Folks, This Is Your Captain Speaking. Let Me Say, Everything Looks Fine!'

Statehouse Diversions

Is this little imbroglia really necessary, we wondered, when State Treasurer Wayne Swanson announced Wednesday that he would refuse to sign any more payment warrants — which would include welfare and payroll checks — until the Department of Administrative Services (DAS) supplied him with monthly reports of cash fund balances. He hadn't received the reports he wanted since June, Swanson said.

The treasurer said the summaries are needed to determine whether accounts would be overdrawn if a warrant is issued. DAS Director Gus Lieske said the treasurer's office has been receiving the needed information all along, although not necessarily in the requested form.

The situation cleared up yesterday. Lieske provided the balance statements and Swanson said he would sign the warrants piled up on his desk.

Actually, he had little choice; the attorney general's office had indicated that there was "no reason" why the warrants shouldn't be signed, that the statutes don't specify the nature or frequency of reports to the treasurer. Lieske had threatened legal action to resume payment of the state's bills.

On the surface it would appear that there is less than a positive attitude of cooperation on the part of the DAS. The reports that Swanson said he needed might have been made available on a monthly basis. But more discredit is reflected in the treasurer's performance in threatening to sit on his hands because of a triviality.

Down the hall from the treasurer's statehouse office, in the governor's hearing room, more trouble was brewing Wednesday. The three-man Republican majority on the State Board of Equalization had voted to postpone setting Nebraska's tax rates until the Nov. 15 statutory deadline. The two Democrats — Tax Commissioner Bill Peters and Gov. Exon, anxious, we're sure, to keep a campaign pledge — tried on Oct. 8 and once again Wednesday to have the board set the income tax rate at 13% and the sales tax at 2½%.

The Republican members argued that the board should wait in hopes that congressional action on federal income tax exemptions — which could affect state income tax revenues — would be concluded before the Nov. 15 deadline. The Democrats argued that the board should set the rates now and meet again — as provided by the Constitution — to change them if federal action changed the revenue picture. If the bill were passed next week, Exon noted, there would not be time to get accurate estimates on the effect, which might force the board to set a higher or lower rate than necessary, an action it could not change.

In what is essentially a political argument, the governor's position is the more logical.

End Of Two-Term Limit?

A Senate subcommittee has been holding hearings on a proposed constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single six-year term. Sponsoring Sens. Mike Mansfield and George Aiken say their proposal is designed to relieve the president of many political pressures and free him to devote more time to initiating and carrying out government policies.

The idea is almost as old as the nation and its popularity might be on the upswing as more and more people seem to doubt the reliability of American institutions.

There are those, however, and we are among them, who are comfortable with the notion that the president should be cognizant of the wishes of the people and nothing accomplishes that better than political pressure.

China-Watchers Provided With Lots Of Material; Political Futures Of Chou And Nixon Interlinked

PARIS — Many signs indicate that the political power and diplomatic policy of Premier Chou En-lai are on the rise in China and that the forthcoming visit of President Nixon is directly linked to this.

Chou does seem to be running the People's Republic but his position has not been firmly established. Therefore the prospect of new U.S. relations, underlined by the Nixon trip, is a matter of signal importance to the premier's personal standing.

China-watching is an arcane and uncertain meter. Nevertheless, China-watchers, although they may disagree in their conclusions, start their analyses of the current situation with the strange events of Sept. 12-13. These touched off separate but contemporaneous chains of military and political events that almost certainly have not finished.

On that date, probably at night, a British-made Trident jet of the Chinese Civilian Airlines crashed deep inside the outer Mongolian People's Republic, apparently due to an accident, not an attack.

It was not a regular scheduled flight and, although a Trident can hold well over 100 passengers plus crew, only nine bodies were found in the wreckage. They were reportedly those of rather young people, including one woman. Mongolia protested the violation of its air space and Peking apologized through its embassy there.

Since China has few Tridents, it is apparent the persons aboard must have had considerable influence to gain access to the aircraft. One theory is that they commandeered the plane in order to escape after an unsuccessful conspiracy.

Although the news leaked only tardily, right after the crash, Peking canceled its annual October parade and displays, including pictures of Mao, were taken down. Notably fewer of his famous quotations were cited in the press and recently the public cult of Maoism has clearly been waning.

Mao, appearing very feeble, has been seen only once since mid-September — at the time of Emperor Haile Selassie's visit. When a Chinese delegation came to France last month, not a single member wore his customary Mao button or even once mentioned the communist chief's name.

Meanwhile an awaited People's National Assembly was not convened. Lin Piao, army commander and Mao's designated successor, has been kept from the public eye. A few days ago his picture appeared for the first time since the crash — in a magazine circulated abroad but not inside China. The army chief of staff, Gen. Huang Yung-sheng, was publicized in the same issue.

There has been rivalry between so-called leftist groups and others ever since Mao confided as much to a visitor in December, 1970. The leftists seem to have been losing power positions.

Nevertheless, Peking's agreement to receive Nixon may have revived old quarrels. There is speculation that the far left complains that China risks giving the appearance of ending its battle against materialism, abandoning its

Analyzing Campus Mood

Maybe the campuses aren't so quiet, after all.

That's the conclusion of a new report on student unrest, just released by the American Council on Education, which says a study of last year's campus protests shows the colleges weren't nearly so calm as a lot of people believe.

Results of the study, done by Alexander W. Astin and Alan E. Bayer, were reported this week in the latest issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education.

The report says that although the nation's students were "commonly characterized as being in a state of suspended animation, of apathy based on discouragement and cynicism, and of overriding calm," the "popular view is something of a caricature of the real situation."

The study says that an estimated 462 institutions of higher education (about 20% of the total) had at least one "severe protest" during the 1970-71 school year, slightly less than the estimated 524 with severe protests during '68-'69.

The Chronicle says the study was based on statistical surveys of student unrest at 425 colleges and universities.

An estimated 1,019 (or 43%) of the nation's colleges witnessed some type of protest activity last year, the study reports.

The Chronicle also says the researchers blame the mass media "for the popular misconception that last academic year was a quiet one."

They are quoted as saying "the mass media tended to ignore what was, as recently as a year ago, big news."

"Part of this tendency is no doubt attributable to the well-known fickleness of the popular press, which is always on the lookout for the newest news and, consequently quick to shelve any issue that may seem stale," the report continues.

According to The Chronicle, the report also says that the news media may have ignored

Milan Wall

Varying Points Of View

campus protests because they declined at the more popular and more prestigious institutions, "even though they have become more common at the smaller and less selective colleges and universities."

Since fewer protests centered on institutional racism, the researchers also suggest, they may not have drawn as much attention.

"It is undeniable that the 1970-71 academic year was calm compared to the preceding year, which — what with Earth Day, the Vietnam moratoria, the Cambodian crisis, and the extreme incidents at Kent and Jackson States — was, from a newsman's point of view, outstanding," the report says.

"But compared with the 1968-69 academic year, generally regarded as one in which campuses were in a state of extreme disruption, the 1970-71 academic year was only slightly more quiet."

The researchers say it is ironic that a year earlier the mass media had "overstated" the severity of unrest on the campuses.

Without seeing the ACE report itself, it would seem fair to comment that many of the observations about the current "calm" on the nation's campuses are made in direct comparison to the year '69-'70, when many campuses which previously had seen little if any protests erupted in the wake of the Cambodian incursion.

That's a comparison that is fair, at least, from the admittedly limited vantage point of Lincoln, Nebraska, where the events of May, 1970, are still imprinted in not a few memories and where headlines this year are telling of students registering to vote.

Still, a demonstration that drew several hundred at the State Capitol won attention this fall.

I don't know what the ACE researchers call "severe" when they talk about protests, but I think few of us would deny that several hundred persons lying on the steps of the Statehouse is as severe as several hundred students staging a sit-in at an ROTC building.

I'll grant the fact, too, that the media, nationally at least, may ignore or overlook individual incidents on campuses and perhaps miss important aspects of a national trend.

Nevertheless, when students are gunned down at Kent State, it's bound to make more and bigger headlines than when others boycott classes (if that is judged "severe") at a campus smeltdown elsewhere in the country.

Recent incidents seem minor in the face of the kind of campus events that culminated in the May, 1970, demonstrations, and I think that's what most of us have in mind when we compare the tenor of campus atmosphere now as opposed to "then."

(I also seem to recall that the media was criticized in the spring of 1970 for grossly overexaggerating the severity of those events, as the two ACE researchers have apparently suggested again now.)

It may well be true that we in the media are to blame both then and now, but it's also true that the media is largely a day-to-day account of what's new, judged on significance.

And I think we need to recognize that we must depend more on people like the ACE researchers, and less on newsmen, to try to ascertain what constitute "trends" in national life.

It's also true, of course, that researchers may be as wrong as anyone else, depending on the quality of their research and the soundness of their conclusions.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Prison Reforms

Fremont, Neb.

One cannot help but admire State Senator Ernie Chambers of Omaha for his courage and outstanding ability as a legislator to present the important issues and facts facing the state and nation. I know his efforts and experience in trying to get something done in the Legislature beneficial to all people must be discouraging.

There are those who call him a crack-pot to camouflage the main issues that make common sense.

I hope he will keep up the good work. He may not accomplish anything in the Legislature, but if a free press, radio and TV present both sides of the issues, a lot of people will be shaken out of the trance they are in.

I agree that the prison reforms are necessary. One wonders under what conditions bankers, lawyers, business tycoons, union leaders, etc. live — those who have embezzled thousands of dollars from the public. I would wager their living conditions in prison are 100 per cent better than for one person who perhaps stole a loaf of bread to feed his hungry family.

Welfare payments in the name of subsidies and gifts to big business would go a long way to finance prison reforms and other needed reforms.

Propaganda

Lincoln, Neb.

We read that one of the Kremlin's trio, Mr. Kosygin, in Canada said to the workers at a nuclear power station: "My country is fighting for peace."

In my opinion, he should have added: "for peace — of the cemetery."

Like the Hungarians and Czechs, other workers were aware that outside of the plants, there were demonstrations by ethnic groups of Eastern Europe. They have knowledge of the words and the reality of the Communist hell and therefore fled out of the "paradise." Only the gullible pay attention to such propaganda.

Have the Communists cancelled their plans to conquer the whole world? No.

Hanson W. Baldwin was right in saying that "they have exploited the credulity of most of mankind too long."

No Tax Funds

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with interest the letter by Marcia D. Wohlers questioning the Nebraska football team's trip to Hawaii because once again it became very evident just how poorly informed the Nebraska taxpayers really are in this era of mass communication.

Perhaps it is best for me to answer her questions in order:

How many persons are going to Hawaii at the taxpayers' expense? Answer: None.

Are all members of the team and the coaching staff going to Hawaii at the taxpayers' expense? Answer: No.

Is the football team from the University at Omaha included in this free vacation? Answer: No.

How about the administration branch at the university at Lincoln and Omaha; how many of them are going at taxpayers' expense? Answer: None.

It should come as welcome news to all Nebraskans that the University of Nebraska Athletic Department does not operate with tax funds. The entire athletic department, including salaries, equipment, operating costs and physical facilities, is financed with gate receipts and contributions from interested fans. And while it does not operate with tax funds, the athletic department is the largest purchaser of university services — meaning, it helps finance other departments of the school.

The Nebraska football team has not chartered an airliner for the Hawaii trip. In an effort toward economy, Coach-Director Bob Devaney reserved seats on the NU Alumni Charter. The Husker team group will include about 50 players, members of the football staff and athletic department administration — with expenses coming out of the athletic department funds, not tax money. They will arrive Wednesday night, spend two days practicing, play the game on Saturday and return Sunday — hardly a vacation.

As for the University of Nebraska at Omaha, there is no athletic connection — other than friendship — between the two departments. UNO operates its own program totally separate from the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers.

In Line Of Duty

Lincoln, Neb.

When I picked up The Star of Tuesday, Nov. 2, and read about the police brutality charge in the Cleveland Randolph case and the possibility that the arresting officers might be suspended for doing their duty, I couldn't believe it. A-ent the officers allowed to protect themselves in the line of doing their duty?

As a mother of students at Lincoln High when Cleveland Randolph was a student there, I would like to say that he was in many fights and threatened to "kill" his opponents. This must be a favorite phrase of his, but I certainly hope he is never able to fulfill his desire.

I would also like to add a note to "Pep-Club Mother." She must not listen to the Lincoln radio stations, as the Lincoln High football game was cancelled on October 29 and cancelled again on November 1.

Dean Bros. Bid Low On Patrol Cars

The 1972-model cars purchased for the Nebraska State Patrol — about 150 through the year — will be Fords.

Willard Wells, head of the purchasing division within the Administrative Services Dept., reported that Dean Brothers Ford of Lincoln submitted the lowest bid among 11 competitors for the patrol vehicle contract.

The low bid of Deans' was $3,675 for a large-engined Galaxie 500. That was only $2 less than the bid from Gotfredson Motor Co. for a Fury III with comparable engine, Wells said. Last year the patrol's new cruisers were Dodge Polaras.

For the second year in a row, American Motors Co. dealers were low bidders for furnishing standard state cars, Wells said.

Behlen Motors of Lincoln was lowest among 14 bidders on four-door sedans and six and nine-passenger station wagons. The respective low bids on AMC Ambassador SSTs were $2,867, $3,217 and $3,309.

American Motors Cars Omaha, submitted the low bid, $2,211, in the intermediate car class. That was for an AMC Matador.

Wells said the state's standards committee recommended that the state acquire "a reasonable number of intermediates" for agencies permitted to have new cars. Last year, he said, the state purchased only 37 new cars, exclusive of State Patrol autos.

A new twist this year is the requirement agencies prove they need such features as power brakes, radio, air conditioning and tinted glass when they requisition a 1972 vehicle, according to Wells.

Letters Are Sent To Towns Hit By Frontier Cutback

The State Aeronautics Department said Thursday letters have gone out to towns affected by a Frontier Airlines service cutback, seeking aid in the fight to restore service.

John Auer of the department said director Nicolas Smeloff has forwarded letters to the towns — Hastings, Kearney, McCook and Lincoln — asking them to contact the Nebraska congressional delegation.

Smeloff was not available for comment.

Auer said it is hoped an inquiry from the state's congressional delegation would speed up a decision by the Civil Aeronautics Board as to whether it would hold a hearing on the cutback.

The state, at the direction of Gov. J. James Exon, launched a campaign to restore one round trip daily between Omaha and Denver, which had stopped at the four other towns.

The state contends the decision by Frontier to drop the flight violates the terms of an operating certificate issued by the federal government.

Under the terms of the certificate, the state contends, Frontier agreed to offer four flights daily between Omaha and Denver. Two were to be non-stop and the other two via the four towns.

The decision to drop the one flight was appealed to the board and a decision is pending on whether a hearing would be held to determine if Frontier was guilty of any wrongdoing.

PTA Units Urged To See Program

All local PTA units from around the state are being urged to view and discuss a PTA-sponsored educational television program on children's emotional health.

The program, entitled "Yellow Summer," will be broadcast on the statewide ETV network at 9 p.m. Nov. 15, according to Mrs. Marvin Stewart, Lincoln PTA Council president.

At a local council meeting Thursday, PTA members were urged to view the program on what the association believes is an "important area," Mrs. Stewart said.

The meeting also included a presentation on "revitalizing the PTA."

Flags To Honor Lt. Col. Dutton

Gov. J. J. Exon announced Thursday that flags at the State Capitol will be flown at half staff Friday in honor of Air Force Lt. Col. Richard Dutton who has been missing in action in the Vietnam war since Nov. 5, 1967.

Beatrice To Show Rich Heritage In Museum

... SENATOR'S PIANO, WALKING PLOW ON VIEW

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Beatrice — Despite a rich heritage dating to 1857, this county-seat community has gone begging when it comes to preservation.

That's about to change this Sunday as Beatrice lifts the lid on the first real showcase in its history. This is a downtown museum established by the fledgling Gage County Historical Society.

Organized only last spring, the group already has 300 members who are hastening to make up for several decades of lost time. Even as volunteers completed exhibits this week in a former bakery, there was talk of eventually expanding to permanent quarters.

"Too many good items have gotten away from us over the years and showed up in other museums in surrounding counties," said Zoa Worden, a retired teacher who serves as the group's energetic historian. "The closest Beatrice ever came to a museum before was the collection of a Mr. Mayerhoff which was displayed for awhile at the courthouse."

Located inconspicuously on the top floor, the items had been given to the nearby Homestead National Monument upon the death of their owner. Only a few which pertained to the homestead era, however, were ever displayed again.

Senator's Piano

Miss Worden's own collections were a starting point for the new museum. Scores of other items, from tobacco cutters to walking plows to the piano of U.S. Senator Algernon S. Paddock, came in from all over the county.

A local emphasis is especially apparent in a one-room photo gallery featuring the collection of the late Clarence Gale. More than 100 enlargements portray a young Beatrice of street cars, Chautauquas and carnival-like "Venetian Nights."

"The Big Blue was alive with decorated canoes for those colorful Venetian Nights," reflected Miss Worden, who'd seen the annual festival at its peak as she began teaching here in 1915. "We even had a river excursion boat in those days, as our gallery shows."

One display of photos and newspaper articles recounts the town's romantic origin of 1857. Enroute up the Missouri river when they struck a sandbar, 14 men planned the settlement as they sat stranded for a couple days.

The town took its name from the daughter of one, Judge John F. Kinney. Although he was elected the group's first president, he settled in Nebraska City and remained there.

"Never Lived Here"

"It's interesting that the daughter who became our namesake never lived here and in fact visited the city only once," said Miss Worden. "She always insisted that the town should properly be called Be-AT-ric and that the first syllable should never be accented."

The story of the Kilpatrick, the four Beatrice brothers who made a fortune laying the Union Pacific and other railroads, is another getting museum attention. And, of course, there are pictures of late actor Robert Taylor, born Arlington Spangler Brugh in nearby Filley.

Once the museum is open and operating, there are hopes that it will continue to grow. Items from the other 15 towns in the county are especially sought.

According to Society president Dick Hovendick, the museum's open house this Sunday will be from 1 to 7 p.m. After that, the schedule calls for opening 1-5 on Sundays and 1-7 on Thursdays. The building is at 419 Court St.

Officers in addition to Hovendick and Miss Worden include Don Fitzwater, vice president; Mrs. Joe Bever, secretary; and Mrs. Leigh Coffin, treasurer.

BRIEF CRISIS ENDS . . .

Swanson Signs Welfare Checks

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer
Nebraska's welfare recipients can breathe a sigh of relief, since State Treasurer Wayne Swanson signed some $2.5 million worth of welfare checks Thursday and hurriedly sent them on their way.

Swanson authorized the payments after Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske supplied Swanson with the Appropriation and balance fund statements early Thursday.

This ended a barely one-day-old crisis involving Swanson and Lieske which threatened to grind the state's financial disbursement system to a screeching halt.

"Everything is back to normal," said Deputy Treasurer Ruth Danekas.

"The welfare checks were all signed and returned to the Department of Administrative Services to be sent out to the welfare recipients," she said.

The short-lived dispute erupted Wednesday afternoon when Swanson announced that DAS has not supplied his office with balance sheets and until he received the information he would no longer sign any warrants — including payrolls.

The effect of the action would have been to halt all forms of payments out of the state treasury.

Under the state's procedure, payment warrants are drawn up along with balance statements and sent to the treasurer for approval who returns them to DAS for dissemination.

"You can't be responsible for all this money and not know if an agency has anything to spend when you write the check," Swanson said.

"And I'm the one responsible in the end if something is wrong. Just as long as I get that information, there won't be any more trouble," he said.

Lieske, however, contended that Swanson was getting the information he needed and that the law which Swanson based his balk upon, has been repealed.

A check with the attorney general's office, Lieske said, indicated that Swanson had better start signing the checks or else face legal action.

Chadron Indian Sentenced To Jail—Bread And Water

Chadron — An Indian who Dawes County Court Judge Robert J. Zeman said told the court he wanted to be returned to the Nebraska penitentiary has been sentenced to 10 days in the Dawes County jail on a bread and water diet.

Judge Zeman said Edwin Iron Rope, 33, Chadron, pleaded guilty to attempting to cash a $7 no-funds check at the Favorite Bar in Chadron.

Zeman said he sentenced Iron Rope on Wednesday.

Zeman said Iron Rope was put on a bread and water diet "because he told the court he

Iron Rope was sentenced in 1970 from Box Butte County to a one to two year term in the State Penal Complex on a burglary charge. He was paroled last March.

Norfolk Woman, Struck By Truck, Dies In Hospital

Norfolk, Neb. — Miss Frances Baker, 54, of Norfolk, died Thursday in a Norfolk hospital from injuries she suffered in a truck-pedestrian accident Thursday afternoon near downtown Norfolk.

The driver of the truck was Lee Droeschner, 29, of rural Norfolk.

Police said Miss Baker was crossing the street at 12th and Norfolk at the time of the mishap.

The 1971 Nebraska road fatality toll now stands at 385 compared with 354 on Nov. 5 last year.

... PATHOLOGIST TESTIFIES IN STURM MURDER TRIAL

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln pathologist told a Lancaster District Court jury Thursday that only one of two shotgun wounds in the body of Harvey Sturm would have caused his death.

However, Dr. Larry D. Tolson said he couldn't say from the autopsy results which shot was fired first in his testimony during the second-degree murder trial of Mrs. Judy Sturm.

Mrs. Sturm, 28, is accused of shooting her sleeping husband during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 at their 2740 Arlington home, but the defense has contended she acted in fear for her life and the safety of her children.

Cause Of Death

Dr. Tolson said the larger of the two wounds located in the lower right chest region caused death because of damage to the liver and heavy bleeding.

The second wound, in the mid-chest, was relatively superficial, according to the pathologist. He said the ring-finger of the left hand, which had apparently been in the area of the larger wound, was missing and a gold wedding band was recovered from the chest cavity along with shotgun pellets.

Dr. Tolson said the fatal wound indicated the shotgun pellets entered at an angle "consistent" with a prone position of a body in bed while the smaller, midchest wound indicated perpendicular entry.

Threatened Her

Testimony by police officers regarding statement made by Mrs. Sturm following the shooting indicated her husband, Harvey, had come home about 2 a.m., in an intoxicated condition, had hit her in the mouth and stomach and threatened to strangle her with a telephone cord if she tried to call police.

Police Inspector Robert Sawdon related Mrs. Sturm told him that she had got a shotgun from the bedroom closet, after her husband had gone to bed, carried it downstairs and loaded it, and then returned upstairs and fired two shots at her sleeping husband.

Sawdon related Mrs. Sturm said she had put the shotgun to her shoulder and shot her husband. "She said he (the husband) appeared to raise up and I shot him again."

'No, She Didn't'

Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan questioned Sawdon if Mrs. Sturm might have said that the husband raised up before she fired the first shot, but the police officer said, "No, she didn't."

On cross-examination, Sawdon said Mrs. Sturm said she had shut off an alarm clock so her husband would not awake and had never indicated other than that her husband was asleep when she fired the first shot.

"Mrs. Sturm said she then ran next door and told Mrs. (Raymond) Anderson she had shot her husband and to call police," Sawdon said. "She also told the Andersons not to turn on their lights as she wasn't sure her husband was dead and he might come after her."

Died At Hospital

Other testimony indicated Harvey Sturm was unconscious when police officers arrived and died within 15 minutes after being taken to Lincoln General Hospital's emergency room.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. Jeanne Mann, a part-time police matron, said Mrs. Sturm said, "It's a sinful thing I've done tonight."

She said the remark came during otherwise casual conversation while the two were standing outside the Sturm home.

Began To Cry

Mrs. Mann said Mrs. Sturm "appeared very calm" except when relating to Inspector Sawdon how Harvey Sturm had jerked the telephone from the wall and threatened to strangle her with the telephone cord if she called the police. "At that point," she said, "Mrs. Sturm began to cry."

Police Detective Earl Franklin testified the shotgun, with one spent shell lodged in the chamber, and a second on the floor, was recovered between the bedroom door and the foot of the bed.

The officer also demonstrated to the jury the normal procedure for loading and firing the 12-gauge pump-action shotgun.

Mrs. Sturm, according to prosecution testimony, learned to load and shoot a shotgun while pheasant hunting.

Dynamite Was Prank Near Elkhorn School

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas County sheriff's deputies said Thursday dynamite found near the Elkhorn High School was part of a Halloween trick that didn't come off.

Two Elkhorn students, each 17, were referred to Juvenile Court and released to their parents in connection with the placement of the dynamite in a field near the school.

Leroy Parrish, a deputy sheriff, said the youths told him they placed seven sticks of ditching dynamite in the field Sunday night and lit the fuse "as a prank" but the fuse went out.

An eighth grade student found the dynamite during halftime of the school's football game Tuesday night.

Southeast High To Hold Day For Foreign Students

The Lincoln Southeast Student Council will sponsor International Day Friday for foreign exchange students.

The American Field Service representatives from 32 countries will speak to several classes and hold question-and-answer periods.

A special assembly on international affairs will be held to introduce the exchange students and explain the American Field Service Program.

The Lincoln Southeast Key Club will climax International Day with its annual carnival. All proceeds from activity booths will be donated to the American Field Service.

Refreshments will be at 6:30 p.m. and activities will be from 7:00 to 11:00 p.m. Admission is 25 cents and the public is invited.

The dynamite belongs to the father of one of the youths, Parrish said.

He said he and another deputy talked to several Elkhorn students and learned four to six other students were in on the prank but did not help place the dynamite in the field or assist in lighting it.

2 Reservations To Get Grants, Thone Reports

Washington — A federal grant to help attract industrial plants to the Winnebago and Santee-Sioux Indian Reservations in Nebraska was announced Thursday by Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb.

The Nebraska Indian Inter-Tribal Development Corp. will provide $11,000 to supplement $42,690 in federal funds for the program.

The corporation proposes to provide sites for industrial plants, along with buildings, equipment and employee recruiting and training at both reservations, Thone said.

Mayor Urged To Seek Federal Approval Of GM Bus Bid

Friday, Nov. 5, 1971 The Lincoln Star 7

The Lincoln Transportation System Board reviewed the up-in-the-air status of the city's new bus fleet Thursday and urged Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf to seek top-echelon federal approval of General Motors Corp. as the "responsible low bidder" on providing 36 new coaches.

"We have been totally unsuccessful with the Department of Transportation" to this date, City Atty. Richard Wood said.

The city contends that General Motors submitted the lowest bid on the new coaches if high-mileage tires are included in the specifications. However, the Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA), an arm of DOT, advised the city to accept the bid of The Flexible Co., Loudonville, Ohio, which was figured using smaller-sized tires.

The city points out that if high-mileage tires of the same size are figured in both bids, General Motors' bid would be lower than Flexible's by some $1,500. And Wood said he believes state law will uphold Lincoln's position based on the content of the city's written bid specifications.

Transportation board members urged Mayor Schwartzkopf to meet with top level UMTA officials in Washington at the earliest opportunity to seek a reversal of the earlier decision.

Only if unsuccessful in that effort, the board advised the mayor, should the city ask for authority to reject both bids in hand and call for new ones, specifying the higher-standard components and a six-month delivery date.

UMTA approval is necessary because federal funds are underwriting the purchase.

As the situation now stands, Flexible has indicated a June, 1972, delivery date if it nails down the contract. GM can make delivery by Feb. 29 of next year, but if bids are re-advertised, its delivery would be pushed back to mid-April or May.

Extensive delay in unraveling the bidding knot would further jeopardize an early delivery.

Meeting for the first time since it was created by City Council ordinance last month, the advisory board elected Bob Campbell chairman and Mrs. Jan Gauger as vice chairman and initiated work on developing goals for a revitalized bus transportation system.

As part of the total transportation picture, the board heard a proposal to make use of available funds under the Lincoln Area-wide Project on Aging to finance discounted bus rides for all Lincoln senior citizens.

The area-wide project on aging, which the city operates through a contractual arrangement with the Nebraska Commission on Aging, could make some $30,000 available for this purpose during the first six months of next year with an appropriate increase in support during ensuing years.

Jim Zietlow, project coordinator, noted that the proposal would reduce the present 30-cent fare to 10 cents for the elderly. Of the 20-cent reduction, funds from the commission on aging would finance three-fourths, or 15 cents. The city would make up the additional 5-cent subsidy. The arrangement would finance 200,000 rides.

A tandem proposal would utilize county matching funds and city in-kind services to provide door-to-door, escorted minibus transportation for older persons who need such services in order to maintain independent living.

Tuesday, the Lancaster County Commissioners allocated $4,500 for County participation in the joint project.

The transportation board Thursday tabled action on both plans, but promised further consideration at a second November meeting scheduled for the 18th.

Mrs. Gauger was assigned to work with the project coordinator in detailing rate reduction alternatives that would be acceptable to the city.

The project on Aging application for federal funds faces a Nov. 27th deadline for submission.

The city-county minibus plan won the unofficial approval of most board members.

A majority, however, seemed hesitant to recommend a built-in rate change this early in the system's operation. Several questioned whether all elderly persons were of sufficient need to benefit from a reduced fare.

Education Official 'Not Opponent' Of Parochial Schools

"I am not an opponent of private and parochial schools, but rather a proponent of the Constitution, referenda of the people and statutes of the Legislature," John E. Lynch, executive director of the Nebraska State Education Assn., said Thursday.

His comment came in a talk entitled "Tax Funds for Non-Public Schools — No," before the Lincoln Sertoma Club, which next week will hear Paul O'Hara of the Nebraska Catholic Conference discuss the opposite position.

The "establishment clause" says that "Congress can make no law respecting an establishment of religion..." while the 14th Amendment holds that Congress "cannot make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges of citizens..." Lynch said.

He agreed with Thomas Jefferson that it is "sinful and tyrannical" for a man to provide money for causes he does not believe in.

Many Cases

There have been many cases brought before the U.S. Supreme Court in an attempt to "get around" the 1st and 14th Amendments, according to Lynch.

He said that in these cases the Supreme Court has reaffirmed the constitutionality of health services to non-public school students, bus transportation and the loan of textbooks.

But he cited the U.S. Supreme Court's recent rulings knocking down public financial aid to private school systems in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania for "excessive entanglement between government and religion."

Lynch said it would "be impossible to have a government censor in every classroom to see if government taxes are used properly."

Although state funds were secured for teaching of secular subjects in parochial schools in such cases, Lynch said, surveillance would be necessary, as "curriculum descriptions can be misleading."

Constitution 'Restrictive'

Lynch said Nebraska has one of the "most restrictive" sections in its Constitution on appropriating state funds to any institution which is not directly owned or directed by the state.

Lynch added that the Nebraska Constitution provides for free education in the common schools and this "precludes legislation for providing funds for non-common (parochial and private schools.) schools."

Lynch cited two proposed amendments concerning busing for non-public school pupils and direct grants to non-public schools, both of which were rejected by the people in public referenda.

He also said a Gallup poll taken four years ago showed 60% of the Nebraskans polled were directly against the allocation of public funds.

'Youth Appreciation Week' Events Scheduled By Local Optimist Clubs

A "youth appreciation week" sponsored by Lincoln Optimist Clubs gets under way Monday and ends next Sunday with an event honoring some 200 outstanding youths in the community.

Also on Monday, winners of an essay contest on the topic, "what's right about our country," will be announced. Those winners and their parents will be honored at a banquet on Nov. 14 at the Congress Inn.

The appreciation week began as a project of the West Lincoln Optimists and has since spread to other clubs throughout the city.

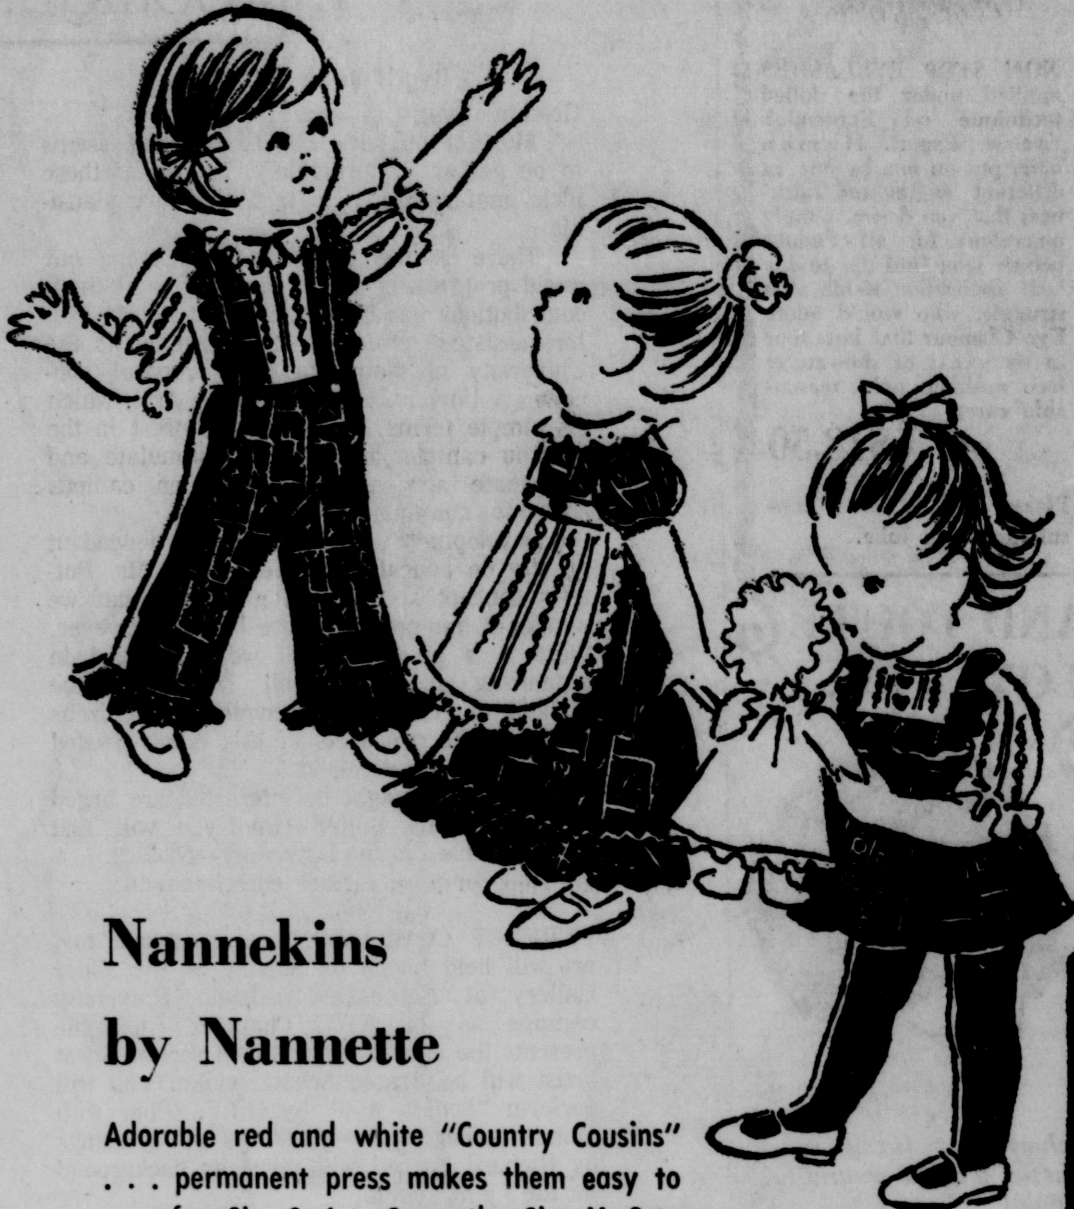

The week's events include:

- an information session on military service for teenage boys and girls and their parents at 8 p.m. at General Arnold School in Lincoln Air Park.
- a penitentiary inmate presentation on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at General Arnold.
- a Nebraska State Patrol presentation on drug abuse at 7 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday at General Arnold.
- The Optimists are urging senior high students and parents to attend Wednesday, junior high on Thursday.
- a display for smaller children of law enforcement and fire equipment at General Arnold at 7 p.m. Friday.
- an "auto rodeo" at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the State Patrol Training center in the Air Park for youngsters 16 to 18 and a Boy Scout camp site contest at the same time near the old Huskerville housing area.
- awarding of certificates to outstanding youth at 3 p.m. Sunday at General Arnold, followed by the 7 p.m. banquet for essay winners.

Our Town

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

Most of us have flashes of what seems to be genius. Unfortunately, not all of these ideas materialize, if in fact, they are plausible.

There is the exception that keeps our world progressing and changing. One of these contributions has been offered by Nelson Potter, assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Nebraska. His proposal conceives a University Council of the Arts, which (in simple terms) would spur interest in the arts on campus and serve to stimulate and coordinate arts activities, both on campus and in the community.

Development of the arts is dependant greatly on education and exposure. Mr. Potter's concept seems such a natural that we wonder it has not been done before. However, there is a great deal of work involved in organizing such a Council. With assistance of both the campus community and citizens at large, the prospects of this much needed organization are excellent.

Those who might be interested are urged to contact Mr. Potter (who you will find quite amiable), at the University—472-2428.

Now for your further entertainment:

PERFECT COMPANIONS . . . music and art will hold hands on Sunday at the Elder Gallery at Nebraska Wesleyan University campus as the NWU Chamber Ensemble presents the second concert in a series. Guest artist will be Arnold Schatz, violin, who will perform "Sonata A 3" by H.I.F. Biber with Morris Collier, violin. Paintings and drawings by Richard Terrell will serve as background for the 3 p.m. recital.

CHARMING AUTHENTICITY . . . four outstanding talents, the Early Music Quartet will open the season of The Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music tonight at 8 o'clock. The group has received marvelous reviews and is said to make 13th, 14th and 15th century music come alive. Tickets are still available at Sheldon Art Gallery, where the concert is held.

NEW PIN-UPS . . . Sheldon Art Gallery will open an exhibit of graphic design on Tuesday, Nov. 9. Each week the gallery receives a poster or so, and in addition to historic posters which have been purchased, the total collection reveals a capsule history from the art nouveau 1890's to the swinging '70's.

COMBINED TALENTS . . . contemporary American and classic European composers will be presented on Sunday at 8 p.m. in the University of Nebraska's Symphony Orchestra opening concert. Conducted by Prof.
Emanuel Wishnow, the program will feature everything from "The School for Scandal" by Samuel Barber, to works by Tchaikovsky and Grieg. The concert will be presented at Kimball Recital Hall, 11th and R.

LINCOLN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CUR-TAIN CALL . . . will play in concert on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9 at the Stuart Theatre.
Leo Kopp will conduct the program.

. . . LAST CHANCE . . . to see Jean Genet's moving drama, "The Balcony" on Friday and

TOWN TALK

It's a busy weekend—and that statement won't come as surprising news to anyone.
You might say that Saturday will be divided into three parts—morning and pre-game brunches — afternoon game — and evening —dining and dancing all around the town.

Speaking of the pre-game affairs—We found another one that is just a bit different.
We hear that the Kappa Delta Mothers Club is having a pre-game luncheon at the chapter house from 11 o'clock until 1 o'clock.

Some of those dinner dances we mentioned have been planned by dancing clubs, and one of them is the Terpsichorean Club party in the Terrace Room at Hotel Lincoln. If anyone is taking it for granted that the party theme will have to do with football, perish the thought. The Terpsichorean committee has chosen to use "Harvest Festival" as its theme.

Arranging the dinner dance is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Ault and Mr. and Mrs. Vance James.

Guests at the party will include Mrs.
Charles Yunblut and Mr. and Mrs. Robert
Wallace, all of Scottsbluff.

Over at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel on Saturday evening the members of the Saturday Nite Club will be making merry at a "Mr. Football" party. It is a dinner dance, of course, and committee honors go to Mr. and Mrs. Dean Cooper, chairman;
Mr. and Mrs. Dean Sterner, Dr. and Mrs.
Rudolph J. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. John
Grasmick, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lind.

Guest couples at the dinner dance will be Mr. and Mrs. William Riley of Hickman;
Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brinkman of Atkinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Ostberg of Monroe, Ala., formerly of Lincoln.

Since the last time we talked about the Saturday Nite Club some new names have been added to the club roster — two new member couples are Mr. and Mrs. John Grasmick and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones.

MISS ELIZABETH HINES

Campus circles will have a special interest this morning in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. Hines of Benkelman, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Susan, to James L. Carse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon B. Carse of Palisade.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Jan. 8, and the ceremony will be solemnized in Benkelman.

Miss Hines is a junior in the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry where she is majoring in dental hygiene. She is a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Mr. Carse is a senior in the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration, and his fraternity is Theta Xi.

Courtesies For Bride-Elect

Entertaining in pre-nuptial courtesy Friday evening, Nov. 5, to their son, Loren Vyhnaek, and his fiancée, Miss Judy

Halling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Halling, whose marriage will be solemnized on Saturday Nov. 6. Mr. and Mrs.

Milo Vyhnaek of Dorchester will be host and hostess at a dinner to be held at the Colonial Inn.

The guests will include members of the families and of the bridal party.

Miss Halling was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower on Saturday evening, Oct. 30. Hostesses for the party, held at Union Loan and Savings, were Mrs. Warren Geiger and her daughter, Claire, and Mrs. Gerald Halling of Waverly.

The popular soon-to-be bride was presented with a linen shower on Friday evening, Oct. 22, when a group of guests gathered at the City National Bank in Crete for the party. Hostesses included Mrs. Frank Bosak, Mrs. Edward Busboom, Mrs. Stanley Fink, Mrs. Clair Green, Mrs. Albert Hrdlicka, Mrs. Harry Kahle, Mrs. Charles Prokop, Mrs. J. T. Shaw, Mrs. Harvey Wagner, Mrs. Robert Bullock, Mrs. John Springer, and Mrs. Elmer Zajick, all of Dorchester.

Wedding Of Interest

Announcement is made this morning of the marriage of Priscilla Eiche Grosshans, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dee Eiche, to S.Sgt. Edmund F. Rech, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Rech of rural David City, which was solemnized at high noon on Thursday, Oct. 28, in Las Vegas, Nev.

For the ceremony the bride wore a sheath dress of blue brocade in daytime length, with a matching coat of the brocade. She carried an heirloom Czech prayer book ornamented with lilies of the valley and blue satin streamers. She wore a cluster of lilies of the valley in her hair.

The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, and is a former member of the Lincoln Junior League.

S.Sgt. Rech is attached to the Headquarters Detachment of the Nebraska National Guard.

1. Win the club with the ace, play a heart and finesse the queen.

If it loses to the king, ruff the probable club return, play a spade to the king and a spade back, planning to finesse. This sequence of plays will make the contract if South has the doubleton or tripleton queen of spades.

If the heart finesse at trick two succeeds, you are faced with an altogether different problem. Since you now have no potential losers outside of trumps, you should bend every effort to avoid losing more than one trump trick.

Accordingly, at trick three, you play a low spade to the ace and, if both opponents follow suit, you are home. Continue with a low spade and, if North follows low, insert the nine as a safety measure to cover the possibility of his having started with the Q-10-x-x.

If North follows suit with the ten or queen at trick four, you win with the king and easily make the slam, while if North shows out on the second trump lead, you go up with the king and return the nine towards the trump loser.

The heart finesse is taken at trick two — before tackling trumps — in order to be in a position to discover the best way of handling the trumps.

2. Win the spade with the queen and cash the A-K-J, discarding two diamonds from dummy. Then play a diamond towards dummy, finessing the nine. When South wins with the queen or king, he is bound to hand you the twelfth trick regardless of which suit he elects to return. He is endplayed in three suits.

Annual Luncheon

A red-letter date on the social calendars of members of the Lincoln Woman's Club is Monday, Nov. 8 — the day that has been set aside for one of the organization's very special annual events.

On that particular afternoon, the club's members will gather for a birthday luncheon to be held at the University Club. The festivities will begin at 12:30 o'clock, and the guests of honor will include former Lincoln Woman's Club presidents.

Also on hand for the annual event will be a number of officers of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs.

Included on the afternoon's

agenda will be a talk presented by guest speaker, Roger M. Thomas. Mr. Thomas, who is associated with KOLN-KGIN-TV, will speak on the topic, "Something Different."

Club members who are interested in attending the annual celebration are asked to contact Mrs. Harry Hust, 488-1931. Reservations should be made by Friday evening, Nov. 5.

on a tour of the Lincoln shops

Winter is at our feet without a doubt. It will only be a matter of a few brief weeks and it will be difficult to remember that summer ever was here. If you have not as yet completed your supply of warm outer wear, you will be interested to follow our shopping tour this week and see what is available for the woman of the house, as well as the little boy and girl.

We also stopped in at a new shop that has recently opened. It is a new place to stop when you are looking for that special gift.

AT THE UNIQUE

The new gift shop has been open a mere week, and it is located in a corner of Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker.

The boutique specializes in handmade items, including imports, American products, and local consignments.

In The Unique, we found glass ware, hand carved items, ceramics, candles, and much, much more.

We were fascinated by the unusual carved lamp from India and the bedspreads from Spain, Taiwan, and Italy. They are made of velvets, brocades, and silks. Velvet also is used in the interesting Mexican paintings.

The candles are made locally and are truly unique, — they have attractive artificial flowers built right in, and they come in a multitude of colors.

The ceramics, from South Dakota and Lincoln, are all quite unusual, and we particularly liked the Christmas section with ceramics and candles — one ceramic set depicts the Nativity Scene.

Also in the shop are tablecloths from Spain, unusual hanging lights, tile trivets, ashtrays, and even hand made furniture — including a secretary which is antiqued red and white!

AT BRANDEIS

Little girls and boys will be as warm as toast when they add hats, gloves and scarves to their winter outer wear.

In the boys' department we found many stocking caps. Among the newer head wear is a knit stocking cap that not only will fit down over the forehead, but also covers the entire head in the back. This helmet look is completed with a knit strap that wraps under the chin and buttons. Available in gold, navy or red, the caps have figures of a cartoon character in the pattern.

But there are many other stocking caps to gaze upon, and they are in solid colors of brown, black and blue with colorful geometric prints.

For those little hands, the ski motif is most popular for both boys and girls. Knit mittens are colorfully decorated. Some of the mittens feature imitation leather palms.

Boys will be boys, and when the snow comes he will want to be outdoors in the midst of it. One pair of mittens designed with this activity in mind foam on the outside, and insulated on the inside. They are also waterproof. These mittens are available in brown with red trim, black with white trim and blue with red trim.

In the girls' department we found that tams and scarves, much like mommy's, are the hottest item this year. They come in matching patterns, and some have gloves or mittens to match.

Stripes are very popular in these items, and we found combinations of red and blue, brown and beige, and green and white. One of the newer looks is the tweed knit, and there are matching tams and scarves in a deep red and black tweed, as well as gold and black.

We were told that mittens were far more popular this year than gloves for little girls. Again, the ski design seems to be the big seller. And there are ski gloves as well of imitation leather and knit, with insulated linings.

The helmet look is also available for girls, and it appears in a knit hat with a chin strap. Fur hats, with long ties, also are available and, of course, the fur is fake.

AT MILLER & PAINE

The knitted look is really strong this year, and milady would be proud to wear any of the sets we found at Miller's. The head, neck, and hand wear for the cold winds of the winter months also will be the choice of the teens and coeds as they go to and from classes, on shopping trips or wherever.

One of the most stunning ensembles included a beret, mittens and scarf all of navy with a criss-cross pattern of blues and greens — and then there was the quite textured looking set with a billed cap, scarf, mittens, and matching purse. This outfit comes in a combination of blues, brown and rust, or red and purple.

We found a set of mittens in the rust shade that give the impression that they lace up the hand. There is a beret to match.

The slouch hats are in vogue this season and one was fashioned of chocolate brown with a wide beige stripe. The tasseled hat has gloves to match. Other color combinations of this particular style are black and white and red and navy.

Stars and stripes are featured on the billed cap with matching scarf we found at Miller's—and then there is the popcorn knit which seems to be here to stay. This textured look comes in all shades and is used for mittens, all styles of hats, and scarves.

Another 'new' in the head gear line is the helmet. These head-hugging caps have chin straps, and there once again are matching mittens in a multitude of shades.

For the more sophisticated, we found a set, including a banded hat, gloves and scarf, of a double knit material with a striking print of brown and beige on a white background.

Abby: she must own shop

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have had the same hairdresser for years. She does nice work and I had always looked forward to my weekly appointment.

Unfortunately, someone gave her a small portable television for a gift. She then started bringing it to work so she could watch a program on her lunch time. Fine. Soon she started to watch the program which followed it. Then the next. And the next. Until now she's got it on all afternoon.

I am not only speaking for myself because other customers have told me that since she's had the TV set in her booth her work is slipping. Also, she is very unpleasant and cranky. If someone speaks to her, she goes, "Shhhhh, I want to her this."

She is a faithful reader of your column. How can I let her know I miss her formerly friendly chit chat?

DEAR ABBY: May I have the last word about the policy one church had of allowing the preacher exactly one hour in which to deliver his sermon, and if he talked longer, he would be automatically "drowned out" by chimes?

In my opinion, the world has enough Saturday and Sunday Christians, and could certainly use more who practice their religion seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

If I want to pray, I don't want to wait until Saturday or Sunday. It might be too late then.

J.J.O., WAUKEEN, ILL.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

UNHAPPY
DEAR UNHAPPY: After this hits print, you may not have to. (P.S. She must own her own shop. I can't imagine the boss putting up with this.)

Council On Student Life Approves Change In Activities Requirements

The Council on Student Life (CSL) at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln decided in an 8 to 6 vote Thursday night to allow all regularly registered students of the university to participate in extracurricular activities.

This action nullifies the previous requirement of registering for 12 hours of classes before a student could hold an elective office, participate on committees and other such activities.

The amendment provides for the right of organizations to set the requirements for their members even though the overall requirement would be for a student to register for only a one hour class.

A few members of the group were not in favor of dropping the 12 hour requirement because they felt students with extremely light class loads would not truly represent their constituent students.

But another council member countered this with the argument that even if a student registers for only one hour he still must pay for the Daily

Nebraskan, the student union, ASUN and other such services; and he should be able to participate in the redistribution of his fees.

Dr. Sam Treves, chairman of the faculty senate committee on committees, said that he was concerned with the removal of the 12 hour rule because of students appointed to faculty senate committees. He said that the faculty senate has in the past been going on the assumption that all students on their committees would be registered for 12 hours.

The group pointed out to Dr. Treves that the ability of the faculty senate to control the students in its committees would still be available within the new amendment.

CSL chairman, Dr. Frank Eldridge, said that the decision would be sent to Interim Chancellor, C. Peter Magrath, who will review it and make a decision as to whether it is to go into effect as it is or whether it should be forwarded to the Board of Regents for further consideration.

Funeral Services Monday For Dr. E. C. Mueller, 85

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at Trinity Lutheran Church, 12th & H, for Dr. E. Charles Mueller, 85, of San Antonio, Tex., who died Tuesday.

Dr. Mueller was born near Columbus and graduated from Concordia Teachers College at Seward in 1907. He received a BA degree from the University of Nebraska in 1923.

He moved to San Antonio in 1963 and was a member of Concordia Lutheran Church there.

Survivors include his wife, Martha L.; sons, Col. W. M. of San Antonio, Roland E. of Anaheim, Calif. and E. Charles Jr. of Palos Verdes, Calif.; daughter, Mrs. Cleo T. (Marcella) Wells of Deadwood, S.D.; brothers, Louis C. of Shelby, Hugo of Santa Clara, Calif. and Herbert of Bellflower, Calif.; sister, Mrs. Richard Wendt of Bell, Calif.; 11 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Britain's Psychiatrists Driven To Breakdowns

London (AP) — Many of Britain's hospital psychiatrists are being driven to nervous breakdowns because of overwork and strain, according to a report presented to the National Association of Mental Health.

Conference On Power Use Set By Agricultural Council

A power use conference related to the problems of providing power to the proposed expansion of the state's irrigation facilities has been called under the auspices of the Nebraska Agricultural Council for Wednesday Nov. 10 at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln.

The council has invited representatives of industries that supply fuel or power to the irrigators. These include electricity, liquid petroleum, natural gas and propane. A representative of the power review board has also been invited.

"We have been asked to expand irrigation but we need to be sure the energy is available to pump the water and operate the systems and we need to know what it will cost. There are shortages of some power sources for irrigation already reported in the state," said Ray Ratliff chairman of the council.

Employees Say Donations Asked For Douglas Clerk

Omaha (AP) — Some employees of County Clerk Lloyd Kilmer say they have been asked to donate 2 1/2 to 3% of their salaries to help elect him but Kilmer disclaimed any knowledge of the requests.

Commissioner Jerry Hassett, said he has received calls from six of Kilmer's employees who complained of the request.

The Omaha World Herald said a reporter spoke with four Kilmer employees who said they had been asked to donate, but asked not to be named.

Kilmer is a Republican,

Hassett a Democrat.

The employees said the requests were not made by Kilmer, himself, but by "supervisors" in the clerk's office and they said they were told Kilmer was not connected with the solicitations.

Kilmer said he was vacationing in the Ozarks last week and knew nothing about meetings where the requests were reported to have been made.

"We don't permit any solicitations in this office," Kilmer said.

Vandals Break More Windows With Slingshots

Another rash of damaged windows apparently by vandals using slingshots was reported Thursday by police.

Police said the windows of four residences, a dairy store and a parked car were reported hit by small metal objects apparently propelled by slingshots.

Additionally, a stained glass window in the Second Baptist Church at 525 No. 58th was hit, but the extent of damage was not immediately estimated.

Estimated damage to the other windows, including several thermal and plate-glass windows, was in excess of $400.

Two plate glass windows at Robin Mickle Junior High, valued at $100, were also damaged, but apparently by a BB or pellet gun, according to police.

Scholarship Students Ordered To Cut Hair

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Long-haired male students on government scholarships have been told "stern action" will be taken against them if they don't get haircuts, a government official said.

Bowling Alley, Supper Club Closed Pending Court Action

Tony's Ranch Bowl and the El Rancho Supper Club in Emerald will remain closed until at least early December, manager Robert D. Hays said Thursday.

The club, which is leased by B & H Inc., headed by Hays, closed Oct. 27 under a federal lien for unpaid Social Security taxes, but the lien was removed last week.

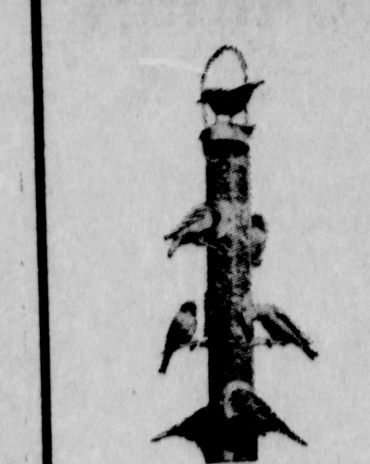

Hays said the club will remain closed however until litigation pending in Lancaster District Court is settled, which he said was unlikely before early December.

Court records indicate a foreclosure action brought by The Commonwealth Co. against Santo V. (Tony) Quattrocchi, a former owner and operator of the club, two dissolved El Rancho corporations, the B & H corporation as present leaseholder of the club property and equipment, and several other individuals.

B & H took over the club and bowling alley operation last April, according to Hays.

VA Includes Questionnaire To Determine Entitlement

A questionnaire determining whether 8,000 Nebraska veterans, widows, orphans and parents receiving benefit payments from the Veterans Administration are entitled to continued benefits will be included with their November benefit check.

Over 38,000 Nebraska claimants are receiving payments totaling over $3,250,000 monthly, according to an announcement received by the Lancaster County Veteran's Service Officer, Denzel Dawson.

The announcement said that continued entitlement to these benefits will in many cases depend upon the amount of the claimant's income.

Dawson said that the questionnaires must be properly completed and returned to the VA no later than Jan. 15, 1972; otherwise the January check will not be released.

Open Weekdays 8 to 5:30. Closed Sundays.

These are the best of all possible days in Madrid. Warm and pleasant. Sidewalk cafe weather on the Gran Via, one of the world's finest shopping streets.

In the fine morning, we give the doorman at the Palace Hotel five pesetas — a "duro" — to whistle up a cab. And so to a cafe along the avenue. To have a coffee and check the passing action.

It's the only way to go.

A string of cafeterias called "Manila" has opened since I was here last. They are for the homesick American. Tired of paella and Spanish clams, baby eels and the burnt custard called "flan."

The Manilas feature roast beef sandwiches. Hamburgers and Mom's apple pie.

The Wimpy — thanks be — has not yet hit Spain. The Wimpy is a hamburger — European style. It's a chain. Worse imitation hamburgers you have never eaten.

In London where they started, they are patted flat and fried hard in lard. Wimpies are sold along with an ersatz milk shake called a "Whipsie."

We were having a drink in the Palace bar. It's famous. All the great people of Europe and those who come to Europe have a drink in the Palace bar.

It's an elegant place: Black marble floors. Gold oriental carvings. Rich brown leather seats. Red-jacketed waiters serve you, and the bartenders pour with a loose wrist.

A Hollywood producer was talking: "The Wimpy was taken from England to France by a man I know who couldn't make a dime in the motion picture business. It was an immediate success."

"Why? God knows. You'd think the French, with their insistence on good French food, would have thrown the man in jail for bringing such stuff into France."

"But they adored it. He then proceeded to take the Wimpy to Italy. He destroyed Rome. They preferred Wimpies to pasta. Viva!"

The waiter brought us little plates of salted Spanish almonds and green olives. Service in the Palace — and in its more social sister, the Ritz — is excellent.

Both are run by Alfonso Font, probably the best known hotelier in Europe. Font came in and joined us and the producer said: "Mind you this fellow has been a complete failure in making movies, selling movies, producing, what have you. He could lose money on 'The Stewardesses' — that crazy thing that's now topping all pictures for income."

"Anyway, he has now ruined Rome with Wimpies. He now employs five Italian pizza chefs. He takes them to Germany and opens a string of pizza parlors."

"Infant success! The Germans go mad for pizza. He is now building a three-story pizza parlor in Munich for the Olympics. Or whatever it is they're having there."

Font said the jet airplane and the tourist crush had changed customs all over Europe.

"The Spanish dinner hour has been moved up from 11 p.m. to 9 o'clock. Not for the Spanish — we still eat at the late hour. The restaurants and hotels had to open earlier for the Americans. They insist on earlier dinners."

"The Manilas, the hamburgers, all are new to Europe."

On the Gran Via there's a little standup shop labeled: "Perros Calientes." That's hog dogs, Senor. Que lastima!

Wonderful days in Madrid! The sun shines. The sky is blue. The paella is not like what Mother used to make. It's a lot better.

Plenty of traffic. But not the crushing, noisy traffic of Paris and Athens. Madrilenos do a lot of walking. They have nice places to do it. Tree-lined boulevards. Splashing fountains.

So to Valentin's for melon and Serrano ham and Spanish wine. Living it up. For tomorrow we may have to eat hamburgers.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Friday

The late Pulitzer Prize-winning science fiction writer, John J. O'Neill, declared that astrologers who consistently attack astrology show definite symptoms of "professional paranoia."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You make up with relatives, neighbors. Differences can be settled. Your twin allies now are humor and versatility. Avoid obstinacy. Those in positions of authority are willing to listen.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can successfully complete important transactions. Efforts show a profit. Key is willingness to invest in your own ideas, abilities. Collect what you need. Be observant, alert.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take initiative. Make new starts. Stress greater independence. Personal magnetism is in vogue. Opposite sex is attracted. You can get almost anything you request. Be selective. Choose quality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Use imagination in constructive manner. Avoid brooding. Stop thinking about what might have been. Look to future. It is brighter than might be imagined. Follow through on pet project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social activity is emphasized. Turn on charm. Business, personal proposals deserve to be evaluated. Don't pass up opportunity. Sagittarius individual could play prominent role. Be receptive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be thorough in checking details. What appears minor could be important for you. Some apparent restraints will ultimately prove beneficial. Get rid of outmoded concepts. Build on solid base.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accident on journey. Higher education, future travels and vacation plans. Be in touch with relatives at a distance. Define terms. Be consistent. Be ready for change of scenery. Welcome challenge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Discuss inventory, financial plans with mate, business associate. Harmonize efforts. Release conciliatory gesture to family member. Domestic adjustment is due. Beautify surroundings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Deflect final judgment. Wait and see. Emphasis is on public relations, how you meet opposition. Mate or partner play prominent role. Some puzzle pieces remain out of place. Take your time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid extremes. Moderate approach now brings best results. Act accordingly. Accent on health, work, ability to complete basic chores. Aid forthcoming from one you helped in past. Show gratitude.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative efforts succeed. Do things your own way. Adhere to individual style. Dealing with children accepted. Young ideas dominate. Recognition comes from surprise source. Aries is involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Practical issues dominate. You are able to put across views. Be original rather than attempting to follow crowd. Cooperate with Leo individual. Fine for entertaining at home. Show off hobby.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, vital, capable of creating original concepts. Members of opposite sex find you attractive. You are recovering from recent setback. And you will come back stronger than ever. Before the end of November, you will be rid of emotional burden.

Playing One At A Time

One of the things you've got to admire most about this Nebraska football team is their dedication to taking care of the business at hand.

So far at least, they have refused to be caught up in the fever that has hit fans and writers about the Thanksgiving Day thing.

As far back as the Kansas game, the fever was running high among NU fans, not for the Kansas game but for the Oklahoma game which was six weeks away.

"Hardly anyone knows we're coming to town," KU sports information director Jay Simon remarked after a tour of some Lincoln coffee houses. "All your fans are talking about is Oklahoma."

Jay and the Jayhawks discovered that Saturday that while the fans might have been thinking of Oklahoma, the Husker players and coaches were thinking of Kansas and proved it with a 55-0 victory.

It's been that way every week since then and some of those Husker victims surely must wish the NU gridders would look ahead just a little.

"We've had no problem with looking past an opponent yet," NU head coach Bob Devaney points out. "And this is no week to start."

Some folks may consider the one-at-a-time theme an old cliché, but the Huskers have used it well.

Several teams apparently got caught looking ahead last week or maybe it was the prognosticator who was looking ahead. Whatever the reason, the mark was only 35-17 for a percentage of .673, dropping the season record to 294-113-4 for a percentage of .720. This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 35, Iowa State 3 . . . With Reggie to shut out you've got to stop them farther out than you do most teams.

OKLAHOMA 45, Missouri 7 . . . It's going to take people to stop the wishbone-T and Missouri, along with most folks, doesn't have the right kind of people.

COLORADO 38, Kansas 21 . . . The Buffs can't compete with Nebraska and Oklahoma, but they're better than anyone else in the Big Eight and than most teams in any other league you'd care to name.

OKLAHOMA STATE 21, Kansas State 14 . . . The Wildcats got their league win last week. That's it for them this year.

The Top Ten

MICHIGAN 41, Iowa 0 . . . You talk about not being tested. Well, at least, Iowa enjoyed a one-game winning streak.

ALABAMA 28, LSU 17 . . . This is the one the Tigers were playing last week when they got upset by Mississippi. They should have paid more attention to Ole Miss and they might have come out of the two-week set with a 1-1 instead of a 0-2 record.

AUBURN 42, Mississippi State 7 . . . Auburn can afford to look past this one to Georgia next week.

GEORGIA 35, Florida 7 . . . The Bulldogs better not be looking ahead to Auburn.

NOTRE DAME 28, Pittsburgh 0 . . . The Fighting Irish are still very much in the bowl picture, not because of their less-than-great team but because of their national following.

OHIO STATE 27, Michigan State 21 . . . If you like upsets, you might pick the Spartans in this one.

The East

ARMY over Rutgers . . . COLGATE over Bucknell . . . DARTMOUTH over Columbia . . . CORNELL over Brown . . . PRINCETON over Harvard . . . SYRACUSE over Boston College . . . VILLANOVA over Boston U . . . PENN over Yale.

The South

MIAMI, FLA. over North Carolina State . . . DUKE over West Virginia . . . GEORGIA TECH over Navy . . . HOUSTON over Memphis State . . . NORTH CAROLINA over Clemson . . . RICHMOND over The Citadel . . . SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI over VMI . . . MISSISSIPPI over Tampa . . . TENNESSEE over South Carolina . . . TULANE over Ohio . . . KENTUCKY over Vanderbilt . . . ### —EXPERIENCE SHOWING IN DRILLS—

Husker Cage Boss Cipriano Pleased With Guards, Jura

After a couple of weeks of practice, Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano says his Cornhusker club is "living up to expectations — maybe even doing better than I expected."

The Huskers have experienced guards and a fine center, and naturally, those are the two spots that have impressed Joe the most.

"We are really pleased with the play of our guards so far in practice," Cipriano said. "Al Nissen and Tom Gregory are returning veterans and are doing a good job, but they're also being pushed by letterman Randy Watts and sophomores Tom Novak and Rick Brown."

When the subject of Chuck Jura comes up, Cipriano beams.

"Another year, and all that Olympic team practice, has really helped Chuck," Joe said. "He has so much more confidence. Chuck has improved each year and he has really made big strides this year. I'm sure he'll be one of the top centers in the nation this year."

Jura spent the summer under the tutelage of Henry Iba, U.S. Olympic team coach, and made the Pan-Am alternate team which played games in the Virgin Islands and Miami.

Nebraska's basketball season will get under way Nov. 20 at the Coliseum when the 1971-72 varsity takes on the frosh in their annual curtain-raiser.

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Over a million pheasants were taken out of Nebraska fields by resident hunters last year, and game commission officials predict that the harvest this year will exceed last year's.

"We should be in pretty good shape this year," Norm Day, biologist for the game commission said when asked about this year's pheasant crop. "Our surveys show that the pheasant population is slightly above the 1970 population."

Day indicated, however, that the surveys haven't shown just how great the increase in population is, but he added that beyond some peculiarities, "We do have a fairly well-distributed population."

Day pointed out that the rainwater basin running south and west of the Platte River "looks pretty good" with Custer and Sherman counties slightly above last year.

"Actually, the panhandle shows up best in the state," Day offered. "But hunting is rather restricted out there. There is not as much freedom in the panhandle as there is in other parts of the state. It's not as general an area."

—IOWA STATE COACH CAN FIND NO CRACKS IN BLACK SHIRT DEFENSE—

Majors Calls Huskers Complete Team—In Every Way

Ames, Iowa (AP) — It's back to the defensive drawing boards for Iowa State this week in preparing to face top-ranked Nebraska.

Saturday's meeting at Lincoln comes only a week after the improving Cyclones were bruised — on the field and on the scoreboard — 43-12 by second-ranked Oklahoma at Norman.

"Nebraska is in every way the complete football team," warns Cyclone Coach Johnny Majors. "I don't see any cracks in their defense."

Majors said the main task for his 5-2 team will be to rethink his defense this week, structuring it to stop a balanced team after having to contend with Oklahoma's potent wishbone.

In the wake of the defeat by Oklahoma, Majors moaned more his team's lack of offense

The extreme southeast and northeast portions of the state are behind last year, he indicated.

"The southeast portion is part of a management area we use which makes it tough for the hunter," Day explained. "But basically, it is not a traditional pheasant area."

"In the past few years, it has become flush with pheasants, but that's starting to taper off. It isn't a typical area."

Day cited the extreme blizzards in late December and February as a cause for the decline in the northeast and southeast areas.

"The northeast area is down considerably," he said. "But I don't think this will hold. The population should rise for next year barring any unforeseen catastrophes."

The over-all picture, though, seems to be a bright one for gunners as the pheasant season shifts into gear with opening day Saturday.

"We should have a really good year," Day said. "By all counts, it should be better than last year."

SPARTANS MAUL PIUS

East Rambles 495 Total Yards

... CAMPAIGNS CONCLUDED

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Coach Lee Zentic's East High Spartans methodically dissected the Pius X defense with a balance passing and running game to record a 36-0 football victory at Seacrest Field Thursday night.

The one-sided triumph closed out a highly successful 8-1 campaign for the Spartans, who scored 345 points this season while allowing just 63.

East gained 350 yards on the ground and tacked on 145 more through the air for a 495-yard total, while holding the Thunderbolts to a combined 159 yards.

Though neither team could move the first time it had the ball, East scored on its next two possessions to run up a 14-0 first quarter advantage.

The first drive covered 80 yards in 10 plays, with a pair of 15-yard runs by sophomore Pat Lehigh and a 14-yard aerial gainer from Scott Copple to Gene Smith highlighting the march.

Jeff Putman plunged over from one yard out and Bryce Carlson added the first of three extra point boots to give the Spartans a 7-0 lead.

Taking over on its own 40 six plays later following a short Pius punt, the Spartans needed just four plays to tally again.

After Copple pitched a pass to Smith for 12 yards, Putman broke off tackle and scampered 43-yards to paydirt.

Just before halftime East upped the bulge to 17-0 on a 25-yard Carlson field goal.

The Spartans widened the margin some more with a pair of third quarter touchdowns. They took the second-half kickoff and marched 76 yards. Putman got his third TD of the night from four yards out to climax the 12-play drive.

Three plays later Jerry Phillips intercepted the first of three Pius passes picked off during the night and Putman promptly dashed 45 yards to the 'Bolt 10. On fourth down Copple aimed an aerial to Smith again. It went off his fingertips but skipped into the waiting hands of Lehigh for the touchdown.

With reserves liberally sprinkling the East lineup throughout the second half, a final touchdown was added with 1:05 remaining in the game.

With Chris Siefkes at the controls, the Spartans went 94 yards in 10 plays. A 42-yard run by Kurt Stacey and a 36-yard pass play from Siefkes to Chuck Arkfeld were the big gainers. Carlson banged in from three yards out to produce the final count.

Pius only managed to mount one serious scoring threat, driving to the East six yard line early in the final frame before losing the ball on downs.

Four passes from Mike Aldrich to Kevin Aylward, Bob McEniry, Don King and Nicky Payne were the big gainers.

Other than that the 'Bolts only crossed the midfield stripe on four occasions, never getting farther down field than the East 38.

One winning streak will continue and another will end sometime late Friday afternoon when Nebraska meets Iowa State in the third freshman football game for each Big Eight crew this season.

The Husker yearlings have won two straight tilts — clubbing Wichita State, 36-7, at Memorial Stadium and Missouri 32-23 at Columbia, while Iowa State has nipped Iowa Central Junior College, 14-12, and Northeastern Oklahoma Junior College, 49-12.

In a Memorial Stadium tilt beginning at 1:30 p.m., coach Jim Ross' young Huskers may be meeting the toughest test of their four-game season if a comparison of Wichita State-Northeastern Oklahoma scores is a valid thermometer.

Iowa State ripped the Oklahoma crew, rated at one time this season as the nation's fifth-best JC team, by 37 points.

NWU Hosts Hastings For Homecoming

... WILL SHOW VISITORS FOUR-MAN FRONT

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan will show Hastings College something Friday night at Magee Stadium, the Broncos haven't seen this season.

The Plainsmen will use a four-man defensive line and Hastings has only played against a five-man defensive front. The game is homecoming for NWU and concludes both teams' seasons.

At stake is second place in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and possibly the advantage in the series between the two.

Wesleyan is 3-1 in NIAC play and 7-1 overall while Hastings is 2-2 in the NIAC and 4-3 overall. The Plainsmen hold a 25-24 edge in the series with seven ties.

A win for NWU will also force Doane to win its last NIAC game against Dana next weekend to take the conference title outright.

A Plainsman victory over Hastings and Dana over Doane would leave the Crete team and the Capital City club tied. And there is no tie-breaking system in the NIAC.

NWU is also seeking its third-best finish in the school's 75-year football history.

Only the 1911 team, 7-0 and the 1946 club, 7-0-3, have better records. Regardless of the outcome coach Harold Chaffee will have his best year at the Plainsmen's helm.

Chaffee's 1969 team was 5-4 and last season's club was 6-4.

"We'd like to have this one to make it an exceptional season," Chaffee said. "We didn't plan on having this good a year but we got the right kind of breaks."

"If we wouldn't have had so many injuries, I'm sure we would've had an even better year," he noted.

Both Lonnie Tapp and Darrell, NWU's two top rushers, will not play against the Broncos. However defensive back Rick Roffers will return to Wesleyan's lineup after a week's absence.

Chaffee plans on using sophomore Gene Boeka a lot either at a running back or flanker.

The Grand Island native has been impressive in the last few games according to Chaffee and has been a steady performer all season.

Hastings is known for its potent offense, possessing the conference's leading rusher in Gary Filipi and leading passer in Gary Bendinger. "We know their offense will give our defense a lot of problems," Chaffee admitted.

"But we hope our defensive alignment will also give them some problems. It will be interesting to see how the two mix," he mused."

Huskers, Cyclones Rank High In Big 8 Statistics

... NU NO SURPRISE, ISU IS

Kansas City, Mo. — It hardly comes as a surprise to Big Eight football observers that defending Big Eight champion Nebraska ranks either first or second in every conference team statistic.

But it might be considered a surprise that at this point in the season, the Husker for Saturday, Iowa State, ranks second to Nebraska in four of the eight categories.

The Huskers are the leaders in passing offense, rushing defense, passing defense, total defense and scoring defense.

The Cyclones are second in passing offense, passing defense, total defense and scoring defense.

NU's Rodgers Among Elite In Nation

New York — Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers ranks among the nation's top 25 in both pass receiving and punt returning.

Rodgers is tied for 23rd in pass receiving with 3.9 receptions per game and is ninth in punt returns with an average of 16.1 yards per return.

Among those tied with Rodgers in pass receiving are Kansas' John Schroll and Oklahoma State's Dick Graham.

Colorado's Clifford Branch is near Rodgers in punt returns, ranking 11th with a 15.9 per return average.

The Big Eight has two top kickers among the leaders in scoring by kicking with Oklahoma's John Carroll ranking No. 1, averaging 7.9 points per game, and Iowa State's Reggie Shoemaker 11th with an average of 6.1 points.

High Court Hears School Land Case

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An assistant state Atty. Gen. told the State Supreme Court Thursday that a lessee cannot be compensated for unauthorized improvements made before 1953 on leased public school lands.

In his oral argument, B. L. Packett said the lower court erred in saying the tenant was the owner of unauthorized improvements.

The particular case involves a Box Butte County widow who claims the cost incurred by her husband when he leveled a section of land for irrigation should be returned through charging the new lessee correspondingly.

The work was done in 1953 during a period when the law did not specify that tenants needed to get written permission from the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds to make improvements.

Common Law

The state maintained that common law determines ownership of the improvements in the absence of statutes.

"Therefore," Packett said, "common law determines ownership, and under common law you cannot put permanent improvements on leased property without consent."

Mrs. Genece Rosenberger's attorney countered saying, "Over the years, the state has encouraged the making of improvements by the tenant on school lands.

"The state has constitutionally sought to protect the interests of lessees in doing so by requiring a new lessee to pay the old lessee for the improvements."

He said it would be "tremendously unjust" to not allow compensation.

'Unfair Destruction'

"If this policy is now upset," he continued, "it will not only result in unfair destruction of the interests of many school land tenants, it will result in unjust enrichment of the school land fund."

State officials indicate that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of improvements fall into this category and could be affected by the outcome.

The high court will also have an opportunity to rule on the constitutionality of LB 413 passed by the 1971 Legislature if it so chooses.

That bill permits all improvements made before 1953 to belong to the lessee whether authorized or not.

A brief filed by the Nebraska Stock Growers Association indicates the widespread impact the decision could have on lessees of school lands.

Omaha Tribe Jurisdiction Arguments Heard

Omaha (AP) — Three judges of the U.S. District Federal Court Thursday heard arguments over criminal jurisdiction of the Omaha Indian tribe.

The hearing on retrocession — the issue of criminal jurisdiction — revolved around the legality of a 1969 resolution by the 1969 Nebraska Legislature giving the responsibility to the federal government.

But attorneys for Walthill, Neb., and Thurston County, where the Omahas live, contend the resolution wasn't proper because it was not signed by then — Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

They argued that the Unicameral passed 605 resolutions between 1955 and 1970 and only five were presented to the governor.

Low Order Improved

Assistant U.S. Atty. William Schaphorst, representing the tribe, said "Law and order on the reservation had vastly improved since retrocession" went into effect in October 1970.

The change permitted the Omahas to set up their own court and jail and try all violations except for traffic and 13 major crime categories which would go to federal court.

"It's far from perfect but it's improved," Schaphorst said. He noted that a judge has been appointed, about 13 policemen hired and $100,000 granted for a jail and courtroom.

"I dare say law and order wasn't provided before," Schaphorst said.

Atty. Robert Scoville of South Sioux City, representing Walthill and Thurston County, said the resolution was invalid because the governor did not sign it and because the federal government did not also accept jurisdiction over the Winnebagoes in the same area.

'Anachronism'

Scoville also said it was "an anachronism" that jurisdiction should historically rest with the federal government.

Vote Electing Burkhardt Disputed

State Board of Education member Allen Burkhardt of Norfolk was apparently elected Thursday as the board's representative to the new State Board of Technical Community Colleges.

However, the choice at a State Board of Education meeting was enveloped in a debate over parliamentary procedure, with Board President Frank Landis of Lincoln contending Burkhardt was not elected since his appointment did not receive favoring votes from a majority of board members present.

The vote on the appointment was three board members in favor, two against, and Patrick Cooney of Omaha abstained.

At an earlier board meeting in September, the board had twice split 4-4 on appointing Burkhardt or Francis Knapple of Omaha.

The Community College Board was created by the 1971 Legislature when it passed LB759, setting up the statewide community college system.

On the motion to approve Burkhardt Thursday, members voting in favor were Burkhardt, Shirley Peterson of Amelia and Lloyd Wright of Reynolds while the opposing ballots were cast by Landis and Knapple.

Cooney said he refrained from voting because he had assured Gerald Whelan of Hastings, another board member who was absent, he would not vote on the appointment Thursday.

Following the vote, Landis ruled it had failed because Burkhardt did not receive a majority of votes cast and Burkhardt appealed the ruling with the same resulting vote.

After calling a recess to review parliamentary procedure, Landis then reconvened the board and announced he and Knapple were leaving, thus depriving the eight-member board of the quorum needed to enact official business.

London (AP) — Dr. Harry Morrow-Brown, an allergies specialist, says children should not be forced to eat foods they don't want because their refusal may be a natural protection against "certain items of diet which bring on asthmatic attacks."

Community College District Hearing Date Is Scheduled

The State Board of Education Thursday set a hearing for the board's next meeting on a request by 11 southeastern Nebraska counties to form a community college district under LB759, the Community College Law enacted by the 1971 Legislature.

The district, if approved, would be the sixth such district in the state, according to

Assistant Education Commissioner for Vocational Services Glen Strain.

The bill provides that eight such districts shall be created in the state and shall each provide an area community college, incorporating present state trade schools and community colleges into the system.

The 11 counties are Saunders, Cass, Otoe, Gage, Pawnee, Jefferson, Thayer, Fillmore, Saline, York, and Seward.

On another matter, Strain provided the board with figures showing that federal grants to the state for vocational education have increased $432,000 to $3.6 million for the current fiscal year.

Last year, Strain's report showed, the state received $3.17 million from the federal government under the program.

Urbom Claims He Won't Move Office To Omaha

Federal District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom said Thursday he has no immediate plans of moving his offices to Omaha if appointed chief judge of the Nebraska District.

However, said the judge, next in line by seniority, a final decision would depend on which location would be best for the court system.

"That is not to say it (a move) won't be considered by me," he said.

"I think the decision has to be made in light of what the needs of the court are and I'll be giving that complete thought at such time as it seems to be necessary," he said.

Chief Judge Richard E. Robinson announced earlier this week his plans to retire. When, depends on how long it takes to appoint a replacement.

'Welfare Dilemma' To Be YWCA Topic

The "Welfare Dilemma" will be the topic Thursday of a discussion sponsored by the YWCA Public Affairs committee. Attending the public luncheon at the YWCA, 1432 N. will be State Sen. Harold Simpson and Carole Siegmán, League of Women Voters state human resources chairman.

The meeting will begin at noon.

WINTERIZE YOUR CAR NOW!

Now is the time to have your car winterized. During cold weather and sub-zero weather, your car must be in top condition to give you safe and sure driving. The majority of malfunctions can usually be attributed to lack of proper maintenance. Don't be caught with a dead car this winter! The loss of your car due to malfunction is very aggravating. Let us check over these main trouble makers.

Beware Of Those Bridges

Frost-covered bridges, which are slick enough that they've already caused several serious accidents this year, can be an unexpected road hazard, the Nebraska Department of Roads says. Even though streets and highways are not icy bridges may be at this time of year because of the combination of warm days and cooler nights. The department says the condition is most likely in the early morning hours between 4 and 7.

Exon's School Aid Contention Rapped

... By Solons, School Officials

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State senators and school officials Thursday took issue with Gov. J. James Exon's contention that state aid to education does not produce property tax relief.

Those who equate the two programs practice a "cruel deception," the governor told a conference of school administrators and board members.

Responding to Exon's remarks at a legislative committee hearing which followed the governor's departure, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said the state aid program port such a proposal if local spending continued to increase at current rates.

Against Local Control
"If the governor wishes to establish an artificial limit, then he doesn't believe in local control of education," Omaha Westside Superintendent Vaughn Phelps told the committee.

Phelps said many schools are "desperate" for financing, and "the fact is that children in this state are being injured in many school districts" by a lack of quality education.

The actual level of "state aid" to schools is about $20 million a year, Phelps said. The rest of the $35 million was appropriated by the state to replace revenue lost when the Legislature repealed the intangible property tax, the property tax on household goods and head taxes, he noted.

Omaha School Board member Charles Peters said a limit of local taxes "doesn't make any sense."

So Hung Up?
Joseph Hart, a member of the same board, wondered why state government is "so hung up on a 2 1/2% sales and 13% income tax rate."

Children "have to be educated," he said.

"Why not get the job done and forget about these percentages? Why shouldn't it be 4% and 14% or 15% if we need the money?"

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said Hart's comments "confused" him. "I thought the people of Omaha supported a man who ran for governor to keep expenses down," Barnett said.

Reduced Levies
School administrators from Scottsbluff, Seward and Papillion all told the committee that the state aid program had, in fact, allowed their school districts to reduce their property tax mill levies.

Phelps said the levy at Westside would be eight mills higher without state aid.

State Sen. Orval Keyes of Papillion said he will sponsor legislation next year to fully fund the state aid formula through "an aid to property tax program" financed with a 2% increase in the sales tax and about a 10% hike in the personal income tax rate.

Deception Hit By Gov. Exon

"has never had an opportunity to provide results" because of a lack of funding.

$35 Million Now
State aid to public schools is now funded at a level of $35 million a year.

The governor vetoed a 1971 legislative bill which would have increased state assistance to $85 million a year.

Full funding of the current state aid formula would require about $90 million a year.

Warner, chairman of a state aid study committee which conducted a hearing at the conference, was chief sponsor of the school aid program adopted in 1967.

No Evidence

Warner said it would be "almost impossible" to arrive at an arbitrary mill levy increase limit which could be adaptable to all school districts in Nebraska, even though such a proposal might be "politically popular."

Exon had told the conference that he might be forced to sup-

Tough Stand Angers Unit

... Back Wages At Issue

Washington (UPI) — Reflecting anger over the Pay Board's tough proposed guidelines on wage increases, the House Banking Committee voted Thursday to require retroactive payment of wage boosts denied during the current freeze. President Nixon promptly protested.

"I believe that it would seriously jeopardize the ability of the Pay Board and Price Commission to reach the goals we all expect of the post-freeze program," Nixon said in a statement.

The White House stressed the President was not prejudging whether deferred pay increases should be paid but was arguing that it was a decision for the board — not Congress.

Some Power Left

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, responded to Nixon's criticism by observing that the panel did leave authority in the hands of the White House to prohibit retroactive increases that Nixon deemed "grossly disproportionate" to general levels of wage increases.

Nixon and Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, predicted the committee's directive would be defeated by Congress as a "piecemeal" approach to the complicated problem of establishing noninflationary guidelines for the economy.

The Pay Board meanwhile met for an hour and recessed for separate caucuses on the wage proposals by union, business and public members. Besides a ban on retroactive pay raises provided in pre-freeze contracts, the proposals would continue the freeze for two months until mid-January and limit future raises to about 5% annually.

Not By Labor Members

The proposals were submitted by the five public and five industry representatives on the Pay Board. AFL-CIO President George Meany said he hoped for a decision "in a day or so."

A labor source said it was "a very discouraging opening offer." Labor's position, he said, "remains exactly the same — the sanctity of existing contracts. After that we'll talk about the future."

Nixon said some of the House committee's actions "are damaging and clearly inconsistent with the effort to achieve reasonable price stability."

In a series of close votes defying the administration and reversing a cooperative stance on Wednesday, the committee headed by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., also agreed to require post-freeze economic controls to include interest rates, a move the White House vigorously opposes.

Consumers Could Sue

Other amendments drastically altering Nixon's request for extended economic authority would exempt poverty-level wage earners from wage controls and would permit consumers to sue for triple damages in case of guideline-breaking price increases.

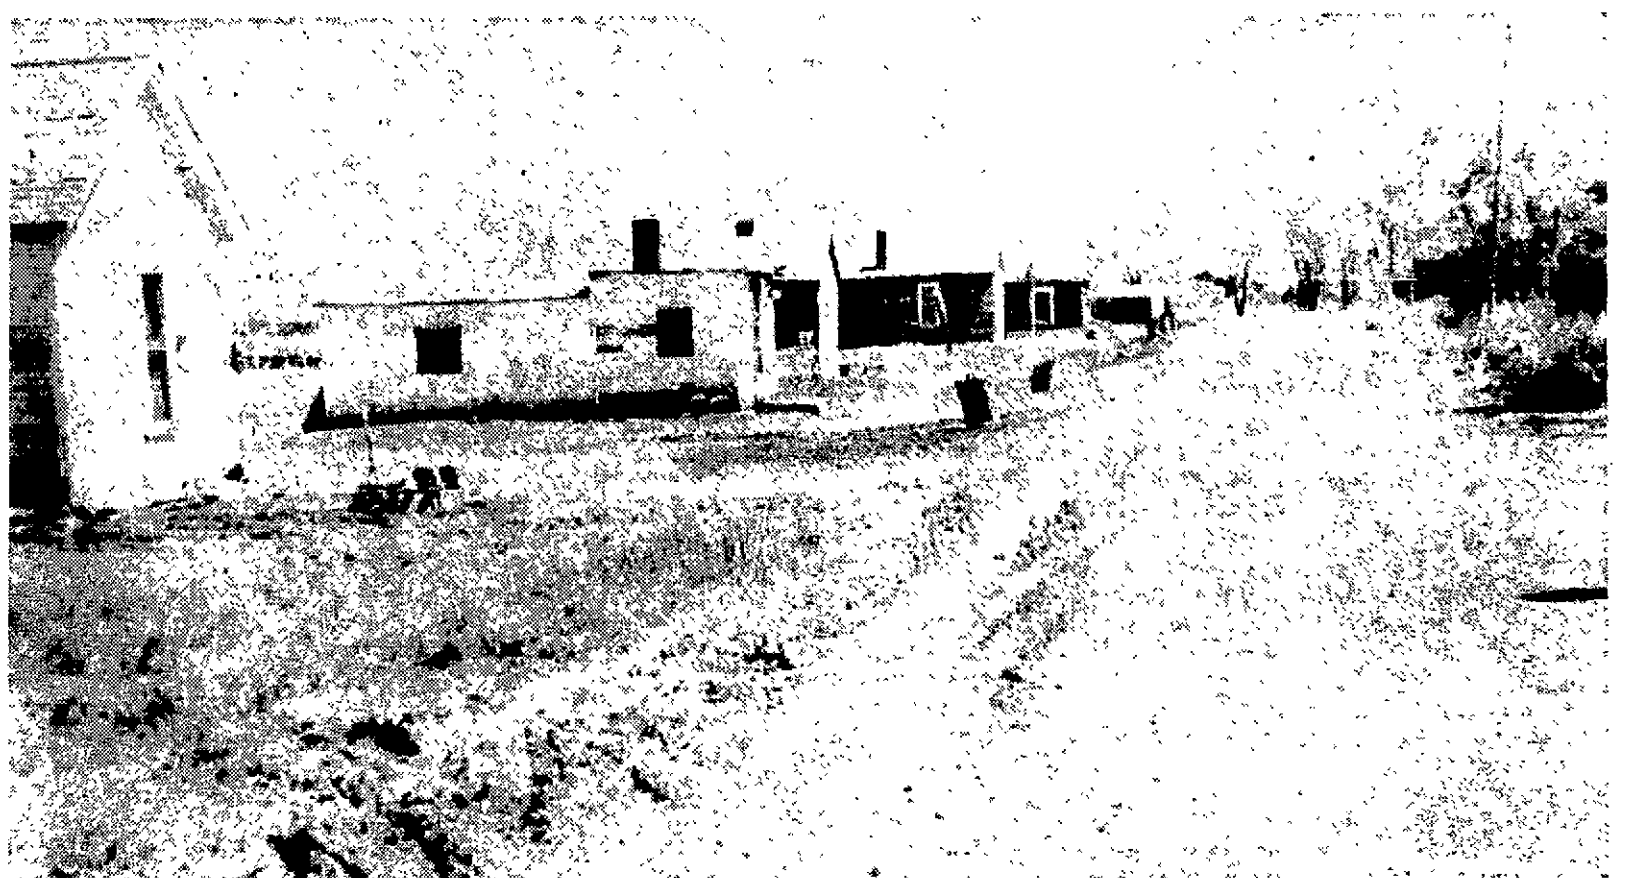

During an emotional committee session, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., waved around an edition of the Washington Post reporting proposals before the Pay Board. The proposals, submitted by public and industry members of the panel, upset labor members.

Annunzio charged that Congress must step in because the Pay Board was not acting in the public interest.

The government reported that wholesale prices, including the closely watched industrial commodities index, remained essentially unchanged in October, the second full month of the freeze.

Wholesale prices declined 0.1% from September, when a 0.3% drop ended a nine-month string of price increases. On a seasonally adjusted basis, however, wholesale prices edged upward by 0.1% in October.

Products whose prices were frozen generally fell last month, but raw agricultural commodities — which are exempt because of seasonal fluctuations tied to supply — rose by 0.7%.

INDIAN SUES WINNER TOWN OFFICIALS

This dirt road is one of the main streets in the "Indian Town" section of Winner, a small town in south central South Dakota. John Fire, who resides in the neighborhood, has filed suit against town officials. He alleges discrimination because the town government provides better services and maintenance in white districts than in the Indian section. Winner officials, including Mayor Paul Blomstrom, say the charges are ridiculous.

Complaints About Police Offered

... ABUSE AND INFRINGEMENT OF RIGHTS CLAIMED

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Numerous examples of alleged abuse and infringement on an individual's rights by Lincoln police as well as the alleged police brutality in the case of Cleveland Randolph were aired Thursday before the Human Rights Commission.

Lincoln attorney Bruce Hamilton, who said his office is representing Randolph, asked the commission to consider if a white man released from a hospital whose father was a "prominent, country club member" would have received the same treatment as Randolph allegedly did on Oct. 24.

Randolph told the commission that upon his release from Lincoln General Hospital on Oct. 24, a police officer was there to pick him up and "I was under the impression it was to talk about the motorcycle accident" for which he was hospitalized.

Asked About Accident

He said the officer asked him questions about the motorcycle accident on the way to the station but he was not informed why he was taken to the station until Sgt. William Jernigan showed him the warrants on the bike violations at the station.

Randolph said he was told he would have to be "locked up" and he told the police that he didn't think he should be locked up since he has just been released from the hospital and later was allowed to make two phone calls but completed only one.

He said before he was "thrown in the hole" he was grabbed by one officer, choked by another and the jailer started beating him in the stomach.

Couldn't Breathe

On questioning by the commission members as to whether he was actually choked or merely grabbed around the neck to be restrained, Randolph said:

"I couldn't breathe or talk—he was choking me."

Also on questioning by the commission, Randolph said he didn't receive medical attention when in the jail but had asked the jailer to call a doctor but it wasn't done.

He said he had been to see the physician after his release from jail and that he would be willing to execute a release to allow the commission to talk to the physician.

Find Out

Hamilton urged the commission to find out what the practices are in arrest, bail and release and if the practices are the same for everyone.

He said as he understood the practice, the jailer has a list of all prisoners and how much money each had on his person when he was jailed.

The attorneys, according to Hamilton, frequently collect their fees and fines at the same time and oftentimes an attorney is allowed to get others out who, according to the list have money.

Automatic

He said there are police review boards in many cities and suspension with pay is an automatic thing in Washington, D.C. and Chicago.

Hamilton said the problem in police-community relations is the "double standard of rich versus poor."

Lincoln Attorney Hugh Alexander urged the commission to take a "strong look" at the Lincoln Police Department and be aware if the same procedures are followed regardless of whom a person is.

He cited examples of inconsistency between shifts and how the standard rule that someone can't be released for six hours after being picked up for drunken driving may be altered to 15 minutes if an influential attorney comes down to get someone out.

'It's About Time'

City Councilman Harry "Pete" Peterson said "It's about time the city leaders try to promote better understanding between police and the community."

"People are too complacent," he said, "They always wait until something happens."

House Acts To Slam Brakes On Busing To Desegregate

Washington (AP) — The House voted Thursday night to clamp harsh restrictions on the government and the federal courts in an effort to prevent forced busing of school children to overcome segregation.

Acting in what Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called "haste, excitement and hysteria," the House adopted a series of potentially far-reaching amendments that could sharply slow the pace of desegregation.

One amendment would prevent expenditure of any federal funds for busing. Another would prohibit the federal government from requiring a state to spend state or local funds for busing.

Still another would delay a court-ordered busing plan until all possible appeals have been exhausted, which could mean two or three years.

Subject to Later Votes

All the amendments were added to a massive, $21.7 billion higher education bill and could be subject to later votes before final action on the bill.

Warnings that the House was acting irresponsibly and in violation of the Constitution were brushed aside at the late-night session as members rushed enthusiastically to get on record against busing.

Southerners clapped and cheered as Northerners with a long history of opposing antibusing amendments when only the South was affected by them trooped down the aisle to vote for the amendments.

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., offered the amendment to prevent the federal government from requiring the expenditure of state and local funds for busing, which was adopted 201 to 126.

She said it was designed to prevent what she described as backdoor support for busing by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

'Height Of Hypocrisy'

"The Nixon administration says no federal funds for busing yet federal officials are saying spend your local funds and we'll reimburse you," said Mrs. Green. "I call that the height of hypocrisy."

The rush to support the amendment brought a biting

comment from Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., a Negro.

"Where were you when the buses were carrying black and Mexican-American children past your white schools to dilapidated schools?" she asked.

She accused her colleagues of showing concern about busing only because white students now are affected.

Fair Board Ponders Operation Of West Coast Shows

Farm Editor

The Nebraska State Board of Agriculture executive board heard conflicting statements expressing concern over the ownership of the carnival that operated at the 1971 State Fair and whether the carnival was in existence at all.

The concern developed when fair board members found an advertisement in the Nov. 6 issue of Amusement Business Magazine, an entertainment industry trade journal published in Cincinnati, Ohio, offering to sell the entire West Coast Shows Inc. carnival and Craft Shows equipment.

The ad states that "The First National Finance Corporation is the sole and complete owner of all show titles, current existing contracts and all of the equipment. It lists 'Glosser & Associates Inc. as the exclusive sales agent for this voluntary sale."

Approximately 63 major rides, 34 kiddie rides, 16 generators, one transformer trailer, over 50 trucks & tractors, over 100 trailers, 3 offices, and considerable miscellaneous equipment are offered on a first come basis, in the advertisement.

Ray Taramasco, vice president of the First National Finance Corp. was present in Lincoln during the state fair as an accountant with the carnival according to Henry Brandt, state fair manager.

Taramasco, contacted at his office in San Diego, Calif., told The Star that "The First National Finance Corp. is and has been the sole owner of the West Coast Shows carnival for a number of years, that the carnival does indeed exist and is capable of operating at a state fair."

Asked whether the First National Finance Corp. was a holding company or a lending concern Taramasco said, "I suppose the name could be a cause of confusion. It stems from the history of the company however the company no longer lends money and hasn't for at least 10 years and probably much longer than that."

Taramasco described the equipment offered in the advertisement as "some older equipment that is surplus to our current needs."

"I hope all this publicity creates an interest in the equipment from prospective buyers," he added.

The fair board set Nov. 16 as the date for a meeting with Bobby Cohn who is expected to negotiate for the carnival and asked Ron Rosenberg, a Lincoln attorney for the company to produce a letter from company officials authorizing Cohn or "Whoever comes from them to talk to us."

The board reviewed a proposed set of bylaws suggested by its attorney Hal Hasselbach which would change the board to a nonprofit corporation and generally streamline and update the regulations the board operates under which were last reviewed in 1966.

Board members discussed a proposed request that the State Legislature pass some legislation that would clear up legal confusion over the authority of the board to operate the state fair. This effort seemed to be a result of an injunction against the board which had attempted to prevent the distribution of anti-war pamphlets by a person who did not have a paid booth at the 1971 fair.

Board members instructed Brandt to ask the Nebraska Racing Commission to establish July 7 through Aug. 12 as the racing season for Lincoln which would give the board 23 days of racing, three more than this year.

Board members discussed the racing season practice of distributing free tickets to many people which is beginning to be an expensive problem for the fair board.

The tax of 15 cents has to be paid on each of these tickets each time they are used, the cost this year of this extra tax is an estimated $14,338 and had all the free tickets been paid the board would have had more than $67,000 in additional income.

The fair board will meet Friday with representatives of dairy and beef breed associations to discuss livestock shows at the fair and plan for a possible national show during the 1972 fair.

Foreign Relations Panel Splits Aid Into Two

(c) New York Times News Service
Washington — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee separated foreign aid into two bills Thursday, one providing economic and humanitarian assistance, the other military assistance, and cut the total aid from the $2.9 billion defeated by the Senate last week to $2.3 billion — about $1.2 billion less than the administration had requested.

Nixon, Gandhi Fail To Agree

Washington — President Nixon, greeting Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India at the White House, expressed sympathy for the natural tragedies that have struck her country recently. "But the worst tragedy is a man-made tragedy," she replied referring to East Pakistani refugees, and she asked Nixon to put pressure on Pakistan to give East Pakistan autonomy. The President, in turn, asked Mrs. Gandhi to pull her forces back from the Pakistani border. Neither agreed to the other's request.

Storm Victims Fear Death

Jambu, India — A tour of the area devastated by a cyclone and tidal wave last weekend showed that the death toll could rise to 20,000 or 30,000 and that many survivors fear they could perish from drinking water poisoned by so many dead animals and people.

House Committee Revolts

Washington — The House Banking Committee voted to require the retroactive payment

of all wage increases halted by the wage-price freeze unless the President finds specific increases "grossly disproportionate." (More on Page 1.)

Wholesale Prices Stable

Rehnquist Softens Line

Broader Trade Powers OK'd

Washington — In two actions to give the government new ways of applying economic pressure on foreign governments, the Senate Finance Committee approved measures giving the President almost unlimited power to impose import quotas if he thought them necessary and the authority to impose a maximum tariff surcharge of 15%.

Population Growth Slows

Washington — Three reports released in Washington indicated that the rate of the nation's population growth was turning rapidly downward. And, the reports said, there is evidence of a long-range reduction in birth rates.

Some Interest Rates Shaved

New York — Major banks in New York and California reduced their charges for personal loans and home mortgages, and the prime rate — the charge on loans to banks' favored business customers — dropped a quarter-point to 5 1/2%. The reductions, the White House said, reflected "positive market conditions."

Columbia Falls Into Line

New York — The federal government told Columbia University that it has failed to produce an acceptable plan for hiring minorities and women and so could lose its eligibility for federal contracts. The university immediately promised to conform to the federal guidelines.

Liberals Hope To Find Rehnquist's Philosophy

Washington (UPI) — Senate liberals sought Thursday to free Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist from his lawyer-client relationship with President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John Mitchell in the hope of pinning down his legal philosophy as a Supreme Court nominee.

In his second day before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Rehnquist repeatedly dodged probing questions on the grounds they might become issues before the Supreme Court or because he took part in forming administration positions as chief legal counsel in the Justice Department.

Rehnquist said he could not foresee "what I feel is my duty to my clients," whom he named as Nixon and Mitchell.

Finally, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said he would write Nixon and Mitchell "before sundown," asking them to waive Rehnquist's privileged lawyer-client relationship. "We haven't been able to get Bill Rehn-quist's philosophy," he complained.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, objected at first, then relented saying "I am ready to vote." Rehnquist agreed with Bayh that Nixon and Mitchell had the right to free him to speak, and said he had absolutely no objection to Bayh's attempt.

Not Anti-surveillance

Shortly before the committee adjourned until Monday, Rehnquist testified that he did not think government surveillance of individuals in crowds violated their constitutional rights, unless such surveillance had a "chilling effect" on their right to assemble.

He also said he had advised Mitchell he had the power to tap telephones in domestic subversion cases, and that he thought it was a good thing to provide free legal services for the poor.

Before it returned to questioning Rehnquist, the committee heard its first testimony on Lewis F. Powell Jr., 64, the Richmond, Va., lawyer who won the American Bar Association's highest recommendation for the Supreme Court by unanimous vote. Powell is a former ABA president.

Powell Praised

Backed at the hearing by ABA President Leon Jaworski and six predecessors, Powell was introduced with high praise by Virginia Sens Harry F. Byrd Jr. and William B. Spong Jr.

The committee deferred questioning Powell, however, to get back to the cool, cautious Rehnquist, 47, a former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer.

He refused to budge even when Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., confronted him with an article Rehnquist had written in the 1959 Harvard Law Review rebuking the Senate for not inquiring more fully into the judicial philosophy of Supreme Court nominees.

Little Pamela In Coma Since July; Last Words: 'Mommy, I'm Thirsty'

Pottstown, Pa. (AP) — "Mommy, I'm thirsty," were the last words 7-year-old Pamela Chaplin uttered before she fell into a coma last July.

Doctors said at the time she probably would not live through the night. She did, and now the physicians can't say whether she'll ever recover from what is believed to be encephalitis.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chaplin, say they are seeking the aid of a neurologist to see if an operation could cause an improvement.

Eyes Follow Mom, Dad

Her long blonde hair pulled into two big ponytails, the child lies unmoving in bed. Her blue eyes, open wide, follow her father and mother around the room. She doesn't look unconscious.

"We don't know what she sees," says her father, Richard Chaplin. "It's hard to believe she isn't here."

Before she became ill, troubled by severe headaches, Pamela, a diabetic, loved to run, swim and ride her bike.

The family doctor thought it was the beginning of a diabetic coma, but more insulin didn't help.

After she was admitted, unconscious, to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children in Philadelphia, doctors there took radical measures: replacing her blood.

It was the first reported blood exchange ever done on a diabetic, and one of the few done on a child.

They Prayed

The Chaplins were told Pamela probably wouldn't live through the night. They prayed and rubbed her body. "It was ice cold," her mother recalls.

Pamela survived, and spent a month in the hospital, while doctors did scores of tests to find out the cause of the coma.

Encephalitis is the current diagnosis — inflammation of the brain, of unknown origin but possibly caused by a virus. Doctors say that even if the child recovers, there is a possibility of brain damage.

"It's like a living death for us," says Mrs. Chaplin.

Hope For A Miracle

"I think God still performs miracles once in a while, and I'm praying He will give us one. Hope is all I have to hold onto," said Mrs. Chaplin.

The Chaplins' neighbors have joined the effort. They come in during the day to help tube-feed Pam, a two-person effort.

In the evenings, Colleen Smale, a 7-year-old classmate of Pamela, comes over from next door to help with one of the four daily feedings. All last year the two were in first grade together and sat together on the school bus.

Colleen still saves Pamela a seat.

Supreme Court Asked To Halt Hydrogen Test

Washington (AP) — An environmental group asked Chief Justice Warren E. Burger Thursday to halt Saturday's underground nuclear explosion off the Alaskan coast, pending a hearing by the full Supreme Court.

A spokesman for the court said a decision probably would come Friday.

The White House turned aside mounting protests against the explosion, which would be the largest one yet conducted in the Western world.

It is scheduled for Saturday at 4 p.m. CST on Amchitka Island to test the five-megaton hydrogen bomb warhead for the Spartan antiballistic missile.

Asked about White House reaction to continuing protests against the blast, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the decision to go ahead was made after a careful study of environmental risks involved. It was decided to proceed with the test, he said, because of overriding interests of national defense and security.

N. Viets Accused

Paris — North Vietnam was accused Thursday of vastly cutting down on the number of letters it has allowed American war prisoners to send home.

William J. Porter, the chief American delegate, who has introduced a new element of toughness into the peace talks since he took over in September, demanded an explanation to the families.

"You are making a tremendous mistake," he said to the North Vietnamese officials, "if you think that silence on this subject will assist you in any way I tell you that it will harm you in every way if you maintain this unbelievable standard of conduct."

More State, Federal Education Funds Urged

Washington (AP) — A $2-million study released Thursday urges more school consolidations and much heavier federal and state spending to equalize public education and taxation.

The five-volume report by the National Educational Finance Project recommends that property taxes pay for only 10 to 15%, rather than the present 52% of the nation's annual $40 billion school bill.

The study, funded by the U.S. Office of Education and four years in the making, comes in the wake of a recent California court decision holding unconstitutional the heavy reliance on property taxation for public education.

In lieu of local taxes, the report recommends that the present 7% federal spending be boosted to 22 to 30%, with state governments making up the difference.

State Support Varies

Although states as a whole foot 41% of the cost of schools, the study noted that contributions from individual states vary widely.

New Hampshire, for example, pays out only 10% from its state treasury, receives 4% from the federal government and obtains 86% from local taxes.

The report said school districts wealthy with property can levy modest taxes to finance their operations, while poor districts must tax their residents to the hilt and still come up short.

"The time has come for Americans to say. The number of dollars spent on education should be based on the educational needs of the children rather than the wealth of the school district," the report said.

It recommends also consolidation of 80% of the 18,000 school districts that "do not have sufficient enrollments to provide even minimally adequate programs and services without excessive costs."

Although the study recommends more federal spending, it does not recommend more federal standards and controls.

The project director, Prof. Roe L. Johns of the University of Florida, said the researchers feel that schools would "get a better return for their money" and greater efficiency if decision-making is left at the local level.

The study examines a number of model school financing systems, with differing amounts of local, state and federal funds. It concludes that flat grants provide "the least financial equalization for a given amount of state aid of any state-local models because it does not take into account the variations in wealth of the district."

Exon Blasts State Aid Deception

... LINKS WITH PROPERTY TAX RELIEF ATTACKED

Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon, branding as a "cruel deception" attempts to tie state aid to local governments to property tax relief, Thursday said the two must be separated.

And in a speech to school leaders from across the state, the governor also declared that he will support a limit on local tax collections unless "drastic local property tax increases" are curtailed.

Exon's comments came at the opening of the annual fall conference of the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the Nebraska Association of School Administrators, the Nebraska State Association of Secondary School Principals and Educational Service Unit representatives.

Face The Issue

The governor also told the educators and school board members that if schools "expect to receive substantial increases in either local or state

"I would like to end this cruel deception once and for all," he said.

"Aid to education," Exon declared, "has sufficient merit of its own to stand the test of public scrutiny."

Shouldn't Be Hidden

Pointing to statistics, the governor said since 1965 property taxes collected for local purposes have increased 59% while collections "for education alone have increased over 70% from $133.4 million in 1965 to $227.3 million in 1970."

At the same time, he said, "state aid to local governments has also increased at a phenomenal rate."

"Obviously," he told the some 600 participants in the conference, "state aid has gone to supplement local taxes, not to replace them."

It's High Time

"And it is high time we tell the public this is what we have been doing."

Exon said he does not oppose "providing property tax relief in the future and increasing the sales and income tax in order to do so."

Best Means

"We feel that our proposal for personal property tax relief called the 'circuit breaker,' whereby the taxpayer, rather than the political subdivisions receive the tax refund, is the best means of insuring personal property tax relief," he said.

"If the 'circuit breaker' approach proves as workable as we think it will, we will very seriously consider its possible future use for real estate property tax relief."

The governor said he is "willing to consider future increases in state aid to education to meet the legitimate needs of education — but not under the guise of property tax relief."

For Enrichment

"State aid to education should be provided and used for the enrichment of education at the local level," he said, "and to equalize educational opportunity among all children."

He said that although he has been opposed to statutory mill levy ceiling increases for local governments, proposals in other states to limit maximum increases to 5% without a popular vote "have been somewhat successful."

"I am afraid that unless these drastic local property tax increases ... are not curtailed in the near future," he said, "I will be forced to support a limit on the amount local subdivisions may increase their tax collections without a vote of the people."

Not A License

But he said such limits should not amount to a "license to raise taxes" by that amount each year, warning that a practice would double taxes in 14 years.

Exon also suggested that with limited school enrollment increases, any increased costs must be justified for educational improvement.

And he warned that unless "educators themselves take the leadership in devising methods for the measurement of quality education and the relation of quality to expenditure, more and more schools will go to 'contract education,' and the education process will be removed from the realm of school administrators."

"This I do not favor," he said, "but it is a threat we face."

Schools Can Learn From Corporations

... New York Educator Says

Star Staff Writer

The president of a unique graduate school in New York said here Thursday that schools can learn how to tackle societal changes by copying the characteristics of corporations that have "succeeded in meeting new demands which threatened to destroy them."

John Neimeyer said the school he heads has done extensive research on such corporations, and has found that all those which have successfully survived critical challenges had three characteristics in common.

Neimeyer is president of Bank Street College of Education in New York City. He described the college as "solely a graduate school devoted to trying to bring about positive change in education," and particularly in relation to education of children from birth to adolescence.

Three Characteristics

In an interview prior to his speech to state school leaders, Neimeyer said Bank Street research has discovered three characteristics common to the corporations studied:

— "a governing board which takes on the responsibility for seeing that the product of that organization is achieved."

— "a governing board 'which demands of management a plan in terms of specific objectives and specific accountability.'"

— "continual on-the-job training" for employees.

"By and large," he said, school boards are more concerned about buildings than "the environments in which children learn." And he said boards generally "sit back and expect the superintendent to be a miracle worker."

Fuzzy Objectives

He also suggested that school governing boards and schools usually have only "fuzzy objectives and no accountability."

And he said training is generally limited to whatever formal education teachers and administrators get outside their own school atmosphere.

"School systems are really facing the need for developing new ways of working with young people," said Neimeyer, "not just Mickey Mouse tricks."

"Something has to happen to the substance of education," he said.

"I believe school boards and administrators can use the management procedures which are essential for any complex social organization to bring about change in the way they operate," he said.

Here To Stay

Earlier in the day, University of Nebraska Teachers College Dean Robert Egbert told the school leaders that he believes educational accountability "is here to stay."

School Tax System Faces Test In Court

Nebraska's system of property tax support for local school financing will be challenged in the courts, Papillion School Superintendent Paul Basler said Thursday.

Basler told a legislative study committee on state aid programs that such a lawsuit is now being prepared by citizens in his school district.

The suit would be based on a California Supreme Court decision which found the heavy reliance on property taxes for support of that state's school system to be inequitable.

If Nebraska's state aid program were fully funded, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said, "it would not be necessary to go to court to correct the tax inequities in school support."

Proper relief should be provided by the executive and legislative branches of state government, Warner said.

Highland will appear Monday at the university of Nebraska at Omaha and at Creighton University. The Tuesday schedule is for a meeting at Dana College, Blair, followed by a stop at Midland College, Fremont, and Wayne State College.

cident of alleged abuse by police.

The Ortiz couple related of having gone to a Halloween party Sunday night and arriving home about 9:30 p.m. and after getting into an argument, Mrs. Ortiz called the police.

Ortiz told that after he was handcuffed and put in the car, the police "maced" him and that he is now seeing a physician because of injury to his eye.

Twenty-year-old Susan Petty, who described herself as a "white, middle class" person told of being picked up at her place of employment "under the guise of questioning" and then booked on a grand larceny charge.

Eventually Dropped

She said the charge was later amended to embezzlement and eventually dropped after her parents secured an attorney to represent her.

She said when the charges were dropped she had to sign a release that she would not sue the police department.

"If this can happen to a white middle-class kid, who has friends in the police department, what can they do to a person who is a member of a minority group," she asked.

Pushed Their Way In

Another man told of an incident when police came to his door and "pushed" their way into the house after he "cracked" the door and then searched his house and handcuffed him and took him to headquarters where he was charged with being intoxicated.

He said he didn't understand how officers could push their way into his house and pick him up for being drunk when he was drinking in his own home.

In reference to the session with the mayor Tuesday in an attempt to get the officers allegedly involved in the Randolph incident suspended, Mohammed Charles King told the commission "The mayor gave us the shaft."

He said he wasn't there for the entire session but that he had talked to the mayor and left.

'Usually Guilty'

"The black man is usually guilty and then has to prove his innocence," he said, adding, "but the police are innocent and then we have to prove them guilty."

Louis Cooper, human rights coordinator for the Lincoln Action Program (LAP), said he didn't think the mayor of Lincoln is "qualified to be involved after the episode in his office."

"He doesn't have it together to be in on it. I don't think the mayor's got it," he said.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By MARQUIS CHILDS

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is out of town on business. Today's column is by news analyst Marquis Childs.)

WASHINGTON — A killer stalking the land defies all the barriers of law and order. It is cancer, and those who have felt the killer strike with the stealth of an assassin in the night know the sense of helplessness, pitting hope against despair, of the ordeal of watching and waiting.

There is hope or, at any rate, progress. In the remarkable articles written in Newsweek of his own confrontation with what at first appeared to be a fatal leukemia, Stewart Alsop described the advances that have been made in "taming the beast." Eight forms of cancer are now, if not curable, subject to treatment giving at least considerable remission. The most notable progress has been in leukemia that is becoming increasingly prevalent.

But the beast is far from tamed. The attack of the scientific community has been hampered by limited funds and by bureaucratic complexities. Now a proposal is before Congress to create a National Cancer Attack Program with greatly expanded funds both for research and for the application of research. It has passed the Senate by a vote of 79 to 1.

The appropriation for the current fiscal year would be $400 million, for 1973 $500 million, and $600 million for the year ending June 30, 1973. One of the prime movers in persuading President Nixon to go for this expanded attack was his good friend, Elmer Bobst. It approaches what Bobst, Mrs. Mary Lasker, the formidable crusader for improved medical care and research, Laurence Rockefeller, and many others have long hoped for. That is, in effect, a Manhattan Project that would do for cancer what the wartime project achieved in five years in splitting the atom, opening the way for the atomic bomb.

The measure passed by the Senate provides not only for greatly increased scientific and technical manpower but for construction of new facilities. In short, the whole framework would be expanded as rapidly as possible.

Unfortunately, the proposed program, which originated with a distinguished commission, has stirred the kind of political, bureaucratic tempest that so often clouds the issues. On one side, so far as an observer on the sidelines can judge, are those who believe that research directed by the National Cancer Institute in the National Institutes of Health is proceeding independently with all possible speed. Among this number are many deans of medical schools with research grants from the institute.

On the other side are distinguished cancer specialists, the American Cancer Society, and other individuals and groups long advocating a bold new approach. One argument is that the emphasis on research into causes is so dominant that the cure is lost sight of. No one really knows the cause of diabetes but insulin is a cure reducing this killer close to zero.

One charge is that the White House wants to concentrate control of the program for political ends. The bill makes the President responsible for the budget, with the director of the National Cancer Institute, which would still be within the framework of NIH, responsible to the chief executive and to a national cancer advisory council.

The charge of politics sets the blood boiling of the advocates of the new program. No president could play politics with cancer. Eliminating the layers of bureaucracy through which research must filter is bound to speed the whole process.

As one who has just observed a long vigil, with the killer finally triumphant, there is only one thing to say: Stop the bureaucratic quarreling and get on with it, get on with it, get on with it.

Deals Are Shaping On Two Top Offices

WASHINGTON — Intimates say Treasury Secretary John Connally would accept the GOP vice presidential nomination next year if President Nixon will pledge to support him for president in 1976 . . . White House aides are also sizing up six-foot-seven, ruggedly handsome Rogers C. B. Morton, the able Interior secretary, as vice presidential timber . . .

State Secretary Bill Rogers, talking to GOP leaders behind closed White House doors, gave a preview of President Nixon's 1972 campaign theme: "The world is a more peaceful place than it was two and a half years ago. The United States is a more peaceful place than it was two and a half years ago."

Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney's brave attempt to set an example of sacrifice has quietly fizzled. He urged his fellow cabinet officers in 1969 to turn back part of their salaries as an example to the nation. Instead, they accepted a salary increase from $35,000 to $60,000. For several months, Romney returned one-fourth of his salary to the Treasury. But he has quietly abandoned the gesture and is now collecting his full salary . . . Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., is now serving on the House Internal Security Committee, formerly the House Un-American Activities Committee, which helped circulate those smears about "Red Pepper" back in the 1950s. He discovered in the committee files a campaign document, citing his alleged soft-on-communism record, that George Smathers had used against him in the 1950 Senate race.

The Senate's Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott have agreed to recess the

Vice President Agnew brought back to the White House the word of Greek dictator George Papadopoulos that he will restore "representative democratic government" to Greece. The vice president was carefully coached before his visit to Greece to push hard for democratic reforms. He spent more than six hours with Papadopoulos, who normally follows such a tight schedule that he confines most visits to a few minutes and keeps an alarm clock beside his desk to remind him when the time is up. Agnew emerged from his sessions with the Greek dictator elated over his success. Back at the White House, Agnew gave President Nixon a 90-minute report on his trip. The highlight was Agnew's stated belief that free elections will be revived in Greece.

A new problem has developed for the controversial $16 million radio station that the Voice of America is building in Greece. There have been loud liberal protests over basing a VOA station in Greek dictatorship.

When the tower was being loaded in Britain, part of it was dropped, and the brittle steel fractured. VOA's contractors were afraid to put up the tall antenna for fear the steel might receive a sharp blow during construction and topple on somebody's head.

But new steel would mean a year's delay and $1 million extra in cost. The contractors decided to heat the steel as they put it up to make it less brittle. But a squabble has now erupted between the contractors and VOA over who should pay for the special heating.

Statehouse Diversions

Is this little imbroiglio really necessary, we wondered, when State Treasurer Wayne Swanson announced Wednesday that he would refuse to sign any more payment warrants — which would include welfare and payroll checks — until the Department of Administrative Services (DAS) supplied him with monthly reports of cash fund balances. He hadn't received the reports he wanted since June, Swanson said.

The treasurer said the summaries are needed to determine whether accounts would be overdrawn if a warrant is issued. DAS Director Gus Lieske said the treasurer's office has been receiving the needed information all along, although not necessarily in the requested form.

The situation cleared up yesterday. Lieske provided the balance statements and Swanson said he would sign the warrants piled up on his desk.

Actually, he had little choice; the attorney general's office had indicated that there was "no reason" why the warrants shouldn't be signed, that the statutes don't specify the nature or frequency of reports to the treasurer. Lieske had threatened legal action to resume payment of the state's bills.

On the surface it would appear that there is less than a positive attitude of cooperation on the part of the DAS. The reports that Swanson said he needed might have been made available on a monthly basis. But more discredit is reflected in the treasurer's performance in threatening to sit on his hands because of a triviality.

Down the hall from the treasurer's statehouse office, in the governor's hearing room, more trouble was brewing Wednesday. The three-man Republican majority on the State Board of Equalization had voted to postpone setting Nebraska's tax rates until the Nov. 15 statutory deadline. The two Democrats — Tax Commissioner Bill Peters and Gov. Exon, anxious, we're sure, to keep a campaign pledge — tried on Oct. 8 and once again Wednesday to have the board set the income tax rate at 13% and the sales tax at 2½%.

The Republican members argued that the board should wait in hopes that congressional action on federal income tax exemptions — which could affect state income tax revenues — would be concluded before the Nov. 15 deadline. The Democrats argued that the board should set the rates now and meet again — as provided by the Constitution — to change them if federal action changed the revenue picture. If the bill were passed next week, Exon noted, there would not be time to get accurate estimates on the effect, which might force the board to set a higher or lower rate than necessary, an action it could not change.

In what is essentially a political argument, the governor's position is the more logical.

End Of Two-Term Limit?

A Senate subcommittee has been holding hearings on a proposed constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single six-year term. Sponsoring Sens. Mike Mansfield and George Aiken say their proposal is designed to relieve the president of many political pressures and free him to devote more time to initiating and carrying out government policies.

The idea is almost as old as the nation and its popularity might be on the upswing as more and more people seem to doubt the reliability of American institutions.

There are those, however, and we are among them, who are comfortable with the notion that the president should be cognizant of the wishes of the people and nothing accomplishes that better than political pressure.

China-Watchers Provided With Lots Of Material; Political Futures Of Chou And Nixon Interlinked

PARIS — Many signs indicate that the political power and diplomatic policy of Premier Chou En-lai are on the rise in China and that the forthcoming visit of President Nixon is directly linked to this.

Chou does seem to be running the People's Republic but his position has not been firmly established. Therefore the prospect of new U.S. relations, underlined by the Nixon trip, is a matter of signal importance to the premier's personal standing.

China-watching is an arcane and uncertain métier. Nevertheless, China-watchers, although they may disagree in their conclusions, start their analyses of the current situation with the strange events of Sept. 12-13. These touched off separate but contemporaneous chains of military and political events that almost certainly have not finished.

On that date, probably at night, a British-made Trident jet of the Chinese Civilian Airlines crashed deep inside the outer Mongolian People's Republic, apparently due to an accident, not an attack.

It was not a regular scheduled flight and, although a Trident can hold well over 100 passengers plus crew, only nine bodies were found in the wreckage. They were reportedly those of rather young people, including one woman. Mongolia protested the violation of its air space and Peking apologized through its embassy there.

Since China has few Tridents, it is apparent the persons aboard must have had considerable influence to gain access to the aircraft. One theory is that they commandeered the plane in order to escape after an unsuccessful conspiracy.

Although the news leaked only tardily, right after the crash, Peking canceled its annual October parade and displays, including pictures of Mao, were taken down. Notably fewer of his famous quotations were cited in the press and recently the public cult of Maoism has clearly been waning.

Mao, appearing very feeble, has been seen only once since mid-September — at the time of Emperor Haile Selassie's visit. When a Chinese delegation came to France last month, not a single member wore his customary Mao button or even once mentioned the communist chief's name.

Meanwhile an awaited People's National Assembly was not convened. Lin Piao, army commander and Mao's designated successor, has been kept from the public eye. A few days ago his picture appeared for the first time since the crash — in a magazine circulated abroad but not inside China. The army chief of staff, Gen. Huang Yung-sheng, was publicized in the same issue.

There has been rivalry between so-called leftist groups and others ever since Mao confided as much to a visitor in December, 1970. The leftists seem to have been losing power positions.

Nevertheless, Peking's agreement to receive Nixon may have revived old quarrels. There is speculation that the far left complains that China risks giving the appearance of ending its battle against materialism, abandoning its

MILAN WALL

Analyzing Campus Mood

Maybe the campuses aren't so quiet, after all.

That's the conclusion of a new report on student unrest, just released by the American Council on Education, which says a study of last year's campus protests shows the colleges weren't nearly so calm as a lot of people believe.

Results of the study, done by Alexander W. Astin and Alan E. Bayer, were reported this week in the latest issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education.

The report says that although the nation's students were "commonly characterized as being in a state of suspended animation, of apathy based on discouragement and cynicism, and of overriding calm," the "popular view is something of a caricature of the real situation."

The study says that an estimated 482 institutions of higher education (about 20% of the total) had at least one "severe protest" during the 1970-71 school year, slightly less than the estimated 524 with severe protests during '69-'69.

The Chronicle says the study was based on statistical surveys of student unrest at 425 colleges and universities.

An estimated 1,019 (or 43%) of the nation's colleges witnessed some type of protest activity last year, the study reports.

The Chronicle also says the researchers blame the mass media "for the popular misconception that last academic year was a quiet one."

They are quoted as saying "the mass media tended to ignore what was, as recently as a year ago, big news."

"Part of this tendency is no doubt attributable to the well-known fickleness of the popular press, which is always on the lookout for the newest news and, consequently quick to shelve any issue that may seem stale," the report continues.

According to The Chronicle, the report also says that the news media may have ignored

Milan Wall

campus protests because they declined at the more popular and more prestigious institutions, "even though they have become more common at the smaller and less selective colleges and universities."

Since fewer protests centered on institutional racism, the researchers also suggest, they may not have drawn as much attention.

"It is undeniable that the 1970-71 academic year was calm compared to the preceding year, which — what with Earth Day, the Vietnam moratoria, the Cambodian crisis, and the extreme incidents at Kent and Jackson States — was, from a newsman's point of view, outstanding," the report says.

"But compared with the 1968-69 academic year, generally regarded as one in which campuses were in a state of extreme disruption, the 1970-71 academic year was only slightly more quiet."

The researchers say it is ironic that a year earlier the mass media had "overstated" the severity of unrest on the campuses.

Without seeing the ACE report itself, it would seem fair to comment that many of the observations about the current "calm" on the nation's campuses are made in direct comparison to the year '69-'70, when many campuses which previously had seen little if any protests erupted in the wake of the Cambodian incursion.

That's a comparison that is fair, at least, from the admittedly limited vantage point of Lincoln, Nebraska, where the events of May, 1970, are still imprinted in not a few memories and where headlines this year are telling of students registering to vote.

Still, a demonstration that drew several hundred at the State Capitol won attention this fall.

I don't know what the ACE researchers call "severe" when they talk about protests, but I think few of us would deny that several hundred persons lying on the steps of the Statehouse is as severe as several hundred students staging a sit-in at an ROTC building.

I'll grant the fact, too, that the media, nationally at least, may ignore or overlook individual incidents on campuses and perhaps miss important aspects of a national trend.

Nevertheless, when students are gunned down at Kent State, it's bound to make more and bigger headlines than when others boycott classes (if that is judged "severe") at a campus someplace else in the country.

Recent incidents seem minor in the face of the kind of campus events that culminated in the May, 1970, demonstrations, and I think that's what most of us have in mind when we compare the tenor of campus atmosphere now as opposed to "then."

(I also seem to recall that the media was criticized in the spring of 1970 for grossly overexaggerating the severity of those events, as the two ACE researchers have apparently suggested again now.)

It may well be true that in the media are to blame both then and now, but it's also true that the media is largely a day-to-day account of what's new, judged on significance.

And I think we need to recognize that we must depend more on people like the ACE researchers, and less on newsmen, to try to ascertain what constitute "trends" in national life.

It's also true, of course, that researchers may be as wrong as anyone else, depending on the quality of their research and the soundness of their conclusions.

Prison Reforms

Freemont, Neb.

One cannot help but admire State Senator Ernie Chambers of Omaha for his courage and outstanding ability as a legislator to present the important issues and facts facing the state and nation. I know his efforts and experience in trying to get something done in the Legislature beneficial to all people must be discouraging.

There are those who call him a crack-pot to camouflage the main issues that make common sense.

I hope he will keep up the good work. He may not accomplish anything in the Legislature, but if a free press, radio and TV present both sides of the issues, a lot of people will be shaken out of the trance they are in.

I agree that the prison reforms are necessary. One wonders under what conditions bankers, lawyers, business tycoons, union leaders, etc. live — those who have embezzled thousands of dollars from the public. I would wager their living conditions in prison are 100 per cent better than for one person who perhaps stole a loaf of bread to feed his hungry family.

Welfare payments in the name of subsidies and gifts to big business would go a long way to finance prison reforms and other needed reforms.

Propaganda

Lincoln, Neb.

We read that one of the Kremlin's trio, Mr. Kosygin, in Canada said to the workers at a nuclear power station: "My country is fighting for peace."

In my opinion, he should have added: "for peace — of the cemetery."

Like the Hungarians and Czechs, other workers were aware that outside of the plants, there were demonstrations by ethnic groups of Eastern Europe. They have knowledge of the words and the reality of the Communist hell and therefore fled out of the "paradise." Only the gullible pay attention to such propaganda.

Have the Communists cancelled their plans to conquer the whole world? No.

Hanson W. Baldwin was right in saying that "they have exploited the credulity of most of mankind too long."

No Tax Funds

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with interest the letter by Marcia D. Wohlers questioning the Nebraska football team's trip to Hawaii because once again it became very evident just how poorly informed the Nebraska taxpayers really are in this era of mass communication.

Perhaps it is best for me to answer her questions in order:

How many persons are going to Hawaii at the taxpayers' expense? Answer: None.

Are all members of the team and the coaching staff going to Hawaii at the taxpayers' expense? Answer: No.

Is the football team from the University at Omaha included in this free vacation? Answer: No.

How about the administration branch at the university at Lincoln and Omaha; how many of them are going at taxpayers' expense? Answer: None.

It should come as welcome news to all Nebraskans that the University of Nebraska Athletic Department does not operate with tax funds. The entire athletic department, including salaries, equipment, operating costs and physical facilities, is financed with gate receipts and contributions from interested fans. And while it does not operate with tax funds, the athletic department is the largest purchaser of university services — meaning, it helps finance other departments of the school.

The Nebraska football team has not chartered an airliner for the Hawaii trip. In an effort toward economy, Coach-Director Bob Devaney reserved seats on the NU Alumni Charter. The Husker team group will include about 50 players, members of the football staff and athletic department administration — with expenses coming out of the athletic department funds, not tax money. They will arrive Wednesday night, spend two days practicing, play the game on Saturday and return Sunday — hardly a vacation.

As for the University of Nebraska at Omaha, there is no athletic connection — other than friendship — between the two departments. UNO operates its own program totally separate from the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers.

In Line Of Duty

Lincoln, Neb.

When I picked up The Star of Tuesday, Nov. 2, and read about the police brutality charge in the Cleveland Randolph case and the possibility that the arresting officers might be suspended for doing their duty, I couldn't believe it. Aren't the officers allowed to protect themselves in the line of doing their duty?

As a mother of students at Lincoln High when Cleveland Randolph was a student there, I would like to say that he was in many fights and threatened to "kill" his opponents. This must be a favorite phrase of his, but I certainly hope he is never able to fulfill his desire.

I would also like to add a note to "Pep-Club Mother." She must not listen to the Lincoln radio stations, as the Lincoln High football game was cancelled on October 29 and cancelled again on November 1.

Dean Bros.
Bid Low On Patrol Cars

The 1972-model cars purchased for the Nebraska State Patrol — about 150 through the year — will be Fords.

Willard Wells, head of the purchasing division within the Administrative Services Dept., reported that Dean Brothers Ford of Lincoln submitted the lowest bid among 11 competitors for the patrol vehicle contract.

The low bid of Deans' was $3,875 for a large-engined Galaxie 500. That was only $2 less than the bid from Gofredson Motor Co. for a Ford III with comparable engine, Wells said. Last year the patrol's new cruisers were Dodge Polaras.

For the second year in a row, American Motors Co. dealers were low bidders for furnishing standard state cars, Wells said.

Behlen Motors of Lincoln was lowest among 14 bidders on four-door sedans and six and nine-passenger station wagons. The respective low bids on AMC Ambassador SSTs were $2,867, $3,217 and $3,309.

American Motors Cars Omaha, submitted the low bid, $2,211; in the intermediate car class. That was for an AMC Matador.

Wells said the state's standards committee recommended that the state acquire "a reasonable number of intermediates" for agencies permitted to have new cars. Last year, he said, the state purchased only 37 new cars, exclusive of State Patrol autos.

A new twist this year is the requirement agencies prove they need such features as power brakes, radio, air conditioning and tinted glass when they requisition a 1972 vehicle, according to Wells.

Letters Are Sent To Towns Hit By Frontier Cutback

The State Aeronautics Department said Thursday letters have gone out to towns affected by a Frontier Airlines service cutback, seeking aid in the fight to restore service.

John Auer of the department said director Nicolas Smeloff has forwarded letters to the towns — Hastings, Kearney, McCook and Lincoln — asking them to contact the Nebraska congressional delegation.

Smeloff was not available for comment.

Auer said it is hoped an inquiry from the state's congressional delegation would speed up a decision by the Civil Aeronautics Board as to whether it would hold a hearing on the cutback.

The state, at the direction of Gov. J. James Exon, launched a campaign to restore one round trip daily between Omaha and Denver, which had stopped at the four other towns.

The state contends the decision by Frontier to drop the flight violates the terms of an operating certificate issued by the federal government.

Under the terms of the certificate, the state contends, Frontier agreed to offer four flights daily between Omaha and Denver. Two were to be non-stop and the other two via the four towns.

The decision to drop the one flight was appealed to the board and a decision is pending on whether a hearing would be held to determine if Frontier was guilty of any wrongdoing.

PTA Units Urged
To See Program

All local PTA units from around the state are being urged to view and discuss a PTA-sponsored educational television program on children's emotional health.

The program, entitled "Yellow Summer," will be broadcast on the statewide ETV network at 9 p.m. Nov. 15, according to Mrs. Marvin Stewart, Lincoln PTA Council president.

At a local council meeting Thursday, PTA members were urged to view the program on what the association believes is an "important area," Mrs. Stewart said.

The meeting also included a presentation on "revitalizing the PTA."

Flags To Honor
Lt. Col. Dutton

Gov. J. J. Exon announced Thursday that flags at the State Capitol will be flown at half staff Friday in honor of Air Force Lt. Col. Richard Dutton who has been missing in action in the Vietnam war since Nov. 5, 1967.

Beatrice To Show Rich Heritage In Museum

... SENATOR'S PIANO, WALKING PLOW ON VIEW

Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Beatrice — Despite a rich heritage dating to 1857, this county-seat community has gone begging when it comes to preservation.

That's about to change this Sunday as Beatrice lifts the lid on the first real showcase in its history. This is a downtown museum established by the fledgling Gage County Historical Society.

Organized only last spring, the group already has 300 members who are hastening to make up for several decades of lost time. Even as volunteers completed exhibits this week in a former bakery, there was talk of eventually expanding to permanent quarters.

"Too many good items have gotten away from us over the years and showed up in other museums in surrounding counties," said Zoa Worden, a retired teacher who serves as the group's energetic historian. "The closest Beatrice ever came to a museum before was the collection of a Mr. Mayerhoff which was displayed for awhile at the courthouse."

Located inconspicuously on the top floor, the items had been given to the nearby Homestead National Monument upon the death of their owner. Only a few which pertained to the homestead era, however, were ever displayed again.

Senator's Piano

Miss Worden's own collections were a starting point for the new museum. Scores of other items, from tobacco cutters to walking plows to the piano of U.S. Senator Algernon S. Paddock, came in from all over the county.

A local emphasis is especially apparent in a one-room photo gallery featuring the collection of the late Clarence Gale. More than 100 enlargements portray a young Beatrice of street cars, Chautauquas and carnival-like "Venetian Nights."

"The Big Blue was alive with decorated canoes for those colorful Venetian Nights," reflected Miss Worden, who'd seen the annual festival at its peak as she began teaching here in 1915. "We even had a river excursion boat in those days, as our gallery shows."

One display of photos and newspaper articles recounts the town's romantic origin of 1857. Enroute up the Missouri river when they struck a sandbar, 14 men planned the settlement as they sat stranded for a couple days.

The town took its name from the daughter of one, Judge John F. Kinney. Although he was elected the group's first president, he settled in Nebraska City and remained there.

'Never Lived Here'

"It's interesting that the daughter who became our namesake never lived here and in fact visited the city only once," said Miss Worden. "She always insisted that the town should properly be called Be-AT-ric and that the first syllable should never be accented."

The story of the Kilpatrick, the four Beatrice brothers who made a fortune laying the Union Pacific and other railroads, is another getting museum attention. And, of course, there are pictures of late actor Robert Taylor, born Arlington Spangler Brugh in nearby Filley.

Once the museum is open and operating, there are hopes that it will continue to grow. Items from the other 15 towns in the county are especially sought.

According to Society president Dick Hovendick, the museum's open house this Sunday will be from 1 to 7 p.m. After that, the schedule calls for opening 1-5 on Sundays and 1-7 on Thursdays. The building is at 419 Court St.

Officers in addition to Hovendick and Miss Worden include Don Fitzwater, vice president; Mrs. Joe Bever, secretary; and Mrs. Leigh Coffin, treasurer.

BRIEF CRISIS ENDS . . .

Swanson Signs Welfare Checks

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's welfare recipients can breathe a sigh of relief, since State Treasurer Wayne Swanson signed some $2.5 million worth of welfare checks Thursday and hurriedly sent them on their way.

Swanson authorized the payments after Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske supplied Swanson with the Appropriation and balance fund statements early Thursday.

This ended a barely one-day-old crisis involving Swanson and Lieske which threatened to grind the state's financial disbursement system to a screeching halt.

"Everything is back to normal," said Deputy Treasurer Ruth Danekas.

"The welfare checks were all signed and returned to the Department of Administrative Services to be sent out to the welfare recipients," she said.

The short-lived dispute erupted Wednesday afternoon when Swanson announced that DAS has not supplied his office with balance sheets and until he received the information he would no longer sign any warrants — including payrolls.

The effect of the action would have been to halt all forms of payments out of the state treasury.

Under the state's procedure, payment warrants are drawn up along with balance statements and sent to the treasurer for approval who returns them to DAS for dissemination.

"You can't be responsible for all this money and not know if an agency has anything to spend when you write the check," Swanson said.

"And I'm the one responsible in the end if something is wrong. Just as long as I get that information, there won't be any more trouble," he said.

Lieske, however, contended that Swanson was getting the information he needed and that the law which Swanson based his balk upon, has been repealed.

A check with the attorney general's office, Lieske said, indicated that Swanson had better start signing the checks or else face legal action.

Chadron Indian Sentenced To Jail—Bread And Water

Chadron — An Indian who Dawes County Court Judge Robert J. Zeman said told the court he wanted to be returned to the Nebraska penitentiary has been sentenced to 10 days in the Dawes County jail on a bread and water diet.

Judge Zeman said Edwin Iron Rope, 33, Chadron, pleaded guilty to attempting to cash a $7 no-funds check at the Favorite Bar in Chadron.

Zeman said he sentenced Iron Rope on Wednesday.

Zeman said Iron Rope was put on a bread and water diet "because he told the court he wanted to go to the penitentiary."

Iron Rope was sentenced in 1970 from Box Butte County to a one to two year term in the State Penal Complex on a burglary charge. He was paroled last March.

Norfolk Woman, Struck By Truck, Dies In Hospital

Norfolk, Neb. — Miss Frances Baker, 54, of Norfolk, died Thursday in a Norfolk hospital from injuries she suffered in a truck-pedestrian accident Thursday afternoon near downtown Norfolk.

The driver of the truck was Lee Droscher, 29, of rural Norfolk.

Police said Miss Baker was crossing the street at 12th and Norfolk at the time of the mishap.

The 1971 Nebraska road fatality toll now stands at 285 compared with 354 on Nov. 5 last year.

One Of Two Shots Said Fatal To Man

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln pathologist told a Lancaster District Court jury Thursday that only one of two shotgun wounds in the body of Harvey Sturm would have caused his death.

However, Dr. Larry D. Tolson said he couldn't say from the autopsy results which shot was fired first in his testimony during the second-degree murder trial of Mrs. Judy Sturm.

Mrs. Sturm, 28, is accused of shooting her sleeping husband during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 at their 2740 Arlington home, but the defense has contended she acted in fear for her life and the safety of her children.

Cause Of Death

Dr. Tolson said the larger of the two wounds located in the lower right chest region caused death because of damage to the liver and heavy bleeding.

The second wound, in the mid-chest, was relatively superficial, according to the pathologist. He said the ring-finger of the left hand, which had apparently been in the area of the larger wound, was missing and a gold wedding band was recovered from the chest cavity along with shotgun pellets.

Dr. Tolson said the fatal wound indicated the shotgun pellets entered at an angle "consistent" with a prone position of a body in bed while the smaller, midchest wound indicated perpendicular entry.

Threatened Her

Testimony by police officers regarding statement made by Mrs. Sturm following the shooting indicated her husband, Harvey, had come home about 2 a.m., in an intoxicated condition, had hit her in the mouth and stomach and threatened to strangle her with a telephone cord if she tried to call police.

Police Inspector Robert Sawdon related Mrs. Sturm told him that she had got a shotgun from the bedroom closet, after her husband had gone to bed, carried it downstairs and loaded it, and then returned upstairs and fired two shots at her sleeping husband.

Sawdon related Mrs. Sturm said she had put the shotgun to her shoulder and shot her husband. "She said he (the husband) appeared to raise up and I shot him again."

'No, She Didn't'

Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan questioned Sawdon if Mrs. Sturm might have said that the husband raised up before she fired the first shot, but the police officer said, "No, she didn't."

On a cross-examination, Sawdon said Mrs. Sturm said she had shut off an alarm clock so her husband would not awake and had never indicated other than that her husband was asleep when she fired the first shot.

"Mrs. Sturm said she then ran next door and told Mrs. (Raymond) Anderson she had shot her husband and to call police," Sawdon said. "She also told the Andersons not to turn on their lights as she wasn't sure her husband was dead and he might come after her."

Died At Hospital

Other testimony indicated Harvey Sturm was unconscious when police officers arrived and died within 15 minutes after being taken to Lincoln General Hospital's emergency room.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. Jeanne Mann, a part-time police matron, said Mrs. Sturm said, "It's a sinful thing I've done tonight."

She said the remark came during otherwise casual conversation while the two were standing outside the Sturm home.

Began To Cry
Mrs. Mann said Mrs. Sturm "appeared very calm" except when relating to Inspector Sawdon how Harvey Sturm had jerked the telephone from the wall and threatened to strangle her with the telephone cord if she called the police. "At that point," she said, "Mrs. Sturm began to cry."

Police Detective Earl Franklin testified the shotgun, with one spent shell lodged in the chamber, and a second on the floor, was recovered between the bedroom door and the foot of the bed.

The officer also demonstrated to the jury the normal procedure for loading and firing the 12-gauge pump-action shotgun.

Mrs. Sturm, according to prosecution testimony, learned to load and shoot a shotgun while pheasant hunting.

Dynamite Was Prank Near Elkhorn School

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas County sheriff's deputies said Thursday dynamite found near the Elkhorn High School was part of a Halloween trick that didn't come off.

Two Elkhorn students, each 17, were referred to Juvenile Court and released to their parents in connection with the placement of the dynamite in a field near the school.

Leroy Parrish, a deputy sheriff, said the youths told him they placed seven sticks of ditching dynamite in the field Sunday night and lit the fuse "as a prank" but the fuse went out.

An eighth grade student found the dynamite during half-time of the school's football game Tuesday night.

Southeast High To Hold Day For Foreign Students

The Lincoln Southeast Student Council will sponsor International Day Friday for foreign exchange students.

The American Field Service representatives from 32 countries will speak to several classes and hold question-and-answer periods.

A special assembly on international affairs will be held to introduce the exchange students and explain the American Field Service Program.

The Lincoln Southeast Key Club will climax International Day with its annual carnival. All proceeds from activity booths will be donated to the American Field Service.

Refreshments will be at 6:30 p.m. and activities will be from 7:00 to 11:00 p.m. Admission, 25 cents and the public is invited.

Union Pacific Slices Wheat-Hauling Rates

Omaha — The Union Pacific Railroad announced Thursday a rail rate reduction of $3 a ton on wheat moving from the major wheat producing areas of Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Kansas to Pacific Coast ports, effective Dec. 8.

Vice President-Traffic Robert P. Pettigrew said the new rate should retain movement of wheat via Union Pacific to Pacific Coast ports and permit expansion of marketing this commodity for export to the Orient and South America.

The railroad's vice president-operations, William J. Fox, also reported Thursday that the railroad expects no real problems in handling grain movements this fall.

Fox reported the railroad has

40 Employees For AT&T In Walkout

Omaha — About 40 workers in the American Telephone and Telegraph long lines department here walked off their jobs about 11:15 a.m., a spokesman for Northwestern Bell said Thursday.

The workers who maintain long distance equipment are members of Local 7150 of the Communications Workers of America.

The spokesman said the walkout came after one of the men was "sent home" when he made an operating error that "adversely affected" service.

Union officials could not be reached for comment.

The company spokesman said normal maintenance work on long distance equipment was being done by supervisory employees.

Walter Walker Sentenced For Shooting Incident

Omaha (UPI) — Walter L. Walker, 20, of Omaha, was sentenced to 3-7 years in the Nebraska Penal complex Thursday for shooting and wounding an Omaha policeman April 24.

Patrolman David Donahue was shot in the chest while answering a disturbance call from a cafe manager. He returned to active duty four months later.

Walker, who was on parole from a burglary conviction at the time, will have to serve the remainder of the burglary sentence before beginning the new term, District Court Judge Donald Hamilton ruled.

2 Farmers Found Dead At Greeley

GREELEY, Neb. (AP) — Edward Jurzenski, 74, and his son, Bernard, 46, Greeley farmers, were found dead in their home Wednesday and Greeley County Attorney Harold Connors said death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

He said furnace flue was plugged and theorized that following a power outage, the furnace was kicked on when electricity was restored and fumes spread over the farm home which is located about five miles northwest of Greeley.

Connors said the two men, who operated the farm in partnership, had an appointment with him Tuesday afternoon, but he did not think anything of it when they failed to keep the appointment.

The deaths were discovered by two linemen from the General Telephone Company, who had come to the home while repair telephone lines downed during the weekend storm. They said they had gone to the house the day before and had apparently found no one at home. They said they returned the next day, saw the elder Jurzenski dead in his chair.

The two had been seen in Greeley late Monday.

Mayor Urged To Seek Federal Approval Of GM Bus Bid

The Lincoln Transportation System Board reviewed the up-in-the-air status of the city's new bus fleet Thursday and urged Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf to seek top-level federal approval of General Motors Corp. as the "responsible low bidder" on providing 36 new coaches.

"We have been totally unsuccessful with the Department of Transportation" to this date, City Atty. Richard Wood said.

The city contends that General Motors submitted the lowest bid on the new coaches if high-mileage tires are included in the specifications. However, the Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA), an arm of DOT, advised the city to accept the bid of The Flibble Co., Loudonville, Ohio, which was figured using smaller-sized tires.

The city points out that if high-mileage tires of the same size are figured in both bids, General Motors' bid would be lower than Flibble's by some $1,500. And Wood said he believes state law will uphold Lincoln's position based on the content of the city's written bid specifications.

Transportation board members urged Mayor Schwartzkopf to meet with top level UMTA officials in Washington at the earliest opportunity to seek a reversal of the earlier decision.

Only if unsuccessful in that effort, the board advised the mayor, should the city ask for authority to reject both bids in hand and call for new ones, specifying the higher-standard components and a six-month delivery date.

UMTA approval is necessary because federal funds are underwriting the purchase.

As the situation now stands, Flibble has indicated a June, 1972, delivery date if it nails down the contract. GM can make delivery by Feb. 29 of next year but if bids are re-advertised, its delivery would be pushed back to mid-April or May.

Extensive delay in unraveling the bidding knot would further jeopardize an early delivery.

Meeting for the first time since it was created by City Council ordinance last month, the advisory board elected Bob Campbell chairman and Mrs. Jan Gauger as vice chairman and initiated work on developing goals for a revitalized bus transportation system.

As part of the total transportation picture, the board heard a proposal to make use of available funds under the Lincoln Area-wide Project on Aging to finance discounted bus rides for all Lincoln senior citizens.

The area-wide project on aging, which the city operates through a contractual arrangement with the Nebraska Commission on Aging, could make some $30,000 available for this purpose during the first six months of next year with an appropriate increase in support during ensuing years.

Jim Zietlow, project coordinator, noted that the proposal would reduce the present 30-cent fare to 10 cents for the elderly. Of the 20-cent reduction, funds from the commission on aging would finance three-fourths, or 15 cents. The city would make up the additional 5-cent subsidy. The arrangement would finance 200,000 rides.

A tandem proposal would utilize county matching funds and city in-kind services to provide door-to-door, escorted minibus transportation for older persons who need such services in order to maintain independent living.

Tuesday, the Lancaster County Commissioners allocated $4,500 for County participation in the joint project.

The transportation board Thursday tabled action on both plans, but promised further consideration at a second November meeting scheduled for the 16th.

Mrs. Gauger was assigned to work with the project coordinator in detailing rate reduction alternatives that would be acceptable to the city.

The project on Aging application for federal funds faces a Nov. 27th deadline for submission.

The city-county minibus plan won the unofficial approval of most board members.

A majority, however, seemed hesitant to recommend a built-in rate change this early in the system's operation. Several questioned whether all elderly persons were of sufficient need to benefit from a reduced fare.

Education Official 'Not Opponent' Of Parochial Schools

"I am not an opponent of private and parochial schools, but rather a proponent of the Constitution, referenda of the people and statutes of the Legislature," John E. Lynch, executive director of the Nebraska State Education Assn., said Thursday.

His comment came in a talk entitled "Tax Funds for Non-Public Schools — No." before the Lincoln Sertoma Club, which next week will hear Paul O'Hara of the Nebraska Catholic Conference discuss the opposite position.

The "establishment clause" says that "Congress can make no law respecting an establishment of religion..." while the 14th Amendment holds that Congress "cannot make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges... of citizens..." Lynch said.

He agreed with Thomas Jefferson that it is "sinful and tyrannical" for a man to provide money for causes he does not believe in.

Many Cases

There have been many cases brought before the U.S. Supreme Court in an attempt to "get around" the 1st and 14th Amendments, according to Lynch.

He said that in these cases the Supreme Court has reaffirmed the constitutionality of health services to non-public school students, bus transportation and the loan of textbooks.

But he cited the U.S. Supreme Court's recent rulings knocking down public financial aid to private school systems in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania for "excessive entanglement between government and religion."

Lynch said it would "be impossible to have a government censor in every classroom to see if government taxes are used properly."

Although state funds were secured for teaching of secular subjects in parochial schools in such cases, Lynch said, surveillance would be necessary, as "curriculum descriptions can be misleading."

Constitution 'Restrictive'

Lynch said Nebraska has one of the "most restrictive" sections in its Constitution on appropriating state funds to any institution which is not directly owned or directed by the state.

Lynch added that the Nebraska Constitution provides for free education in the common schools and this "precludes legislation for providing funds for non-common (parochial and private schools.) schools."

Lynch cited two proposed amendments concerning busing for non-public school pupils and direct grants to non-public schools, both of which were rejected by the people in public referenda.

He also said a Gallup poll taken four years ago showed 60% of the Nebraskans polled were directly against the allocation of public funds.

'Youth Appreciation Week' Events Scheduled By Local Optimist Clubs

A "youth appreciation week" sponsored by Lincoln Optimist Clubs gets under way Monday and ends next Sunday with an event honoring some 200 outstanding youths in the community.

Also on Monday, winners of an essay contest on the topic, "what's right about our country," will be announced. Those winners and their parents will be honored at a banquet on Nov. 14 at the Congress Inn.

The appreciation week began as a project of the West Lincoln Optimists and has since spread to other clubs throughout the city.

The week's events include: —an information session on military service for teenage boys and girls and their parents at 8 p.m. at General Arnold School in Lincoln Air Park.

—a penitentiary inmate presentation on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at General Arnold.

—a Nebraska State Patrol presentation on drug abuse at 7 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday at General Arnold. The Optimists are urging senior high students and parents to attend Wednesday, junior high on Thursday.

—a display for smaller children of law enforcement and fire equipment at General Arnold at 7 p.m. Friday.

—an "auto rodeo" at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the State Patrol Training center in the Air Park for youngsters 16 to 18 and a Boy Scout camp site contest at the same time near the old Huskerville housing area.

—awarding of certificates to outstanding youth at 3 p.m. Sunday at General Arnold, followed by the 7 p.m. banquet for essay winners.

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN
Good morning:
Most of us have flashes of what seems to be genius. Unfortunately, not all of these ideas materialize, if in fact, they are plausible.
There is the exception that keeps our world progressing and changing. One of these contributions has been offered by Nelson Potter, assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Nebraska. His proposal conceives a University Council of the Arts, which (in simple terms) would spur interest in the arts on campus and serve to stimulate and coordinate arts activities, both on campus and in the community.
Development of the arts is dependant greatly on education and exposure. Mr. Potter's concept seems such a natural that we wonder it has not been done before. However, there is a great deal of work involved in organizing such a Council. With assistance of both the campus community and citizens at large, the prospects of this much needed organization are excellent.
Those who might be interested are urged to contact Mr. Potter (who you will find quite amiable), at the University—472-2428
Now for your further entertainment:

PERFECT COMPANIONS . . . music and art will hold hands on Sunday at the Elder Gallery at Nebraska Wesleyan University campus as the NWU Chamber Ensemble presents the second concert in a series. Guest artist will be Arnold Schatz, violin, who will perform "Sonata A 3" by H.I.F. Biber with Morris Collier, violin. Paintings and drawings by Richard Terrell will serve as background for the 3 p.m. recital.

CHARMING AUTHENTICITY . . . four outstanding talents, the Early Music Quartet will open the season of The Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music tonight at 8 o'clock. The group has received marvelous reviews and is said to make 13th, 14th and 15th century music come alive. Tickets are still available at Sheldon Art Gallery, where the concert is held.

NEW PIN-UPS . . . Sheldon Art Gallery will open an exhibit of graphic design on Tuesday, Nov. 9. Each week the gallery receives a poster or so, and in addition to historic posters which have been purchased, the total collection reveals a capsule history from the art nouveau 1890's to the swinging '70's.

COMBINED TALENTS . . . contemporary American and classic European composers will be presented on Sunday at 8 p.m. in the University of Nebraska's Symphony Orchestra opening concert. Conducted by Prof. Emanuel Wishnow, the program will feature everything from "The School for Scandal" by Samuel Barber, to works by Tchaikowsky and Grieg. The concert will be presented at Kimball Recital Hall, 11th and R.

LINCOLN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CURTAIN CALL . . . will play in concert on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9 at the Stuart Theatre. Leo Kopp will conduct the program.
. . . LAST CHANCE . . . to see Jean Genet's moving drama, "The Balcony" on Friday and Saturday at Howell University Theatre.

TOWN TALK

It's a busy weekend—and that statement won't come as surprising news to anyone. You might say that Saturday will be divided into three parts—morning and pre-game brunches — afternoon game — and evening —dining and dancing all around the town.
Speaking of the pre-game affairs—We found another one that is just a bit different. We hear that the Kappa Delta Mothers Club is having a pre-game luncheon at the chapter house from 11 o'clock until 1 o'clock.

Some of those dinner dances we mentioned have been planned by dancing clubs, and one of them is the Terpsichorean Club party in the Terrace Room at Hotel Lincoln. If anyone is taking it for granted that the party theme will have to do with football, perish the thought. The Terpsichorean committee has chosen to use "Harvest Festival" as its theme.
Arranging the dinner dance is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Ault and Mr. and Mrs. Vance James.
Guests at the party will include Mrs. Charles Yumbut and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace, all of Scottsbluff.

Over at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel on Saturday evening the members of the Saturday Nite Club will be making merry at a "Mr. Football" party. It is a dinner dance, of course, and committee honors go to Mr. and Mrs. Dean Cooper, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Dean Sterner, Dr. and Mrs. Rudolph J. Meyer. Mr. and Mrs. John Grasmick, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lind.
Guest couples at the dinner dance will be Mr. and Mrs. William Riley of Hickman; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brinkman of Atkinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Ostberg of Monroe, Ala., formerly of Lincoln.
Since the last time we talked about the Saturday Nite Club some new names have been added to the club roster — two new member couples are Mr. and Mrs. John Grasmick and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones

MISS ELIZABETH HINES

Campus circles will have a special interest this morning in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. Hines of Benkelman, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Susan, to James L. Carse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon B. Carse of Palisade.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Jan. 8, and the ceremony will be solemnized in Benkelman.

Miss Hines is a junior in the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry where she is majoring in dental hygiene. She is a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Mr. Carse is a senior in the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration, and his fraternity is Theta Xi.

Courtesies For Bride-Elect

Entertaining in prenuptial courtesy Friday evening, Nov. 5, to their son, Loren Vynalek, and his fiancée, Miss Judy

Halling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Halling, whose marriage will be solemnized on Saturday Nov. 6. Mr. and Mrs.

Milo Vynalek of Dorchester will be host and hostess at a dinner to be held at the Colonial Inn.

The guests will include members of the families and of the bridal party.

Miss Halling was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower on Saturday evening, Oct. 30. Hostesses for the party, held at Union Loan and Savings, were Mrs. Warren Geiger and her daughter, Claire, and Mrs. Gerald Halling of Waverly.

The popular soon-to-be bride was presented with a linen shower on Friday evening, Oct. 22, when a group of guests gathered at the City National Bank in Crete for the party. Hostesses included Mrs. Frank Bosak, Mrs. Edward Busboom, Mrs. Stanley Fink, Mrs. Clair Green, Mrs. Albert Hrdlicka, Mrs. Harry Kahle, Mrs. Charles Prokop, Mrs. J. T. Shaw, Mrs. Harvey Wagner, Mrs. Robert Bullock, Mrs. John Springer, and Mrs. Elmer Zajick, all of Dorchester.

Wedding Of Interest

Announcement is made this morning of the marriage of Priscilla Eiche Grosshans, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dee Eiche, to S.Sgt. Edmund F. Rech, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Rech of rural David City, which was solemnized at high noon on Thursday, Oct. 28, in Las Vegas, Nev.

For the ceremony the bride wore a sheath dress of blue brocade in daytime length, with a matching coat of the brocade. She carried an heirloom Czech prayer book ornamented with lilies of the valley and blue satin streamers. She wore a cluster of lilies of the valley in her hair.

The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, and is a former member of the Lincoln Junior League.

S.Sgt. Rech is attached to the Headquarters Detachment of the Nebraska National Guard.

two succeeds, you are faced with an altogether different problem. Since you now have no potential losers outside of trumps, you should bend every effort to avoid losing more than one trump trick.

Accordingly, at trick three, you play a low spade to the ace and, if both opponents follow suit, you are home. Continue with a low spade and, if North follows low, insert the nine as a safety measure to cover the possibility of his having started with the Q-10-x-x.

If North follows suit with the ten or queen at trick four, you win with the king and easily make the slam, while if North shows out on the second trump lead, you go up with the king and return the nine towards the trump loser.

The heart finesse is taken at trick two — before tackling trumps — in order to be in a position to discover the best way of handling the trumps.

2. Win the spade with the queen and cash the A-K-J, discarding two diamonds from dummy. Then play a diamond towards dummy, finessing the nine. When South wins with the queen or king, he is bound to hand you the twelfth trick regardless of which suit he elects to return. He is employed in three suits.

Annual Luncheon

A red-letter date on the social calendars of members of the Lincoln Woman's Club is Monday, Nov. 8 — the day that has been set aside for one of the organization's very special annual events.

On that particular afternoon, the club's members will gather for a birthday luncheon to be held at the University Club. The festivities will begin at 12:30 o'clock, and the guests of honor will include former Lincoln Woman's Club presidents.

Also on hand for the annual event will be a number of officers of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs.

Included on the afternoon's

agenda will be a talk presented by guest speaker, Roger M. Thomas. Mr. Thomas, who is associated with KOLN-KGIN-TV, will speak on the topic, "Something Different."

Club members who are interested in attending the annual celebration are asked to contact Mrs. Harry Hust, 488-1831. Reservations should be made by Friday evening, Nov. 5.

on a tour of the Lincoln shops

Winter is at our feet without a doubt. It will only be a matter of a few brief weeks and it will be difficult to remember that summer ever was here. If you have not as yet completed your supply of warm outer wear, you will be interested to follow our shopping tour this week and see what is available for the woman of the house, as well as the little boy and girl.

We also stopped in at a new shop that has recently opened. It is a new place to stop when you are looking for that special gift.

AT THE UNIQUE

The new gift shop has been open a mere week, and it is located in a corner of Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker.

The boutique specializes in handmade items, including imports, American products, and local consignments.

In The Unique, we found glassware, hand carved items, ceramics, candles, and much, much more.

We were fascinated by the unusual carved lamp from India and the bedspreads from Spain, Taiwan, and Italy. They are made of velvets, brocades, and silks. Velvet also is used in the interesting Mexican paintings.

The candles are made locally and are truly unique, — they have attractive artificial flowers built right in, and they come in a multitude of colors.

The ceramics, from South Dakota and Lincoln, are all quite unusual, and we particularly liked the Christmas section with ceramics and candles — one ceramic set depicts the Nativity Scene.

Also in the shop are tablecloths from Spain, unusual hanging lights, tile trivets, ashtrays, and even hand made furniture — including a secretary which is antique red and white!

AT BRANDEIS

Little girls and boys will be as warm as toast when they add hats, gloves and scarves to their winter outer wear.

In the boys' department we found many stocking caps. Among the newer head wear is a knit stocking cap that not only will fit down over the forehead, but also covers the entire head in the back. This helmet look is completed with a knit strap that wraps under the chin and buttons. Available in gold, navy or red, the caps have figures of a cartoon character in the pattern.

But there are many other stocking caps to gaze upon, and they are in solid colors of brown, black and blue with colorful geometric prints.

For those little hands, the ski motif is most popular for both boys and girls. Knit mittens are colorfully decorated. Some of the mittens feature imitation leather palms.

Boys will be boys, and when the snow comes he will want to be outdoors in the midst of it. One pair of mittens designed with this activity in mind foam on the outside, and insulated on the inside. They are also waterproof. These mittens are available in brown with red trim, black with white trim and blue with red trim.

In the girls' department we found that tams and scarves, much like mommy's, are the hottest item this year. They come in matching patterns, and some have gloves or mittens to match.

Stripes are very popular in these items, and we found combinations of red and blue, brown and beige, and green and white. One of the newer looks is the tweed knit, and there are matching tams and scarves in a deep red and black tweed, as well as gold and black.

We were told that mittens were far more popular this year than gloves for little girls. Again, the ski design seems to be the big seller. And there are ski gloves as well of imitation leather and knit, with insulated linings.

The helmet look is also available for girls, and it appears in a knit hat with a chin strap. Fur hats, with long ties, also are available and, of course, the fur is fake.

AT MILLER & PAINE

The knitted look is really strong this year, and milady would be proud to wear any of the sets we found at Miller's. The head, neck, and hand wear for the cold winds of the winter months also will be the choice of the teens and coeds as they go to and from classes, on shopping trips or wherever.

One of the most stunning ensembles included a beret, mittens and scarf all of navy with a criss-cross pattern of blues and greens — and then there was the quite textured looking set with a billed cap, scarf, mittens, and matching purse. This outfit comes in a combination of blues, brown and rust, or red and purple.

We found a set of mittens in the rust shade that give the impression that they lace up the hand. There is a beret to match.

The slouch hats are in vogue this season and one was fashioned of chocolate brown with a wide beige stripe. The tasseled hat has gloves to match. Other color combinations of this particular style are black and white and red and navy.

Stars and stripes are featured on the billed cap with matching scarf we found at Miller's — and then there is the popcorn knit which seems to be here to stay. This textured look comes in all shades and is used for mittens, all styles of hats, and scarves.

Another 'new' in the head gear line is the helmet. These head-hugging caps have chin straps, and there once again are matching mittens in a multitude of shades.

For the more sophisticated, we found a set, including a banded hat, gloves and scarf, of a double knit material with a striking print of brown and beige on a white background.

Abby: she must own shop

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have had the same hairdresser for years. She does nice work and I had always looked forward to my weekly appointment.

Unfortunately, someone gave her a small portable television for a gift. She then started bringing it to work so she could watch a program on her lunch time. Fine. Soon she started to watch the program which followed it. Then the next. And the next. Until now she's got it on all afternoon.

I am not only speaking for myself because other customers have told me that since she's had the TV set in her booth her work is slipping. Also, she is very unpleasant and cranky. If someone speaks to her, she goes, "Shhhhh, I want to her this."

She is a faithful reader of your column. How can I let her know I miss her formerly friendly chat chat?

DEAR UNHAPPY: After this hits print, you may not have to. (P.S. She must own her own shop. I can't imagine the boss putting up with this.)

DEAR ABBY: May I have the last word about the policy one church had of allowing the preacher exactly one hour in which to deliver his sermon, and if he talked longer, he would be automatically "drowned out" by chimes?

In my opinion, the world has enough Saturday and Sunday Christians, and could certainly use more who practice their religion seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

If I want to pray, I don't want to wait until Saturday or Sunday. It might be too late then.

J.J.O., WAUKEEN, ILL.

Council On Student Life Approves Change In Activities Requirements

The Council on Student Life (CSL) at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln decided in an 8 to 6 vote Thursday night to allow all regularly registered students of the university to participate in extracurricular activities.

This action nullifies the previous requirement of registering for 12 hours of classes before a student could hold an elective office, participate on committees and other such activities.

The amendment provides for the right of organizations to set the requirements for their members even though the overall requirement would be for a student to register for only a one hour class.

A few members of the group were not in favor of dropping the 12 hour requirement because they felt students with extremely light class loads would not truly represent their constituent students.

But another council member countered this with the argument that even if a student registers for only one hour he still must pay for the Daily

Nebraskan, the student union, ASUN and other such services; and he should be able to participate in the redistribution of his fees.

Dr. Sam Treves, chairman of the faculty senate committee on committees, said that he was concerned with the removal of the 12 hour rule because of students appointed to faculty senate committees. He said that the faculty senate has in the past been going on the assumption that all students on their committees would be registered for 12 hours.

The group pointed out to Dr. Treves that the ability of the faculty senate to control the students in its committees would still be available within the new amendment.

Funeral Services Monday For Dr. E. C. Mueller, 85

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at Trinity Lutheran Church, 12th & H, for Dr. E. Charles Mueller, 85, of San Antonio, Tex., who died Tuesday.

Dr. Mueller was born near Columbus and graduated from Concordia Teachers College at Seward in 1907. He received a BA degree from the University of Nebraska in 1923.

Dr. Mueller taught at Immanuel in Lincoln from 1913 to 1916 and at Trinity in Lincoln from 1916 to 1943. In 1943 he became executive secretary of Christian education for the Lincoln and Juniata Districts. He served until being named to the same office for the Southern Nebraska Districts in 1950.

degree from Concordia Teachers College.

He moved to San Antonio in 1963 and was a member of Concordia Lutheran Church there.

Survivors include his wife, Martha L.; sons, Col. W. M. of San Antonio, Roland E. of Anaheim, Calif. and E. Charles Jr. of Palos Verdes, Calif.; daughter, Mrs. Cleo T. (Marcella) Wells of Deadwood, S.D.; brothers, Louis C. of Shelby, Hugo of Santa Clara, Calif. and Herbert of Bellflower, Calif.; sister, Mrs. Richard Wendt of Bell, Calif.; 11 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Visitation will be from 10 a.m. Monday until the time of services.

CSL chairman, Dr. Frank Eldridge, said that the decision would be sent to Interim Chancellor, C. Peter Magrath, who will review it and make a decision as to whether it is to go into effect as it is or whether it should be forwarded to the Board of Regents for further consideration.

Britain's Psychiatrists Driven To Breakdowns

London (U) — Many of Britain's hospital psychiatrists are being driven to nervous breakdowns because of overwork and strain, according to a report presented to the National Association of Mental Health.

From 1952 until 1956 he served that district as executive secretary for education, missions and stewardship.

Dr. Mueller was a member of the District Mission Board, the Board of Parish Education, the Executive Board of the Nebraska District Walther League, the Board of Governors, Nebraska District Lutheran Laymen's League, the Board of Control of Concordia Teachers College and many committees and commissions.

In 1962, Dr. Mueller received an honorary Doctor of Laws

Conference On Power Use Set By Agricultural Council

A power use conference related to the problems of providing power to the proposed expansion of the state's irrigation facilities has been called under the auspices of the Nebraska Agricultural Council for Wednesday Nov. 10 at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln.

The council has invited representatives of industries that supply fuel or power to the irrigators. These include electricity, liquid petroleum, natural gas and propane. A representative of the power review board has also been invited.

"We have been asked to expand irrigation but we need to be sure the energy is available to pump the water and operate the systems and we need to know what it will cost. There are shortages of some power sources for irrigation already reported in the state," said Ray Radliff chairman of the council.

The council is also expected to discuss the possibility of establishing an area wide agricultural organization to include representatives of farm groups in several states.

Employees Say Donations Asked For Douglas Clerk

Omaha (U) — Some employees of County Clerk Lloyd Kilmer say they have been asked to donate 2 1/2 to 3% of their salaries to help elect him but Kilmer disclaimed any knowledge of the requests.

Commissioner Jerry Hassett, said he has received calls from six of Kilmer's employees who complained of the request.

The Omaha World Herald said a reporter spoke with four Kilmer employees who said they had been asked to donate, but asked not to be named.

Kilmer is a Republican,

Hassett a Democrat.

The employees said the requests were not made by Kilmer, himself, but by "supervisors" in the clerk's office and they said they were told Kilmer was not connected with the solicitations.

Kilmer said he was vacationing in the Ozarks last week and knew nothing about meetings where the requests were reported to have been made.

"We don't permit any solicitations in this office," Kilmer said.

The Nebraska Agricultural Council is made up of representatives of the Nebraska Farmers Union, the Nebraska National Farmers Organization, the Nebraska State Grange, the Wheatgrowers, Nebraska wool growers and several other commodity groups in the state.

Vandals Break More Windows With Slingshots

Another rash of damaged windows apparently by vandals using slingshots was reported Thursday by police.

Police said the windows of four residences, a dairy store and a parked car were reported hit by small metal objects apparently propelled by slingshots.

Additionally, a stained glass window in the Second Baptist Church at 525 No. 58th was hit, but the extent of damage was not immediately estimated.

Estimated damage to the other windows, including several thermal and plate-glass windows, was in excess of $400.

Two plate glass windows at Robin Mickle Junior High, valued at $100, were also damaged, but apparently by a BB or pellet gun, according to police.

Bowling Alley, Supper Club Closed Pending Court Action

Tony's Ranch Bowl and the El Rancho Supper Club in Emerald will remain closed until at least early December, manager Robert D. Hays said Thursday.

The club, which is leased by B & H Inc., headed by Hays, closed Oct. 27 under a federal lien for unpaid Social Security taxes, but the lien was removed last week.

Hays said the club will remain closed however until litigation pending in Lancaster District Court is settled, which he said was unlikely before early December.

Court records indicate a foreclosure action brought by The Commonwealth Co. against Santo V. (Tony) Quattrocchi, a former owner and operator of the club, two dissolved El Rancho corporations, the B & H corporation as present leaseholder of the club property and equipment, and several other individuals.

B & H took over the club and bowling alley operation last April, according to Hays.

VA Includes Questionnaire To Determine Entitlement

A questionnaire determining whether 8,000 Nebraska veterans, widows, orphans and parents receiving benefit payments from the Veterans Administration are entitled to continued benefits will be included with their November benefit check.

Over 38,000 Nebraska claimants are receiving payments totaling over $3,250,000 monthly, according to an announcement received by the Lancaster County Veteran's Service Officer, Denzel Dawson.

The announcement said that continued entitlement to these benefits will in many cases depend upon the amount of the claimant's income.

Dawson said that the questionnaires must be properly completed and returned to the VA no later than Jan. 15, 1972; otherwise the January check will not be released.

These are the best of all possible days in Madrid. Warm and pleasant. Sidewalk cafe weather on the Gran Via, one of the world's finest shopping streets.

In the fine morning, we give the doorman at the Palace Hotel five pesetas — a "duro" — to whistle up a cab. And so to a cafe along the avenue. To have a coffee and check the passing action.

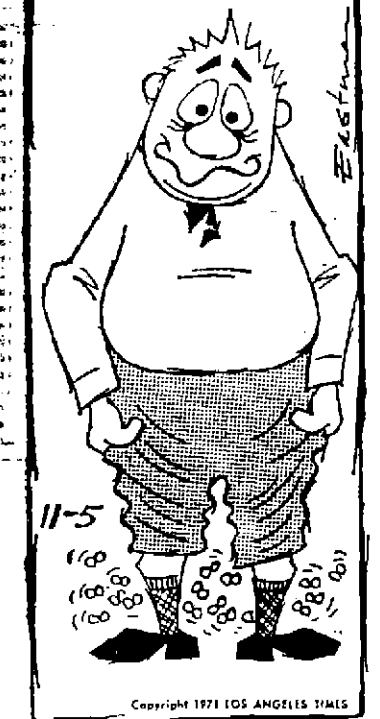

It's the only way to go.

A string of cafeterias called "Manila" has opened since I was here last. They are for the homesick American. Tired of paella and Spanish clams, baby eels and the burnt custard called "flan."

The Manilas feature roast beef sandwiches. Hamburgers and Mom's apple pie.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

The late Pulitzer Prize-winning science editor, John J. O'Neill, declared that astronomers who consistently attack astrology show definite symptoms of "professional paranoia."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You make up with relatives, neighbors. Differences can be settled. Your twin allies now are humor and versatility. Avoid obstinacy. Those in positions of authority are willing to listen.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can successfully complete important transaction. Efforts show a profit. Key is willingness to invest in your own ideas. Abilities. Collect what you need. Be observant, alert.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take initiative. Make new starts. Stress greater independence. Personal magnetism soars. Opposite sex is attracted. You can get almost anything you request. Be selective. Choose quality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Use imagination in constructive manner. Avoid brooding. Stop thinking about what might have been. Look to future. It is brighter than might be imagined. Follow through on pet project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social activity is emphasized. Turn on charm. Business, personal proposals deserve to be evaluated. Don't pass up opportunity. Sagittarius individual could play prominent role. Be receptive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be thorough in checking details. What appears minor could be important for you. Some apparent restrictions will ultimately prove beneficial. Get rid of outmoded concepts. Build on solid base.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on journeys, higher education, future travel-vacation plans. Be in touch with relatives at a distance. Define terms. Be consistent. Be ready for change of scenery. Welcome challenge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Discuss inventory, financial plans with mate. Business associate. Harmonize efforts. Make conciliatory gesture to family member. Domestic adjustment is due. Beautify surroundings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Defer final judgment. Wait and see. Emphasis is on public relations, how you meet opposition. Mate or partner may play prominent role. Some puzzle pieces remain out of place. Take your time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid extremes. Moderate approach now brings best results. Act accordingly. Accent on health, work, ability to complete basic chores. Aid forthcoming from one you helped in past. Show gratitude.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative efforts succeed. Do things your own way. Adhere to individual style. Dealing with children accented. Young ideas dominate. Recognition comes from surprise source. Aries is involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Practical issues dominate. You are able to put across views. Be original rather than attempting to follow crowd. Cooperate with Leo individual. Fine for entertaining at home. Show off hobby.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, vital, capable of creating new concepts. Members of opposite sex find you attractive. You are recovering from recent setback. And you will come back stronger than ever. Before the end of November, you will be rid of emotional burden.

Two NU Students Named Recipients Of $250 Stipends

Missouri Valley Machinery Co. scholarships have been awarded to two electrical engineering students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The College of Engineering and Architecture students receiving the $250 stipends are Terrill L. Bundy of Tekamah and Thomas J. Rich of Columbus.

Bundy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Rich of Columbus.

The Wimpy — thanks be — has not yet hit Spain. The Wimpy is a hamburger — European style. It's a chain. Worse imitation hamburgers you have never eaten.

In London where they started, they are patted flat and fried hard in lard. Wimpies are sold along with an ersatz milk shake called a "Whipsie."

We were having a drink in the Palace bar. It's famous. All the great people of Europe and those who come to Europe have a drink in the Palace bar.

It's an elegant place: Black marble floors. Gold oriental carvings. Rich brown leather seats. Red-jacketed waiters serve you, and the bartenders pour with a loose wrist.

A Hollywood producer was talking: "The Wimpy was taken from England to France by a man I know who couldn't make a dime in the motion picture business. It was an immediate success."

"Why? God knows. You'd think the French, with their insistence on good French food, would have thrown the man in jail for bringing such stuff into France."

"But they adored it. He then proceeded to take the Wimpy to Italy. He destroyed Rome. They preferred Wimpys to pasta. Viva!"

The waiter brought us little plates of salted Spanish almonds and green olives. Service in the Palace — and in its more social sister, the Ritz — is excellent.

Both are run by Alfonso Font, probably the best known hotelier in Europe. Font came in and joined us and the producer said:

"Mind you this fellow has been a complete failure in making movies, selling movies, producing, what have you. He could lose money on 'The Stewardesses' — that crazy thing — that's now topping all pictures for income."

"Anyway, he has now ruined Rome with Wimpys. He now employs five Italian pizza chefs. He takes them to Germany and opens a string of pizza parlors."

"Instant success! The Germans go mad for pizza."

"He is now building a three-story pizza parlor in Munich for the Olympics. Or whatever it is they're having there."

Font said the jet airplane and the tourist crush had changed customs all over Europe.

"The Spanish dinner hour has been moved up from 11 p.m. to 9 o'clock. Not for the Spanish — we still eat at the late hour. The restaurants and hotels had to open earlier for the Americans. They insist on earlier dinners."

"The Manilas, the hamburgers, all are new to Europe."

On the Gran Via there's a little standup shop labeled: "Perros Calientes." That's hog dogs, Senor. Que lastima!

Wonderful days in Madrid! The sun shines. The sky is blue. The paella is not like what Mother used to make. It's a lot better.

Plenty of traffic. But not the crushing, noisy traffic of Paris and Athens. Madrilenos do a lot of walking. They have nice places to do it. Tree-lined boulevards. Splashing fountains.

So to Valentin's for melon and Serrano ham and Spanish wine. Living it up. For tomorrow we may have to eat hamburgers.

Playing One At A Time

One of the things you've got to admire most about this Nebraska football team is their dedication to taking care of the business at hand.

So far at least, they have refused to be caught up in the fever that has hit fans and writers about the Thanksgiving Day thing.

As far back as the Kansas game, the fever was running high among NU fans, not for the Kansas game but for the Oklahoma game which was six weeks away.

"Hardly anyone knows we're coming to town," KU sports information director Jay Simon remarked after a tour of some Lincoln coffee houses. "All your fans are talking about is Oklahoma."

Jay and the Jayhawks discovered that Saturday that while the fans might have been thinking of Oklahoma, the Husker players and coaches were thinking of Kansas and proved it with a 55-0 victory.

It's been that way every week since then and some of those Husker victims surely must wish the NU gridders would look ahead just a little.

"We've had no problem with looking past an opponent yet," NU head coach Bob Devaney points out. "And this is no week to start."

Some folks may consider the one-at-a-time theme an old cliché, but the Huskers have used it well.

Several teams apparently got caught looking ahead last week or maybe it was the prognosticator who was looking ahead. Whatever the reason, the mark was only 35-17 for a percentage of .673, dropping the season record to 294-113-4 for a percentage of .720. This week:

- #### The Big Eight
- NEBRASKA 35, Iowa State 3 . . . With Reggie to shut out you've got to stop them farther out than you do most teams.
- OKLAHOMA 45, Missouri 7 . . . It's going to take people to stop the wishbone-T and Missouri, along with most folks, doesn't have the right kind of people.
- COLORADO 38, Kansas 21 . . . The Buffs can't compete with Nebraska and Oklahoma, but they're better than anyone else in the Big Eight and than most teams in any other league you'd care to name.
- OKLAHOMA STATE 21, Kansas State 14 . . . The Wildcats got their league win last week. That's it for them this year.
- #### The Top Ten
- MICHIGAN 41, Iowa 0 . . . You talk about not being tested. Well, at least, Iowa enjoyed a one-game winning streak.
- ALABAMA 28, LSU 17 . . . This is the one the Tigers were playing last week when they got upset by Mississippi. They should have paid more attention to Ole Miss and they might have come out of the two-week set with a 1-1 instead of a 0-2 record.
- AUBURN 42, Mississippi State 7 . . . Auburn can afford to look past this one to Georgia next week.
- PENN STATE 41, Maryland 0 . . . The only tough one the Nittany Lions have left is Dec. 4, Tennessee.
- GEORGIA 35, Florida 7 . . . The Bulldogs better not be looking ahead to Auburn.
- NOTRE DAME 28, Pittsburgh 0 . . . The Fighting Irish are still very much in the bowl picture, not because of their less-than-great team but because of their national following.
- OHIO STATE 27, Michigan State 21 . . . If you like upsets, you might pick the Spartans in this one.
- ARIZONA STATE 35, Brigham Young 20 . . . Another loss by Arizona State and they might cancel the Fiesta Bowl this year.

—EXPERIENCE SHOWING IN DRILLS— Husker Cage Boss Cipriano Pleased With Guards, Jura

After a couple of weeks of practice, Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano says his Cornhusker club is "living up to expectations — maybe even doing better than I expected." ted.

The Huskers have experienced guards and a fine center, and naturally, those are the two spots that have impressed Joe the most.

"We are really pleased with the play of our guards so far in practice," Cipriano said. "Al Nissen and Tom Gregory are returning veterans and are doing a good job, but they're

Outlook Bright For Nebraska Pheasant Hunters

... SHOOTERS EXPECTED TO BAG MORE THAN A MILLION; SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Over a million pheasants were taken out of Nebraska fields by resident hunters last year, and game commission officials predict that the harvest this year will exceed last year's.

"We should be in pretty good shape this year," Norm Day, biologist for the game commission said when asked about this year's pheasant crop. "Our surveys show that the pheasant population is slightly above the 1970 population."

Day indicated, however, that the surveys

haven't shown just how great the increase in population is, but he added that beyond some peculiarities, "We do have a fairly well-distributed population."

Day pointed out that the rainwater basin running south and west of the Platte River "looks pretty good" with Custer and Sherman counties slightly above last year.

"Actually, the panhandle shows up best in the state," Day offered. "But hunting is rather restricted out there. There is not as much freedom in the panhandle as there is in other parts of the state. It's not as general an area."

The extreme southeast and northeast portions of the state are behind last year, he indicated.

"The southeast portion is part of a management area we use which makes it tough for the hunter," Day explained. "But basically, it is not a traditional pheasant area."

"In the past few years, it has become flush with pheasants, but that's starting to taper off. It isn't a typical area."

Day cited the extreme blizzards in late December and February as a cause for the decline in the northeast and southeast areas.

"The northeast area is down considerably," he said. "But I don't think this will hold. The population should rise for next year barring any unforeseen catastrophes."

The over-all picture, though, seems to be a bright one for gunners as the pheasant season shifts into gear with opening day Saturday.

"We should have a really good year," Day said. "By all counts, it should be better than last year."

—IOWA STATE COACH CAN FIND NO CRACKS IN BLACK SHIRT DEFENSE— Majors Calls Huskers Complete Team—In Every Way

Ames, Iowa (AP) — It's back to the defensive drawing boards for Iowa State this week in preparing to face top-ranked Nebraska.

Saturday's meeting at Lincoln comes only a week after the improving Cyclones were bruised — on the field and on the scoreboard — 43-12 by second-ranked Oklahoma at Norman.

"Nebraska is in every way the complete football team," warns Cyclone Coach Johnny Majors. "I don't see any cracks in their defense."

Majors said the main task for his 5-2 team will be to rethink his defense this week, structuring it to stop a balanced team after having to contend with Oklahoma's potent wishbone.

In the wake of the defeat by Oklahoma, Majors moaned more his team's lack of offense than its defensive shortcomings.

"Our defense did a relatively good job in holding them to 43 points," offered Majors. "But our offense let us down."

Oklahoma staggered Iowa State for 504 yards rushing — and 679 total yards. The Cyclones managed 235 yards, but only 99 on the ground.

"We must be much sharper offensively against Nebraska than we were against Oklahoma," noted Majors. "If we get the scoring opportunities we have to capitalize."

SPARTANS MAUL PIUS

... CAMPAIGNS CONCLUDED

Coach Lee Zentic's East High Spartans methodically dissected the Pius X defense with a balance passing and running game to record a 36-0 football victory at Seacrest Field Thursday night.

The one-sided triumph closed out a highly successful 8-1 campaign for the Spartans, who scored 345 points this season while allowing just 63.

East gained 350 yards on the ground and tacked on 145 more through the air for a 495-yard total, while holding the Thunderbolts to a combined 159 yards.

Though neither team could move the first time it had the ball, East scored on its next two possessions to run up a 14-0 first quarter advantage.

The first drive covered 80 yards in 10 plays, with a pair of 15-yard runs by sophomore Pat Lehigh and a 14-yard aerial gainer from Scott Copple to Gene Smith highlighting the march.

Jeff Putman plunged over from one yard out and Bryce Carlson added the first of three extra point boots to give the Spartans a 7-0 lead.

Taking over on its own 40 six plays later following a short Pius punt, the Spartans needed just four plays to tally again.

After Copple pitched a pass to Smith for 12 yards, Putman broke off tackle and scampered 43-yards to payday.

Just before halftime East upped the bulge to 17-0 on a 25-yard Carlson field goal.

The Spartans widened the margin some more with a pair of third quarter touchdowns. They took the second-half kickoff and marched 76 yards. Putman got his third TD of the night from four yards out to climax the 12-play drive.

Three plays later Jerry Phillips intercepted the first of three Pius passes picked off during the night and Putman promptly dashed 45 yards to the 'Bolt 10. On fourth down Copple aimed an aerial to

NWU Hosts Hastings For Homecoming

... WILL SHOW VISITORS FOUR-MAN FRONT

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan will show Hastings College something Friday night at Magee Stadium, the Broncos haven't seen this season.

The Plainsmen will use a four-man defensive line and Hastings has only played against a five-man defensive front. The game is homecoming for NWU and concludes both teams' seasons.

At stake is second place in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and possibly the advantage in the series between the two.

Wesleyan is 3-1 in NIAC play and 7-1 overall while Hastings is 2-2 in the NIAC and 4-3 overall. The Plainsmen hold a 25-24 edge in the series with seven ties.

A win for NWU will also force Doane to win its last NIAC game against Dana next weekend to take the conference title outright.

A Plainsman victory over Hastings and Dana over Doane would leave the Crete team and the Capital City club tied. And there is no tie-breaking system in the NIAC.

NWU is also seeking its third-best finish in the school's 75-year football history.

Only the 1911 team, 7-0 and the 1946 club, 7-0-3, have better records. Regardless of the outcome coach Harold Chaffee will have his best year in the Plainsmen's helm.

Chaffee's 1969 team was 5-4 and last season's club was 6-4.

—MEMORIAL STADIUM SITE FOR SHOWDOWN— NU, ISU Yearlings Match Win Streaks

Then the southerners turned around and blanked Wichita State 29-0 — the same margin as Nebraska topped Wichita State last Friday.

Using that basis, the Ames squad would rate a 37-point choice over the hosting Huskers. But NU has taken the last nine encounters with the Cyclone frosh as Iowa State last prevailed 18-0 in 1961 and 7-6 in 1960.

Although the first-string saw little action in last week's rout of Wichita State, Ross will start that same eleven against coach Bill Cox' crew. Ross' team has averaged 323 total offensive yards in the first two matches.

Nearly matching his varsity counterpart Jerry Tagge in the passing department, quarterback Terry Luck from Fayetteville, N.C., boasts a 607 pass completion mark with no enemy thefts and three touchdowns. Luck is also the Lincolntes' total offense leader with 284 yards for a fine 6.2 average gain.

Husker wingback Jim Seeton should have little trouble recognizing ISU quarterback Kerry Robinson as the two were high school teammates at Wheat Ridge, Colo.

In attempting to post the school's ninth straight freshman football triumph dating back to the 1969 season, NU will also seek to keep the opposition off the scoreboard during the first half. NU owns a 19-0 first-quarter point margin and a 26-0 second-quarter advantage.

The last two quarters, however, contrast with the opening 30 minutes. The foes have outscored Nebraska 13-9 in the third frame and own a 17-14 edge in the final 15 minutes.

The Husker frosh, who conclude the 1971 campaign against Kansas State next Friday at Manhattan, will outweigh ISU by a slim 211-207 pounds per-man average.

Huskers Healthy, But Coach Devaney Ailing

With the exception of their head coach, the Nebraska football team figures to go into Saturday's game with Iowa State in as good physical condition as they've been in all season.

For the second straight day Thursday, the number of pill bottles Husker head coach Bob Devaney had to keep track of nearly matched the number of papers he carries in his familiar clipboard.

"He ought to be in bed," prescribed Dr. Don Bryant, the NU sports information director.

A real doctor, Dr. Robert Gillespie, diagnosed the ailments as a severe cold, the flu and bronchitis. The Husker coach was barely able to talk Thursday as he sent his squad through final preparations for the Cyclones.

With the exception of reserve slotback Glen Garson, who re-injured a leg earlier in the week and is doubtful for Saturday, all other Husker gridders are expected to be ready.

High Court Hears School Land Case

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An assistant state Atty. Gen. told the State Supreme Court Thursday that a lessee cannot be compensated for unauthorized improvements made before 1953 on leased public school lands.

In his oral argument, B. L. Packett said the lower court erred in saying the tenant was the owner of unauthorized improvements.

The particular case involves a Box Butte County widow who claims the cost incurred by her husband when he leveled a section of land for irrigation should be returned through charging the new lessee correspondingly.

The work was done in 1953 during a period when the law did not specify that tenants needed to get written permission from the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds to make improvements.

Common Law

The state maintained that common law determines ownership of the improvements in the absence of statutes.

"Therefore," Packett said, "common law determines ownership, and under common law you cannot put permanent improvements on leased property without consent."

Mrs. Genevieve Rosenberger's attorney countered saying, "Over the years, the state has encouraged the making of improvements by the tenant on school lands."

"The state has constitutionally sought to protect the interests of lessees in doing so by requiring a new lessee to pay the old lessee for the improvements."

He said it would be "tremendously unjust" to not allow compensation.

'Unfair Destruction'

"If this policy is now upset," he continued, "it will not only result in unfair destruction of the interests of many school land tenants, it will result in unjust enrichment of the school land fund."

State officials indicate that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of improvements fall into this category and could be affected by the outcome.

The high court will also have an opportunity to rule on the constitutionality of LB413 passed by the 1971 Legislature if it so chooses.

That bill permits all improvements made before 1953 to belong to the lessee whether authorized or not.

A brief filed by the Nebraska Stock Growers Association indicates the widespread impact the decision could have on lessees of school lands.

Omaha Tribe Jurisdiction Arguments Heard

Omaha (AP) — Three judges of the U.S. District Federal Court Thursday heard arguments over criminal jurisdiction of the Omaha Indian tribe.

The hearing on retrocession — the issue of criminal jurisdiction — revolved around the legality of a 1969 resolution by the 1969 Nebraska Legislature giving the responsibility to the federal government.

But attorneys for Walthill, Neb., and Thurston County, where the Omahas live, contend the resolution wasn't proper because it was not signed by then — Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

They argued that the Unicameral passed 605 resolutions between 1956 and 1970 and only five were presented to the governor.

Low Order Improved

Assistant U.S. Atty. William Schaphorst, representing the tribe, said "Law and order on the reservation had vastly improved since retrocession" went into effect in October 1970.

The change permitted the Omahas to set up their own court and jail and try all violations except for traffic and 13 major crime categories which would go to federal court.

"It's far from perfect but it's improved," Schaphorst said. He noted that a judge has been appointed, about 13 policemen hired and $100,000 granted for a jail and courtroom.

"I dare say law and order wasn't provided before," Schaphorst said.

Atty. Robert Scoville of South Sioux City, representing Walthill and Thurston County, said the resolution was invalid because the governor did not sign it and because the federal government did not also accept jurisdiction over the Walthill area in the same area.

'Anachronism'

Scoville also said it was "an anachronism" that jurisdiction should historically rest with the federal government.

He said the idea is based on treaties with Indian nations that no longer exist as sovereign nations.

"They are citizens of the states. We can't arbitrarily go back and shuffle a man without waiving his constitutional rights," Scoville said.

The three judges are Richard Robinson, Robert Denney and Warren K. Urbom. They have before them six other cases involving retrocession and are expected to consider arguments presented Thursday before ruling on the case.

Vote Electing Burkhardt Disputed

State Board of Education member Allen Burkhardt of Norfolk was apparently elected Thursday as the board's representative to the new State Board of Technical Community Colleges.

However, the choice at a State Board of Education meeting was enveloped in a debate over parliamentary procedure, with Board President Frank Landis of Lincoln contending Burkhardt was not elected since his appointment did not receive favoring votes from a majority of board members present.

The vote on the appointment was three board members in favor, two against, and Patrick Cooney of Omaha abstained.

At an earlier board meeting in September, the board had twice split 4-4 on appointing Burkhardt or Francis Knappe of Omaha.

The Community College Board was created by the 1971 Legislature when it passed LB759, setting up the statewide community college system.

On the motion to approve Burkhardt Thursday, members voting in favor were Burkhardt, Shirley Peterson of Omaha and Lloyd Wright of Reynolds while the opposing ballots were cast by Landis and Knappe.

Cooney said he refrained from voting because he had assured Gerald Whelan of Hastings, another board member who was absent, he would not vote on the appointment Thursday.

Following the vote, Landis ruled it had failed because Burkhardt did not receive a majority of votes cast and Burkhardt appealed the ruling with the same resulting vote.

After calling a recess to review parliamentary procedure, Landis then reconvened the board and announced he and Knappe were leaving, thus depriving the eight-member board of the quorum needed to enact official business.

Dislikes Natural?

London (AP) — Dr. Harry Morrow-Brown, an allergist specialist, says children should not be forced to eat foods they don't want because their refusal may be a natural protection against "certain items of diet which bring on asthmatic attacks."

Community College District Hearing Date Is Scheduled

The State Board of Education Thursday set a hearing for the board's next meeting on a request by 11 southeastern Nebraska counties to form a community college district under LB759, the Community College Law enacted by the 1971 Legislature.

The district, if approved, would be the sixth such district in the state, according to

Assistant Education Commissioner for Vocational Services Glen Strain.

The bill provides that eight such districts shall be created in the state and shall each provide an area community college, incorporating present state trade schools and community colleges into the system.

The 11 counties are Saunders, Cass, Otoe, Gage, Pawnee, Jefferson, Thayer, Fillmore, Saline, York, and Seward.

On another matter, Strain provided the board with figures showing that federal grants to the state for vocational education have increased $432,000 to $3.6 million for the current fiscal year.

Last year, Strain's report showed, the state received $3.17 million from the federal government under the program.

Most of the increase falls in the category of basic grants and special programs for disadvantaged persons.

Urbom Claims He Won't Move Office To Omaha

Federal District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom said Thursday he has no immediate plans of moving his offices to Omaha if appointed chief judge of the Nebraska District.

However, said the judge, next in line by seniority, a final decision would depend on which location would be best for the court system.

"That is not to say it (a move) won't be considered by me," he said.

"I think the decision has to be made in light of what the needs of the court are and I'll be giving that complete thought at such time as it seems to be necessary," he said.

WINTERIZE YOUR CAR NOW!

Now is the time to have your car winterized. During cold weather and sub-zero weather, your car must be in top condition to give you safe and sure driving. The majority of malfunctions can usually be attributed to lack of proper maintenance. Don't be caught with a dead car this winter! The loss of your car due to malfunction is very aggravating. Let us check over these main trouble makers.

POGO

POGO, JUST LIKE A MAN, BAD-MOUTHIN' THE PRESIDENT.

THE PRESIDENT? IS HE THE PRESIDENT OF THE CHINA, OF THOSE FRANCE, WHO IS KNOWN?

THE JACKSON TWINS

HE'S REALLY GORGEOUS, JAN? YOW!

AND HE'S BRILLIANT!

YET HE'S KIND AND SWEET AND SENTIMENTAL AND SO POLITE!

YET HE'S ALL MAN! HE'S EVEN PLAYED PRO SOCCER!

SHE'S APE AGAIN, HUH, JILL?

SHE'S REALLY TURNED ON! AS ONLY JAN CAN GET!

MARY WORTH

LOOK, DEAR!...THERE'S THIS FLAW IN THE FABRIC! IT'S HARDLY NOTICEABLE, BUT MR. PENDLETON DIDN'T WANT TO ARGUE WITH THIS MANUFACTURER, OR PUT IT ON SALE...

SO HE ASKED ME TO ACCEPT IT AS A BONUS FOR GOOD WORK! ...I'VE ALWAYS WANTED A GENUINE "BIANCHI," BUT NEVER COULD AFFORD...

WRAP IT UP! YOU'RE TAKING IT BACK TO HIM TOMORROW!
